Additional Bay Docks Approved

By WAT TAKESHITA

New docks and berths for 307 houseboats in Richardson Bay won the approval of the Marin County Planning Commission yesterday after a five-hour hearing with Commissioner John F. West fighting the majority all the way. (Other planning commission stories, page 11.)

Miriam Tellis, George Kappas and Donlon J. Arques asked for a resort-commercial use permit for new berths to accommodate existing houseboats at Waldo Point.

All three won approval, except that Arques's request for 265 berths was chopped to 200 by a split vote.

Arques, who owns 25 acres at Gate 5, where the old ferryboat San Rafael is mired, asked for 265 new berths on four long docks that would jut out into the bay just north of Sausalito city limits. He also wants the ferryboat Charles Van Damme used as a restaurant, and a marine repair facility to be operated by T. J. Nelson.

County Planner Raymond Smith said the new berths would take care of 200 houseboats that already exist in Arques's harbor or are anchored outside, plus 65 additional houseboats.

The extra 65 berths asked by Arques ran into trouble, as the planning commissioners cut it down to 200. Margaret B. Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, Jack G. Nixon and Eugene R. Trombley voted to permit 200 new berths, with several conditions to be met by Arques, including a bicycle-pedestrian access along the entire waterfront.

Walter F. Freitas, John Hageman, and West dissented. Freitas said he saw no reason why the number of berths should be cut to an arbitrary 200, just because that happens to be the number of boats anchored there now.

West dissented on the Arques proposal, as well as on the other two, for a different reason. He charged that permtting a mass of houseboats in Richardson Bay is allowing residential subdivision in the name of resort-commercial zoning.

"I sit here and watch the county presiding over the de-

SECURITY TIGHTENS

Evelyn Gosser, a Marin deputy sheriff, searched the purse of Karen Tobin of Fairfax, a visitor at the Hall of Justice, as tougher security measures went into effect today at the Civic Center. This included search of all persons entering either the Hall of Justice or adjoining Administration Building, triggered by last week's courtroom bombing. County Administrator Alan Bruce said the Hall of Justice will be closed from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m., except for employees with proper identification who will be admitted after 7:15 a.m., and that only essential night meetings, such as those of governmental agencies, will be permitted. Moscow Denies Sub Base Claim

Says Lie Is War Scare

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government officially denied today it was building a nuclear submarine base in Cuba and accused the Nixon administration of deliberately or irresponsibly spreading "falsifications."

A government statement distributed by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the U.S. reports the Russians were engaged in building naval installations in Cuba "play into the hands only of those who are interested in fanning the war psychosis and complicating the situation in that region of the world."

"Those who deliberately or irresponsibly are taking up and spreading such falsifications play into the hands of the foes of peace," it said.

"The Soviet Union has not built and is not building a military base on Cuba and is not doing anything that would contradict the understanding reached between the governments of the USSR and the United States in 1962," the statement said.

The year 1962 marked the Cuban missile crisis when President John F. Kennedy ordered their removal in a tense confrontation that appeared at the time to be on the verge of breaking into direct conflict.

The Nixon administration first raised the submarine base issue Sept. 25 at a regular Defense Department briefing. A Pentagon spokesman said activity had been detected at Cienfuegos, on Cuba's southern coast, that could be the start of a base for serving nuclear Polaris-type submarines.

Later the same day a top White House official also expressed serious concern about the base—if that was what was being built. The official, who did not permit use of his name in accounts by reporters, said the United States would regard a base for missile submarines in Cuba "with the utmost seriousness."

The Russian newspapers dismissed the allegations within a

Orioles Win 9-3; Lead Series 3-0

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Southpaw Dave McNally clouted a grand-slam home run to help the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-3 victory in the third game of the World Series today.

McNally, who also hit a home run in last year's Series against the Mets, connected for his homer today off Reds' relief pitcher Wayne Granger.

The victory gave the Orioles a commanding 3-0 lead in the series.

Earlier, the Orioles had taken a 4-1 lead against Reds' starter Tony Cloninger on bases-empty homers by Frank Robinson and Don Buford and a two-run double by Brooks Robinson.

The Orioles knocked out Cloninger when Paul Blair singled with one out in the sixth. Brooks Robinson greeted Granger with a first-pitch double that sent Blair to third. Dave Johnson was purposely walked to load the bases. Granger then fanned Andy Etchebarren for the second out but McNally, a righthanded batter but a lefthanded thrower, slammed a 2-and-2 pitch into the left field stands.

He was the first pitcher ever to hit a grand-slam homer in a Series.

McNally gave up two hits in each of the first two innings, and then none during the next four, retiring 10 straight batters during that span.

Possibly wearied by his slugging feat, McNally gave up two more runs in the seventh, cutting the Orioles' lead to 8-3.

In that seventh, Lee May walked, moved to second on Hal McRae's single, to third as Tommy Helms forced McRae at second, and scored on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly to right. Helms went to third when pinch-hitter Woody Woodward singled and scored the Reds' third run on Pete Rose's single. McNally retired Bobby Tolan on a pop fly to end the rally.

The Orioles scored once more off Reds' reliever Don Gullett in the seventh to increase their lead to 9-3. With one out, Boog Powell walked, went to third as Frank Robinson singled to left and was thrown out at second trying to stretch it to a double, and scored on Paul Blair's double, Blair's third hit.

Arson Probe At Gnoss Field; Gas Lock Gone

While firemen and sheriff's inspectors probed the burned wreckage of the Blue Yonder Cafe and Spectrum Air offices at Gnoss Field today for the cause of the fire early yesterday morning, it was business as usual for Spectrum Air.

Novato Fire Chief Jack Kidder said that his department has not discovered the cause of the fire or whether it was arson.

President Harold Lipska of Spectrum Air confirmed the report that the lock on one of the gasoline pumps had been broken, and the lock not found.

This led to conjecture that the fire might have been started by a burglar, but Kidder would not comment on the possibility of a fire bomb or work of an arsonist until his department had made a thorough investigation.

Lipska said that Spectrum Air is operating as usual today. It moved into a temporary mobile office and would continue business. The hangar itself was not damaged in the fire.

The firm will completely rebuild its offices and the restaurant, he said. He expects the rebuilding to be completed in two to three months.

The firm lost some of its records, but the bulk are salvageable, Lipska said. It would be some time before the employees had sorted them to determine the exact documentary loss, he said.

The main loss to the building

Canada Establishes Ties With Red China

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada today announced establishment of diplomatic relations with Red China.

In announcing the diplomatic ties, Canada acknowledged the Peking regime as "the sole legal government of China."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced the move in the House of Commons and released a joint communique, distributed simultaneously in Peking and Ottawa.

"The government of Canada and the government of the People's Republic of China, in accordance with the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and equality and mutual benefit, have decided upon mutual recognition and establishment of diplomatic relations, effective October 13, 1970," the joint communique said.

"The Chinese government reaffirms that Taiwan is an inalienable part of the territory of the People's Republic of China. The Canadian government takes note of this position of the Chinese government.

"The Canadian government recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China.

"The Canadian and Chinese governments have agreed to exchange ambassadors within six months, and to provide all necessary assistance for the establishment and the performance of the functions of diplomatic missions in their respective capitals, on the basis of equality and mutual benefit and in accordance with international practice."

He said Taiwan had been a major consideration in the negotiations in Stockholm, which began on Feb. 6, 1969.

"From the very beginning of our discussions, the Chinese

Chinese Nationals Sever Canadian Ties Over Peking

TAIPEI (UPI)—The Nationalist Chinese government today severed relations with Canada because of Canada's recognition of Peking. It said Communist China was "the greatest single threat to world peace and security."

A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry said Nationalist China regards the recognition of Peking "as a most unfriendly act and has lodged a vigorous protest with the Canadian government" in addition to breaking diplomatic relations.

It said it would close its embassy in Ottawa as well as its consulate-general in Vancouver.

The statement noted that the United Nations in 1951 condemned Communist China as an aggressor for its armed intervention in the Korean War and said the rule of Mao Tse-tung on the mainland has uprooted traditional Chinese culture and led to the current turmoil there.

"It is a matter of utmost regret that the Canadian government should have finally announced the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communist regime, which poses the greatest single threat to world peace and security," the statement said.

PRE-BOMBING INFORMATION BEING ASKED

Lt. Guido Battaglia of the Marin Sheriff's Department today appealed to persons who might have seen "anything that aroused their suspicions" before last Thursday's bombing of the Hall of Justice to call his department.

Information that "might seem trivial or unrelated" might still be of help to his inspectors, he explained, and he urged anyone who noticed anything unusual either last Wednesday or early Thursday morning to call.

Those with information may call Inspectors Kenneth Irving or Ronald Retana.

Acceptance Of Mental Chief—The Big Factor

By ERIK M. INGRAM

(Second of two articles)

Whether Marin's community mental health program is to be again torn by dissension appears to depend on community and professional acceptance of the next director of the Marin Community Mental Health Center, whoever he may be.

That director, one of the more than 20 applicants now being screened by a nine-member committee, will find himself directly responsible to two official agencies as well as indirectly responsible to myrial private lay and professional mental health groups.

Besides overseeing operation of the center, for which he will be answerable to the Marin Hospital District board, he will also be charged with planning the county's entire mental health program, for which he will be answerable to the county board of supervisors.

To be successful, he will not only need approval by the supervisors and the hospital district board, but also the endorsement of other mental health agencies and their lay and professional supporters.

Some observers of the mental health scene say divided opinion as to the center's program played almost as great a part

Terrorists' Lawyer Out Of Jail To Negotiate Ransom

MONTREAL (UPI) — The lawyer for two groups of separatist kidnapers was released from jail today, clearing one obstacle in the negotiations with the government to release two political hostages.

Robert Lemieux told newsmen he would meet government negotiator Robert Demers later today to continue talks aimed at gaining freedom for British Trade Commissioner James R. Cross, and Quebec Labor and Immigration Minister Pierre Laporte, hostages of terrorist cells of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ).

Lemieux said his initial talks with Demers, held into the early morning hours in the city jail where Lemieux has been held since Sunday, were "very elementary."

Lemieux entered no plea—formally listed in the records as a not guilty plea—to charges of obstructing justice and interfering with the work of police by statements made Oct. 9.

$855,000 In Bonds Sold For Corte Madera Library

The newly created Marin County-Corte Madera Library Authority today sold $855,000 in bonds to finance a new regional library in Corte Madera at an interest rate of 5.991104 per cent to stock brokers Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell, who had estimated the interest rate at 6.75 per cent, said the lower interest means a total interest cost of $495,015 over the 15-year life of the bonds. At 6.75 per cent interest, total interest would have been $557,720.

Two other bidders on the bonds were Kirchner, Moore and Co. of San Francisco, which offered an interest rate of 6.599605 per cent, and Bank of America, 6.2061 per cent.

The action came on a 4-to-0 vote of the authority board, composed of Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera and Supervisors Louis H. Baar, William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum. It ordered the sale of the bonds and purchase of 2.6 acres off of property on Meadowsweet Drive, over the strong objection of the Marin County Taxpayers Association.

Donald M. Van Dyke of Novato, director of the taxpayers group, charged that the bonds are "gimmick bonds" which will open the door to unlimited

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Weather Balloons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency said today its Nimbus-4 weather satellite has been quizzing a flock of world-girdling balloons in a program aimed at improving global weather forecasts.

Last spring and summer 13 instrument-carrying balloons were launched from Ascension Island in the South Atlantic to float around the world at altitudes of 68,000 to 79,000 feet.

Four are still reporting their location and temperature and air pressure information to Nimbus some 700 miles above in polar orbit. Said NASA:

"Scientists believe a system of balloons electronically linked to weather satellites can provide extensive knowledge on global wind circulation and could be used in research to improve worldwide forecasting techniques."

TV Curbs Vetoed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democrats said today President Nixon's veto of a proposed limit on political broadcast campaign spending probably kills the issue for this year. The House and Senate have only a slim chance of overturning Nixon's action.

About the most the Democrats hoped to salvage from Monday's veto was the chance to make a political issue out of campaign spending. They leaped at the chance, accusing Nixon of opting for politics over reform and allowing bankrolled candidates to buy an election.

The bill would have sharply limited how much major candidates could spend on radio and TV campaign advertising.

Rail Line Bombed

BELFAST (UPI) — Two bomb explosions damaged tracks on the main railway line between Belfast and Dublin today, an army spokesman said.

The spokesman said "five pounds of explosive appears to have been placed under each of the two tracks " to cause the blasts about one mile south of Lorgan, 20 miles from the border of the Irish Republic.

A railway spokesman said damage to tracks had been slight and that trains were running normally.

British troops fired nausea gas at crowds in Londonderry where about 60 demonstrators hurled Molotov cocktails and rocks at soldiers and policemen Monday night and early today.

Stresses On Society

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —A noted anthropologist said today human society is undergoing its greatest stress in 10,000 years, and the whole concept of government under law is being "tested to its uttermost limits."

Professor E. Adamson Hoebel of the Unicersity of Minnesota told the 1970 UPI editors and publishers conference that law is "the major tool of social control developed and used by the 30,000 generations of men who preceded us" and must be preserved "if we are to survive."

He said that even "erstwhile civil libertarians" would have to approve such harsh measures as preventive detention and limitations on free speech "if the chips were down on a choice between the terror of militant anarchy and the order of bare-bones societal survival."

Soviet-French Pact

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Georges Pompiduo of France today signed a Soviet-French declaration establishing regular bilateral political consultations between foreign ministers of two nations.

Pompidou and President Nikolai V. Podgorny signed their names to the document and to a Soviet-French protocol in a special noontime ceremony in the Kremlin.

Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were among those who watched the signing ceremony.

Afterward, all stood and drank champagne toasts around the white-clothed table.

In Fifth Week

DETROIT (UPI) —The United Auto Workers' strike against General Motors drifted into its fifth week today with little chance the two sides would agree on a new three-year contract in the near future.

At the end of Monday's negotiations, Earl Bramblett, G.M.'s chief negotiator, said the company and union had tentatively settled one-quarter of the 400 outstanding national issues. But none of the items agreed to included the wage, pension and cost-of-living improvements which make up the guts of the union's demands.

NIXON LAUNCHES POLITICAL CAMPAIGNING

As if to signal his entrance into the fall campaign trail, President Nixon checks his watch as his wife greets an onlooker at Stamford, Conn., as they arrive for dedication of an Italian community center. The talk yesterday — part of Stamford's Columbus Day festivities — was viewed as the President's kickoff of three week's campaigning on behalf of Republican candidates. The White House said Nixon plans a marathon campaign trip Saturday in four states — Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Egypt Will Ask Major U.N. Debate

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad flew to New York today to ask the U.N. General Assembly for a major debate on the Middle East.

Official Egyptian sources said Riad's objective "is to get a strongly worded resolution that would condemn Israeli aggression."

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir made it clear Israel was ready to resume the war if Egypt starts shooting after the end of the cease-fire Nov. 5.

"It takes two sides to make a cease-fire or achieve peace, but one is enough to start shooting," she told a meeting of the executive committee of her Labor Party. "Our defense forces will be ready for them if the shooting resumes but our deep and profound prayer is that it will not."

Israel, she said, is ready to continue the cease-fire but cannot stand by indefinitely while Egypt builds up its supply of Soviet-made missiles in the Suez Canal standstill zone.

"We are not ready to accept (a situation) where an agreement is no agreement, a promise is no promise and only we have to bear all the responsibilities and abide by all the committments while the other side is free to despise promises and do what it pleases."

While Riad is expected to try to get the United Nations to take up the overall Middle East question for the first time since the June, 1967 war, acting President Anwar Sadat said Egypt still was ready for indirect peace talks urged by the United States.

Parents Of Wayward Children To Be Cited

DETROIT (UPI) — Finding that punishing the children alone did not work, two suburbs Monday night passed laws to punish parents for the crimes of their sons and daughters.

The governing bodies of West Bloomfield Township and Troy —both havens of the well endowed—unanimously passed virtually identical ordinances to extract a maximum $500 fine and-or a 90 day jail stint from the parents of wayward children.

Both ordinances will go into effect 30 days after they are published, which should be within the next few days.

The seven-man West Bloomfield Township board acted first at a meeting attended by about 20 parents. After a few changes in the language, and a few words in praise of the new law, the board quickly adopted the ordinance, which read: "The township board finds that offenses against the laws of the United States, the statues of Michigan and the ordinances of West Bloomfield Township by minors under the age of 17 are increasing at an alarming rate and in a great many cases a lack of supervision and proper control by the parents or guardian is evidenced.

"The increasing problems of criminal offenses by children will not be solved by sanctions imposed upon the children alone. Therefore, it is necessary that sanctions be imposed upon parents whose neglect of their duty to properly supervise and control their children is a proximate cause of the delinquency of their children."

Troy's seven-man city commission soon afterwards adopted the ordinance in identical language at a meeting attended by about 200 persons, most of them drawn there by other local matters. Not a dissenting voice was raised.

Red Action In Neutral Zone Climbs

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Command today reported the highest level of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong activity in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in more than a year. U.S. Marines apparently bombarded friendly forces by mistake, killing two Allied troops and wounding five.

Communiques from Phnom Penh said it was the quietest day on Cambodian battlefronts in a month.

The U.S. military command issued figures showing there were 175 instances of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong presence inside the 46-mile-long, six-mile-wide DMZ last week compared with 120 the previous week.

The command said the violations were the most in a single week since Sept. 26, 1969, when Allied reconnaissance recorded 225.

One of the conditions under which the United States halted the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968 was that there would be no troop movements or buildups in the DMZ.

Meanwhile, U.S. troops killed 38 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong along South Vietnam's northern coast in fighting reported today. American Marines apparently shelled friendly forces in the same area by mistake, killing two Allied troops and wounding five.

American army ground units working with helicopter gunships killed 38 Communist troops at a cost of three dead and eight wounded, the U.S. Command said.

40,000 Troop Cuts Ordered By Holidays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has announced there will be 205,500 fewer American soldiers in Vietnam this Christmas than when he took office 19 months ago.

Nixon revealed the new troop figures Monday, saying the total level Dec. 31 will be 334,000 soldiers, a reduction he said was made possible by progress in turning the war over to the Vietnamese.

The overall troop ceiling — the level beyond which total additions and subtractions of troop strength in Vietnam cannot go — will be cut by 40,000 between now and Christmas to reach the new level, Nixon said. He said this ceiling reduction is 30,000 more than originally planned.

The Army chief of Staff, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, said today, however, that men will continue being sent to Vietnam as Army replacements at the rate of 20,000 a month at least through uly 1.

The replacements fill vacancies left by men whose tours of duty have expired, or who have become casualties of the conflict.

Westmoreland, in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, said the Army will still have about 200,000 men in Vietnam next summer.

Westmoreland also said the armed services will have to double or triple their enlistment and re-enlistment figures to achieve an all-volunteer force.

"I am announcing today that the Army is committed to an all-out effort in working toward a zero draft — a volunteer force," he said. "But we need support and understanding from the administration, the congress and our citizenry."

Westmoreland's statement came one day after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird ordered the services to take necessary steps toward the goal of ending the draft in 1973.

"We need to increase pay," Westmoreland said. "And we will probably find that we must put our money primarily in those jobs which are most arduous and have the least applications to civilian pursuits —the infantry, artillery and armor."

Westmoreland said few volunteers elect to serve in the infantry in Vietnam. He said "for the near future we will continue to depend on the draft for most of our replacements."

Westmoreland said the draft must be extended beyond its scheduled expiration date July 1, and must be kept on the books for emergency use even after the "zero draft" condition is attained.

Blasts Lead To Tightening Of Security

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The government announced today it was tightening security at all federal buildings because of the recent outbreak of explosions and the threat of further violence by militants.

General Services Administrator Robert L. Kunzig, the overseer of all federal buildings, said open access to most federal buildings has been restricted and guards placed on patrol.

Security patrols have been ordered around the clock instead of the customary 6 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The move came after a day of eight bomb blasts — five in Rochester, N.Y., two in New York City and one in Orlando, Fla.

The explosions, which injured three persons, followed, coincidentally perhaps, warnings by the revolutionary "Weatherman" group that it would mount an offensive of terror.

Soviet Consul General Arrives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Russia's consul-general designate to San Francisco arrived Monday on a house-hunting trip for the USSR's first consulate here since the depths of the Cold War in 1948.

Russian diplomat Alexander Zinchuk said he hopes the consulate will open its doors by the end of this year or early 1971.

Zinchuk, 50, met with both Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel and Mayor Joseph Alioto on his arrival at San Francisco International Airport where Hickel was waiting for a return flight to Washington.

Alioto told Zinchuk about his suggestion that the Soviets send craftsmen to help restore the old Czarist chapel at Fort Ross on the Sonoma County coast. The church was destroyed by fire a week ago.

PLIGHT OF CHICANOS

Young People Demand Action

By JACK V. FOX

(Second of three articles)

CESAR CHAVEZ
A new leader

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There were 700 brown-skinned young people in a windowless room meant to hold 100 and the temperature rose to 120 degrees as the Chicanos stomped, clapped hands in accelerating tempo and shouted slogans of "brown Power." "Viva la Raza" ("long live the race") they shouted. One man drew an ovation by screaming "Viva la Revolucion."

It was an uncomfortable moment for the "Anglo" reporters and cameramen covering a "news conference" two days after the first real riot in the Mexican-American community in late August. It was a portent of uncomfortable days to come.

A coroner's inquest Oct. 5 ruled that the death of newsman Ruben Salazar, one of three killed in the riot, was not accidental.

Dist Atty. Evelle J. Younger said if any crime was involved it would be involuntary manslaughter. "I still have to determine if there will be criminal prosecution," he added. The verdict was only advisory, but Mexican-American leaders see it as a moral victory.

There are more than 1.5 million Mexican-Americans in California (800,000 in Los Angeles alone) and, after years of passivity, it is obvious the younger ones are following the lead of the Negro in demands which may or may not be backed by violence.

They have before them the manifestly successful campaign of Cesar Chavez to organize the grape workers in his drive to unionize agriculture which is now extending throughout the state and into other crops.

The generation gap is nowhere more marked than among the Mexican-American people of Southern California.

Two days before the outburst in East Los Angeles where three were killed, dozens injured and more than 100 persons arrested at a Chicano Moratorium rally Aug. 29, one of the city's top Mexican-American officials was talking about unrest in the community.

Alerico D. Ortega, a rotund, affable man in his 50s, is Mayor Sam Yorty's director of Latin American affairs and he is an example of the opder generation's comfortable enjoyment of living the way they have been for decades.

"We are as American as silver dollars," says Ortega. "If you came in here and called me a Chicano I'd throw you out. You know, actually, the word "Chicano" in Spanish means "fraud."

Rosalio Munoz, a handsome man in his early 20s, a former student body president at UCALA, is a perfect example of the younger generation's determination to change the old ways.

Munoz has defied his armed forces induction notice and was one of the organizers of the moratorium. He says Chicanos are dying at a rate of 3 to 1 over Anglo in Vietnam and urges his people to resist armed forces service.

In their more expansive moments, Munoz and his followers talk about taking back the "land unjustly taken from us" in the Sapnish American War.

Munoz and Ortega do have a number of things in common. Neither wants the Spanish community to be integrated — to give up their culture, language or ties of heritage and pride to become dissolved in a land they first settled in 1781.

Ortega does not make any pretense that all is rosy in the Mexican-American community and is particularly critical of the educational system.

"Schools are failing in my opinion in not recognizing the unusual sensitivity of Mexican-Americans and the need to instill confidence in them when they go out into the jungle we call the national economy," he says.

Ortega also points out there are 200,000 Mexican aliens and 70,000 Mexicans who have entered the country illegally who are at the base of much trouble.

But statistics demonstrate there is much more wrong.

—Mexican-Americans represent about 7.5 per cent of the population of California and about 15 per cent of the Los Angeles metropolitan area but they have only one Spanish-surnamed member among California's 39 congressmen and two U.S. senators.

—There is only one Mexican-American assemblyman in the state Legislature. There is not one on either the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors or the City Council.

—The dropout rate at the overwhelmingly Mexican-American Lincoln High School is 44.8 per cent compared with 11 per cent in virtually all "Anglo" Pacific Palisades.

—A recent study showed the average Mexican-American family income at $5,106 per year and Negro at $4,736. The average for the Los Angeles area was over $7,000. In a study of 500 families, only one Chicano made more than $10,000.

Drug addiction and juvenile crime are higher in the Chicano sections than anywhere else in Los Angeles.

There was shock after the violence along Whittier Avenue where scores of stores were broken into by looters, glass windows shattered and several establishments burned in a miniature scene of "Watts' "Charcoal Alley" of 1965.

Says Abe Tapia, president of the Mexican-American Political Association.

"There are a lot of prominent Anglos who are talking about looting and rioting but aren't saying anything about housing, unemployment, education or the drug problem."

It is difficult to get a breakdown of unemployment among Mexican-Americans because such statistics are not kept on a Spanish surname basis. But the best estimate is not as high as Negro unemployment although well above the area average.

Mexican extraction is far less prejudicial than Negro in finding jobs, but most Chicanos are limited to employment in factories, the construction industry, restaurants and bars, civil service and manual work. Mexican women have a good representation in clerical jobs.

The "barrios" of east Los Angeles scarcely live up to the connotation. The six-square-mile "separate belt" to the casual observer bears little difference from other vast flashy and shabby stretches of the vast city except for the language.

There are row after row of one story wooden frame houses, most of them built in the 1920s. One study of 500 families showed 52 per cent owned their own homes. It was estimated that in three quarters of the families, Spanish was the principal language.

Television has been an important factor in bringing a working knowledge of English to the younger people and the public schools are pushing a program of blingual instruction in the first three grades until students feel at home with English.

Chavez, of course, is the example of Chicano success.

There are about 285,000 farm workers in the state of whom more than half are of Mexican descent.

After five bitter years of strive and struggle, Chavez brought the state's table grape growers to their knees with a nationwide boycott of table grapes. It is safe to say that Chavez has organized more than 90 per cent of the table grape crop.

Chavez is now moving into the Salinas Valley, "salad bowl of the nation," and it is no secret he aspires to unionize agricultural workers throughout the United States.

The essence of the affair is that Mexican-Americans are being heard for the first time.

Rep. Edward Roybal, the state's only Mexican-American congressman, admits frankly that Chicanos are irritated about the grants and programs devoted to the Negro community while his larger community is virtually ignored.

The signs are they won't be much longer.

A Gunpoint Beginning For A City

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The legend is that Spanish grandees and caballeros founded the city of Los Angeles on Sept. 4, 1781, marching under the banner of Spain.

Franciscan priest Zephyrin Engelhardt, in his treatise "San Gabriel Mission and the Beginnings of Los Angeles" says that is not true.

Actually, says Father Engelhardt, they were a "sorry crowd of settlers" led virtually at gunpoint by a Spanish corporal and three soldiers.

Of the original settlers, there were two Spaniards, one Spanish-Indian halfbreed, two Negroes, eight mullatoes and nine Indians. Their children were five Spanish, four Spanish-Indian, eight Negro-Indian, three Spanish Negro Indian and two Indian.

AIP Candidate Hits Tahoe Plan

Thomas M. Goodloe Jr., American Independent Party candidate for California secretary of state, criticized proposals for Lake Tahoe regional government as a prime example of interference with local government, in his speech to a Marin County audience Sunday.

Goodloe, an El Dorado County supervisor, spoke in the Raymond C. Kesner home, Larkspur. He said that as chairman of his county's local agency formation commission and as member of several regional advisory bodies, he was familiar with state and federal bureaucratic pressures that threatened to "completely destroy" concepts of local government.

The candidate spoke briefly, presented a 45-minute tape recording of his views, and answered questions from the 20 person audience.

Census Expected To Estimate 6 Million Mexican-Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1970 census is expected to show United States Mexican-Americans total more than 6 million.

The number will not be precise — the census count of Mexican-Americans will be based on a 5 per cent sampling in states of high concentration of Mexican-Americans. National estimates will be made from the sampling.

A census sampling released in March estimated 9.2 million Americans of Spanish descent, or about 5 per cent of the population. The total included 5.07 million of Mexican descent, 1.45 million of Puerto Rican descent, 565,000 Cuban, 556,000 Central and South Americans, and 1.5 million other Spanish-American descent.

The 1960 census showed Arizona's 194,356 Mexican-Americans were nearly 15 per cent of that state's population; California's 1.43 million, 9 per cent; Colorado's 157,173, nearly 9 per cent; New Mexico's 269,122, more than 28 per cent, and Texas' 1.42 million were 14.7 per cent of the total Texas population.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said government statistics show these things about the southwest's Mexican-Americans their unemployment was 8.5 per cent in 1960 when Anglo-Americans' was 4.5 per cent, their median school years completed was 8.1 compared with more than 12 for Anglos and 9.7 for blacks. Among Mexican-American families living in urban areas of the southwest in 1960, nearly one third made below the $3,000 "poverty line," and in rural areas the figure was 52 per cent.

Teamsters Pickets In Marin For Fourth Day

Teamsters pickets, seeking to halt delivery of goods to Independent-Journal advertisers, returned to Central Marin for the fourth day today.

In a departure from previous strategy, pickets halted trucks entering San Rafael from Highway 101 in an effort to persuade drivers to turn back with their morning deliveries. It was unknown whether they succeeded in keeping any out of the city.

Lt. Jay Fletcher of the San Rafael police said pickets gathered at Heatherton Street and Mission Avenue, adjacent to the freeway, about 7:30 a.m. He said the halting of trucks delayed commuter traffic.

The pickets, some from Teamsters Union Local 70 in Oakland, also continued hit-run picketing at various Central Marin stores. Teamsters were known to have appeared at the Lucky market in Fairfax and at Safeway on B Street in San Rafael.

An unknown number of trucks was turned away from the Safeway store, said manager Sam Miller.

Unlike yesterday, no violence was reported this morning. Yesterday, a tire was punctured on a delivery truck at a San Rafael bakery and the windshield of a Safeway truck broken in San Anselmo.

Four teamsters were arrested in the tire incident, which occurred outside Langendorf United Bakeries, 629 Lindaro Street. However, only one picket, Martin Lewis Frates, 28, of Oakland, was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Frates was accused of a misdemeanor count of vandalism and his case continued to next Tuesday for entry of plea. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein released Frates on his own recognizance.

The other three — Leroy David Nunes, 36, of Castro Valley; Albind John Vierra, 47, and John Alvin Bromstead Jr., 36, both of Union City — were released from Marin County Jail, although the district attorney's office was said not to have ruled out the possibility of charges against them as well.

The four were said by the bakery manager to have speared a truck tire with an ice pick.

The hit-run picketing, announced last month at a meeting of the Joint Council 7 of the Bay Area Labor Councils, is reportedly in support of International Typographical Union 21, which struck the I-J last Jan. 7.

Printer's Union Official Unclear On Flyer Delivery

A printer's union official testified today that San Francisco Typographical Union 21 ordered thousands of flyers printed in support of a mass rally Feb. 14 that erupted into violence around the Independent-Journal plant.

But Gregor Bachich, secretary-treasurer to the local, said he couldn't recall whether the flyers were brought to the union offices and distributed from there. Nor could he recall how many sheets the union ordered and paid for without checking records he did not have in court.

Bachich returned to Judge Thomas F. Keating's Superior Courtroom today in the fourth day of a hearing in which the I-J is seeking to prove that the International Typographical Union Local and Periodical and Newspaper Drivers Local 921, the Marin and San Francisco labor councils and union and council officials acted in contempt Feb. 14 and earlier, of the preliminary injunction Judge Keating signed Jan. 28, limiting union action against the I-J.

Friday, when Bachich's testimony was interrupted by a bomb scare, he had repeatedly said he could not recall whether the union discussed the rally plans late in January and early in February. Today he brought along the minutes he kept of the meetings at which the rally was discussed.

BAY

struction of Richardson Bay, trying to compromise all the efforts of the past," snapped West. "We are abusing the resort-commercial zoning in an attempt to make compromises. I feel this is bad planning."

Attorney Hugh G. Lawrence, representing Arques, declared he would appeal to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for the full 265 berths.

Lawrence argued that 265 berths are allowed under the county's marina ordinance and the Richardson Bay specific plan. He said the planned fingers of the new docks will be far shorter than existing docks.

The other two owners got by with less opposition.

Kappas will be allowed 84 new berths on 5.5 acres at Gate 6, with the main entrance on Yuba Street, almost exactly in line with the Marin City underpass road. He too will provide a landscaped pedestrian-bicycle path along his waterfront. Approval came on a 5 to 1 vote, with West opposing and Dougherty abstaining because he had missed previous discussions on Kappas' application.

Mrs. Tellis won a use permit for 23 houseboats on 2.2 acres of underwater land behind Kappas' property. She will use the same entrance as Kappas on Yuba Street. West was the lone dissenter on the Tellis application.

Houseboat berths approved yesterday all lie between Sausalito city limits to the south and Kappas' Gate 6. Previously approved were 35 berths at Kappas' Gate 6½.

This brings the total number of approved berths to 342, which is almost identical with the 343 houseboats which Planning Director Werner von Gundell estimated are sitting in Richardson Bay now.

If Arques wins his fight for the 65 berths that were lopped off yesterday, the total approved berths would be 407, or 64 more than the total now tied up in Richardson Bay.

Injuries Minor In Auto Crash

A San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a bruised forehead suffered in a one-car accident at 8:20 p.m. near 244 Coleman Drive in San Rafael.

San Rafael police said Kathy N. Brown, 19, of 9 Laurel Place was a passenger in a car driven by Annette L. Crawley, 19, of 125 Edward Street, San Rafael.

The right wheels of the car went into a drainage ditch, and hit a pipe causing the vehicle to lurch across Coleman where it hit a mailbox and railing of a car deck and finally stopped against a tree.

Two Arrested In Pot Probe

A San Francisco man and a Redwood City man were booked into Marin County Jail Sunday on suspicion of possessing marijuana after they were arrested about 4:15 p.m. in Princess Park in Sausalito.

Officers said they observed William Anthony Fries, 22, of San Francisco and Anthony Fred Cavallie, 23, passing a cigarette believed to contain the drug — between them in the park. Police confiscated the cigarette and arrested both men.

Each was free on $500 bail and both are to appear Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Theft Of Two Cars Reported

Two cars have been reported stolen in San Rafael, police said.

A vehicle owned by Brenda Grayson of 248 Union Street, Apt. 5, was taken from a carport at her residence sometime before 9:15 p.m. Friday, she told police. The car was described as a 1968 white Volkswagen with California license WDD 373.

Woman Injured In 101 Crash

A Novato woman was treated today at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for chest bruises suffered in an accident on Highway 101 at Lucky Drive in Corte Madera at 2:05 a.m.

The California Highway Patrol reported Michiko Meier, 38, of 1082 Acme Street, was a passenger in a southbound auto driven by her husband, Henry D. Meier.

Meier told officers his car had a blowout, causing it to swerve into the center divider.

Tree-Saving Pitch In Subdivision

Residents of Marin Highlands and the North Marin unit of the Marin Conservation League last night prevailed on the Novato Planning Commission to try to save trees in the hills of a proposed subdivision.

Approximately 80 persons objected to the plan submitted by Sono-Marin Builders Inc. for the Oaks Unit 2 in the Marin Highland area south of Vineyard Road and west of Sutro Avenue, according to Planning Director Brian W. Mattson. The plan called for cutting the tops of hills, filling in valleys and having pads for 80 houses on 37.5 acres, Mattson said.

The developer and commission agreed to continue the item indefinitely to see if some solution such as cluster housing, could be made to save more of the trees, said Mattson.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved prezoning of land outside the city limits from agriculture to single or multiple family for land north of Novato Boulevard, south of Novato Creek and west of the city limits.

USE PERMITS — Approved the application of McPhail's Inc. for a use permit for an asphalt plant at the northeast corner of Highway 101 and 37, and for Nick Morf for a beer parlor at the Sundown shopping Center east of Highway 101, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

WAREHOUSE — Approved the City of Novato building a warehouse and offices at its corporation yard at the end of Davidson Street.

SOVIET

few days, accusing the United States of trying to sour relations with Moscow.

Continued references among some U.S. officials to the Cuban activity, together with U.S. charges of Russian complicity in Egyptian violations of the Middle East cease-fire, apparently further irritated Soviet officials.

These were said to be partly the reason why Premier Alexei I. Kosygin decided not to attend the United Nations 25th anniversary meeting which starts Wednesday. This ruled out a possible summit conference with President Nixon.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow interpreted Washington's repeated references to the alleged missile base as possibly being based on broader policy considerations, including the Middle East crisis. Throughout, the U.S. officials acknowledged that only dubious and dated information was available to indicate missile sites might be being built.

As recently as Monday, U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird referred to the alleged bases. He told a Pentagon news conference:

"We would look upon the use of Cuba for this purpose as a very serious challenge, and one which does not follow the understandings I believe were comprehended by both sides in 1962." But he stressed the United States had no firm evidence in the case.

The official Soviet government newspaper Izvestia had described such speculation as groundless and said the reports were being circulated by the Nixon administration to seek from Congress "huge allocations for buying the latest type of armaments."

This was followed by today's official statement.

The Soviet government statement said Moscow always adhered to the 1962 Soviet-American agreement and "will adhere to it in the future, too, proceeding from the assumption that the American side will also strictly fulfil this understanding.

"Any assertions on a possible violation by the Soviet Union of the above mentioned understanding through the construction of a naval base in Cuba are a concoction," the statement said.

"It is well known that the Soviet Union, in general, condemns the building of military bases by some states on the territory of other states. More, the Soviet government has repeatedly made specific proposals at relevant UNO agencies and the disarmament committee for the dismantling of foreign military bases on alien territories.

"As for the use of the world ocean, the Soviet Union strictly adheres to operating principles and rules of contemporary international law. If Soviet ships and vessels enter ports of foreign states, including ports of the Republic of Cuba, on official visits and business calls, they do so with the permission of the governments of the states concerned. It is obvious that such calls are an inalienable right of sovereign states, universally recognized and confirmed by many centuries of international practice."

CANADA

side made clear to us their position that Taiwan was an inalienable part of Chinese territory and that this was a principle to which the Chinese government attached the utmost importance.

"Our position, which I have stated publicly and which we made clear to the Chinese from the start of our negotiations, is that the Canadian government does not consider it appropriate either to endorse or to challenge the Chinese government's position on the status of Taiwan.

"This has been our position and it continues to be our position.

"As the communique says, we have taken note of the Chinese government's statement about Taiwan. We are aware that this is the Chinese view and we know the importance they attach to it, but we have no comment to make one way or the other," he told Parliament.

Shortly before the formal announcement, the Nationalist Chinese ambassador to Canada, Yu-Chi Hseuh said he had tried unsuccessfully to persuade Canada not to recognize Red China.

"I have been doing my best to persuade the Canadian government to take good account of a friendship of long standing," he told an airport news conference as he prepared to leave Canada for good.

"Somehow I have failed in this mission.

"I think this will have an adverse effect on the international situation in the East and the Pacific, and will encourage the oppressors of the Chinese people."

Hsueh, who sold his house here several months ago in anticipation of the move, was leaving for New York to join the Nationalist Chinese Mission at the United Nations before returning to Taiwan.

Center Seeking Volunteers To Run Telephones

Both men and women volunteers are needed to train as operators of the Marin Suicide Prevention Center telephone service.

The suicide prevention center directors, headed by president Kathleen (Kay) Lyons, met yesterday at the Civic Center and issued a call for volunteers. About 100 volunteers are needed to run a 24-hour telephone service.

Training will start in November, and target date for opening is Jan. 1. Director Rae S. Taub said if training can be completed in time, the service may open before Christmas. She said volunteers should call the Marin Association for Mental Health at 1368 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Next meeting of the group is set for 4 p.m. Monday at Civic Center.

Driver Reported In Good Shape

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with face and elbow scrapes suffered in an accident at 11 p.m. Saturday on South San Pedro oRad, a mile east of San Rafael High School.

The California Highway Patrol said Richard G. Hennig, of 1720 Grand Aenue, and a companion, Fernando A. Pinto, 21, of 1607 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, were riding east on motorcycles when their machines bumped, causing them to go out of control.

Pinto was treated for cuts on the right leg, the hospital said.

Burglars Back For New Haul

Burglars who robbed a Fairfax residence last Friday apparently weren't satisfied and returned again yesterday.

Fairfax police said $225 worth of personal possessions were taken from the residence of Donn L. Hupp of 365 Scenic Road between 8:45 a.m. and 11:45 p.m. Friday.

Yesterday between 7:35 a.m. and 5:45 p.m., personal possessions valued at $1,121 were taken from the residence.

Police said it appeared to be the same person or persons responsible in both cases.

Hearing Set

A preliminary hearing has been set for Oct. 26 in Marin Municipal Court for Paul Edward Le Clair, 19, of San Anselmo, who is charged with possessing marijuana when arrested Sept. 26 near San Anselmo Memorial Park.

indebtedness not approved by voters.

"You are exposing the taxpayers to a bonding method which permits this county to go into debt without limit," declared Van Dyke. He charged that "gimmick bonds" are not only outside the control of voters but also far more expensive than general obligation bonds. He appealed unsuccessfully for a halt of the bond sale. "You are opening a Pandora's box out of which can only come bigger and bigger tax bills to Marin County taxpayers.

and contents was covered by insurance, but the big question was insurance on the $150,000 Cessna 421 destroyed in the fire, Lipska said.

"The plane was owned by Capital Funding Co., but there is a question of the responsibility of the hangar and tie down on the plane," said Lipska.

The plane has been leased for Senator George Murphy in his campaign and had returned to Gnoss Field from flying the Senator to Sacramento just about an hour before the fire.

The fire did damage estimated at $250,000 to the plane, building and contents, Kidder estimated.

Trustees Take Land Off Market

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District agreed last night to take the Stinson School property off the market for the time being, in the hope the district can obtain a better price for the nine-tenths acre in the future.

Supt. Lester M. Horning said the board acted after two bids on the land, received in September, fell far short of the $12,000 appraised value.

The school board also authorized the superintendent to sell 60 excess desks the district has at a price to be determined by Horning.

School Burglary

Rockefeller Party Given For Goodell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has strengthened his demand that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew stay out of New York Republican politics by again boosting the election bid of Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

The Senate GOP leadership pitched in too.

Goodell, who has been labeled a "radical liberal" by the vice president in an effort to purge him from the party, circulated smiling among the $25-a-head crowd Monday night, showing off his Agnew wristwatch.

The cocktail party raised $10,000 to help Goodell, who is running third behind Conservative Party candidate James Buckley and Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger in the polls. The fund-raising event was held at Rockefeller's 37-acre Washington estate.

Last week Rockefeller asked President Nixon to cool down Agnew's rhetoric and to keep him out of New York plitics.

Rockefeller could not attend Monday night's function. Agnew was campaigning in Texas.

In New York, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Arthur J. Goldberg fired two campaign workers Monday who were in a crowd of hecklers who threw eggs at Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller during a rally.

Goldberg met Rockefeller at a parade three hours later and personally apologized.

The Goldberg aides were identified as Peter Smith, a former campaign aide to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Arnold Seggara, a former aide to Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Goldberg, who was described as "distressed" over the incident, also sent a telegram to the governor which said: "I knew nothing about this until after the event. I do not condone and I apologize for it. I deplore any interference in free speech."

The "event" occurred in the Lower East Side where Rockefeller had hopped atop an abandoned car to speak to some 100 persons who had been questioning and heckling him.

The governor, seeking an unprecedented fourth term, was not hit by the eggs.

U.N. Under Tight Ring For Birthday

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— An undeclared strike by U.N. security guards and telephone operators ended today and the world body returned to work setting up massive security measures for the 50 or more heads of state arriving for the 25th anniversary session.

The Assembly begins work Wednesday and the heads of state will speak during the next 11 days. One of the speakers will be President Nixon, but Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin decided not to come, ruling out a summit meeting with Nixon.

SECURITY NEEDS

The need for strict security measures was pointed up by remarks in a prepared speech by William C. Sullivan, top assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, that the radical Weatherman organization and "other anarchistic groups" might try to kidnap visiting government leaders.

The statement was in his prepared text but he omitted it when he delivered the speech Monday to the annual UPI editors and publishers conference at Williamsburg, Va.

In addition to the speeches there will be private discussions on matters such as the Middle East problem. The Big Four foreign ministers will be here— Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left Moscow today for New York.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrives Thursday night and will remain through Oct. 23, the day Nixon speaks. Rogers will meet privately with many of the foreign ministers present including Gromyko.

CALL IN SICK

Nearly one-third of the U.N. guards and more than one half of the U.N. telephone operators called in sick Monday to dramatize demands for more money and better promotion policies. The guard walkout temporarily jeopardized the security arrangements.

A spokesman said the men returned although their grievances have not yet been satisfied and are still being discussed. He said "only a couple" of telephone operators were still out sick.

P-TA Board Upset Over Program Cuts

The Mill Valley School District board last night received a letter from the Mill Valley Council of Parent-Teacher Associations complaining about program cuts made necessary by a budget pinch.

"We feel that the reassignment of personnel, the cuts in instructional expenses and supplies, and the reduction of maintenance and repair seriously hamper the fine educational program we wish for the children of the Mill Valley district," the P-TA said in its letter.

It called for complaining to the state about the elimination of the reading specialist program. Joyce Ladar of 30 Keats Drive said this was "the thing that was lamented most."

It also suggested reinstating the county audio-visual contract and the volunteer-aide coordinator although it did not say how to accomplish these goals.

The P-TA did have a method of retaining the outdoor education program, summer school and bussing: make the users pay.

However, Trustee Joseph E. Bodovitz wondered if such a set-up wouldn't signal the demise of free education.

"I'm reluctant to push for the frame of mind where we expect parents to pick up the tab," he said.

A letter complaining of state cutbacks was authorized, but no other action was taken on the letter.

Trustees Stop Short In Naming Student To Board

The Mill Valley School board last night extended open arms to district students, but stopped short of embracing a youth as an ex-oficio trustee.

Tempering a suggestion by Paul M. Cohen, a member of the Marin County Youth Commission, who called for student representation on the board, the trustees decided instead to invite the student council of Edna Maguire Middle School to a meeting and to solicit comment from them on how best to represent student wishes.

"Let them know that what Paul has done tonight doesn't take some kind of Congressional action," said trustee John H. Cutler.

Cohen pointed out that the Marin County oBard of Supervisors has passed a resolution calling for youth representation on boards dealing with youth.

"The youth commission feels that it is necessary for students to be represented so they don't feel oppressed and put down and they don't have any say about what is going on," Cohen said.

Trustee John G. Eliot said, "Kids should have as much access to this board as they want," but stopped short of suggesting one become a board member.

He and Cutler suggested opening channels of communication before considering adding a member if students want one.

Trustee Joseph E. Bodovitz said allowing one ex-oficio member would set a precedent for allowing others.

The Mill Valley School District Board Also:

ARTICULATION — Authorized four hours of release time for two to four Edna Maguire Middle School teachers to explain the school's programs to Tamalpais High School teachers in an articulation of teaching ideas, but delayed decision on allowing time off for more extensive inter-school exchanges pending estimates of the cost of substitute teachers.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $4,000 from Neil Smith of Mill Valley for fire safety improvements to schools.

SALARY GROUP — Appointed Glenn Skelton, Maguire principal, and Cutler to the long range salary study committee.

TRANSFERS — Approved transfer of the daughter of Marilyn Ward, address not given, from the Mill Valley district to the Sausalito district and the transfer of Kara Westerman, third grade daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Westerman of 500 Turney Street, Sausalito, from the Sausalito to the Mill Valley district.

LEAVES — Granted leaves to the end of the semester to librarian Ethyl Manheimer for one day a week and to Tamalpais Valley School teacher Madelaine Carner.

CLOSED SESSION — Met in closed session to instruct its agents on negotiations with employees.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to a special meeting Friday at 8 p.m. to discuss options open for the multi-purpose building of the new Middle School and possibly awarding of contract.

Two Suspects Arraigned In Robbery Of Pool Hall

Two Santa Rosa men were arraigned yesterday in Marin Municipal Court on charges of armed robbery and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon stemming from the holdup of a San Rafael Pool hall owner friday.

Due to return to court today to enter pleas were Gilbert Allan Fullam, 25, and John Douglas Renda, 26.

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. Set their bail at $10,000 each yesterday after learning that both men are on probation for earlier offenses.

The men were arrested after a chase from San Rafael to the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road where they abandoned a car.

They reportedly held up George E. Lefevre, owner of George's Recreation Parlor as he got out of his parked car, and grabbed a bag containing $19,000. They are also accused of firing two shots at pursuers as they fled.

Four Drivers Sentenced

Childhood Isolation Held Key To Drug Use

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Youngsters who felt isolated from age five or six until puberty are most likely to take to mind-bending drugs, a researcher reports after a five-year study in the Haight-Ashbury Distirct.

Dr. Stephen M. Pittel, whose Haight - Ashbury Research Project is funded by the National Institute of Mental Health, made his observations Monday after a close study of 200 regular psychedelic drug users.

"A common factor in all of them is a very, very early impoverishment in their relations with other people," the psychologist declared. "And so they have difficulty later in forming enduring lasting relations with other people."

"There is an early deprivation in mother-child relations and in family relations," he continued. "There are many variations on this theme, but it is always present."

During the period before adolescence, many youngsters have what psychologists call a "latent period" when they move away from the clutches of their family and develop peer relations, interests in athletics and certain skills, he continued.

Not having that respite, he said, often leads to drugs and continued isolation from children their own age.

One drug-using youngster interviewed had been forced to take piano lessons as a way of escaping a ghetto and consequently had no close friends among his schoolmates.

Others Dr. Pittel said "are too bright, too aware, too sensitive."

Those "can't find anyone they can share their world with. They have an embarrassment of riches," he added.

Former Deputy Testifies On Why He Shot Protester

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A former sheriff's deputy contends it would not have been practical to arrest a man he shot during Berkeley's "Peoples' Park" riot.

Lawrence Riche, now a truck driver, testified Monday that Allan Francke, 26, had a rock in his hand during the rioting and "I was lerry of him . . . I thought he had plans to throw the rock."

It would not have been practical to make an arrest, he continued, because there was "no place to put him in custody."

"So, you shot him," prosecutor Jerry Cimmet asked.

"Yes, sir."

"You could have walked toward him and moved him down the street," Cimmet asserted.

"That was not a good idea," the onetime Alameda County deputy replied.

"It was a better idea to shoot him," Cimmet asked.

"Yes, sir."

Riche also said he fired when it became "obvious" Francke was not going to leave the scene where the deputy was protecting another deputy who had been struck by rocks while operating a "pepper-fogger" gas-spewing machine.

"I aimed low, at his buttock area," Riche said. "He grabbed his buttocks and ran."

Francke was also hit on a hand and two men in the area were wounded by the firing. They are Clarence Edson, 44, a painting contractor, and Richard Ehrenberger, 35, an architect.

Riche is on trial in Federal Court, charged with viclating the civil rights of the men he fired on.

Arnie Bingham, the deputy who operated the "pepper-fogger," said he had been hit by two or three missiles.

The "Peoples' Park" riot started when the University of California tried to bar street people from a volunteer park they had built on a school-owned vacant lot.

Women Voted Draft Exempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted, 36 to 33, today to exempt women from the draft in any constitutional amendment to extend to them equality with men.

The amendment to the proposed constitutional amendment on women's rights was proposed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a leading opponent of the entire rights proposal. The vote brought from Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., the principal sponsor, a prediction that adoption of the antidraft provision "will be a major step toward killing the amendment."

Bayh and other backers said any change in the amendment from the form in which it passed the House would doom chances of final congressional approval this year.

Probation Given In Pot Case

James Daniel Dexter, 23, of San Francisco, has been placed on probation for one year and given a 90-day duspended jail sentence by Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court for possessing marijuana July 6 at Stinson Beach.

Dexter, who was told by the judge to refrain from the use of drugs and alcohol, was arrested after a former narcotics bureau chief said he saw what appeared to be a pot party in front of his house on the beach.

Fine, Probation In Grass Case

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein of Marin Municipal Court has placed Paul Howard Fleischer, 23, of Berkeley, on probation for one year and fined him $50 for a misdemeanor charge of possessing marijuana.

Fleischer had changed his plea to guilty after the charge against him was reduced to a misdemeanor.

He was arrested on Highway 101 July 22 after a drug agent saw him sharing a reefer while driving down the highway.

The other man, Gordon Lee Shopp, 19, of Monte Rio, is awaiting sentencing after pleading guilty to being in a place where marijuana is used.

No Charge Is Filed In Hitchhiker Case

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Stuart Henry Greene, 22-year-old San Francisco hitchhiker arrested Sunday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs.

The case is still under investigation by the district attorney's office, who plan to have the 14 homemade tablets taken from Greene analyzed.

Marinwood Firemen Reject Juvenile Hall

The Marinwood Fire Commission last night rejected a request from Marin County that the Juvenile Hall and its property on Lucas Valley Road be annexed to the fire district.

According to Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield, the request was the second received from the county. The hall is currently in Marin County Fire Department jurisdiction.

Bonfield said he was directed to draft a letter explaining the district's refusal and listing improvements needed before the district will accept fire protection responsibility.

Bonfield said the county first requested the annexation in June 1969 but was turned down because Juvenile Hall has an inadequate water supply system and the Marinwood Fire Department is understaffed to accept the new area.

In a letter addressed to the county administrator's office following the first request, Bonfield said he listed the need for an additional man for his force, at a cost of $11,200; county installation of an adequate water system at the hall, at a cost of about $44,000; improvements to buildings; fire district approval of future buildings at the site and adequate access to all buildings.

Bonfield said today the county has not complied with any of his earlier suggestions in its second request submitted in September.

He said he was directed by the commisssion last night to draft a second letter reiterating the points made in his first.

The commission also agreed to budget for an additional firefighter next year.

Innocent Pleas Entered In San Diego Bribery Scandal

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Eight public officials, including Mayor Frank Curran and Assemblyman Tom Hom, pleaded innocent today to felony charges of bribery and conspiracy relating to fare increases for Yellow Cab Inc., of San Diego.

Superior Court Judge Leland C. Neilsen set trial dates of Dec. 7 for seven of the officials and Nov. 30 for the eighth, County Supervisor Jack Walsh. A ninth defendant, businessman Robert Covell, refused to waive receipt of a transcript of the indictment and will be arraigned next Monday.

All were released on their own recognizance.

Neilsen agreed to set Hom's trial date to a period prior to the Nov. 3 election, but his attorney said he did not think he could prepare in time. The judge said he would leave open the right to make a motion for a speedier trial.

Hom Monday complained that the charges came just before election time and he would not have a chance to defend himself before then.

Curran's attorney asked that his trial be delayed because of lack of time to prepare.

"It would be best to get these matters disposed of as soon as possible," Neilsen said, but he also left open the right to make a later motion.

Walsh was granted a different trial date because his attorney said his case is unreleated to the others. Walsh and Covell are charged only with not listing Pratt or Yellow Cab company as campaign contributors. Covell was campaign treasurer for County Supervisor Harry Scheidle.

All 70 seats in the courtroom were filled, and the aisles were jammed with onlookers.

Curran; Hom, R-San Diego; Councilman Allen Hitch, Mike Schaefer and Floyd Morrow; and Scheidle are accused of accepting bribes from Charles Pratt, president of Yellow Cab Inc., of San Diego, in return for favorable votes on a rate increase that hiked taxi fares 22 per cent in 1967.

All six, as well as Councilman Helen Cobb, also are charged with conspiring to "pervert and obstruct" justice and with allegedly agreeing not to report campaign contributions from Pratt.

Co-Chairmen For Bonds Named

Supervisor-elect Arnold Baptiste and Rev. Lloyd Gebhart will be cochairmen of the citizens bond committee for the $5.5 million sewer bond, Mgr.-Engineer Charles A. Joseph reported last night to the Novato Sanitary District board.

Other subcommittee chairmen are John Stuber, finance; Edward W. Adams, speakers; Ross Tankersley, business community; Evelyn Johnson endorsement, and Dr. Robert M. Dougherty, treasurer.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the conference room of the Bank of Marin at Grant Avenue and Fifth Street.

The board approved a land exchange with the city of Novato to square the boundary of the district land and that of the city's corporation yard at the end of Davidson Street. The district gave 9,600 square feet to the city and the city gave 5,200 square feet of land to the district in the exchange.

Lucas Valley Hit By Cable Break; Terra Linda, Too

Trouble in an underground power cable yesterday blacked out more than 1,900 homes in Lucas Valley and Terra Linda and delayed a lot of suppers.

The cable in Lucas Valley failed at 4:45 p.m. Most homes had power again an hour later, but it was 8:45 before the last lights went on again, according to Leonard O. Robertson, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The blackout had a freak aftermath in the kitchen of the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda, at 6:37 p.m. Ventilator fans over the stoves failed to come on again when power was restored. As heat increased in the hoods above the stoves, fire protection devices triggered themselves and sprayed dry chemicals all over the kitchen, according to San Rafael firemen.

Electrical Implant Device Curbing Pain

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Development of a device that reportedly brings relief from chronic, disabling pain by sending electrical impulses along the spinal cord has been announced by researchers at Case Western Reserve University.

In making the announcement Monday, the university said the device in tests has usefully replaced drugs in the treatment of terminal lung cancer, disabling backache, and multiple sclerosis.

It consists of a pocket-sized radio transmitter and a receiver, about the size of a half-dollar, which is implanted under the skin in the upper back near the spine.

The electrodes send a series of impulses along the spinal cord, stimulating the large nerve endings and masking the pain carried by the nervous system.

The university said some 23 neurosurgeons are studying the effectiveness of the device in curbing chronic disabling pain in their patients.

Chief developers of the device are J. Thomas Mortimer, assistant professor of biomedical engineering; and Dr. C. Norman Shealy, formerly on the staff of the school of medicine and now with the Dunderson Clinic in La Crosse, Wis.

Calley Defense In Direct Westmoreland Accusation

FORT BENNING, Ga. (UPI) —A defense attorney charged today that Gen. William C. Westmoreland permitted the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to save himself from possibly being brought to trial in the alleged My Lai massacre case.

Defense attorney George W. Latimer said there was sufficient legal precedent so that Westmoreland could have known he himself could be charged with the alleged massacre, since he was commander of U. S. forces in Vietnam at the time it is said to have occurred.

Latimer said if he were Westmoreland, "I would think, 'I'm going to do everything in my power to keep them from hanging me.' I think Gen. Westmoreland did just that, and I think he is still doing it."

". . . Gen. Westmoreland is under a cloud," Latimer said. "His actions give an appearance of evil."

Latimer further contended that since Westmoreland had a personal interest in the matter, he acted illegally in ordering Calley's court-martial.

The developments came during a preliminary hearing for Calley, accused of the murder of 102 South Vietnamese civilians at the hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Westmoreland ordered Calley charged Nov. 24, 1969, after he had returned from Vietnam and been named Army chief of staff.

"I would think I would have many sleepless nights if I had the sword of Yamashita hanging over my head," Latimer said. He referred to Japanese General Tomoyuki Yamashita, who was put to death for crimes committed by his troops during World War II.

Westmoreland last month was accused by another My Lai defendant, Spec. 4 Esequiel Torres, of having the overall responsibility for everyone under his command and their actions.

Latimer said it was common knowledge that a large number of atrocities had been committed in Vietnam by friendly forces, including Americans, prior to the My Lai incident and Westmoreland should have made himself apprised of this and taken corrective measures.

"It was his responsibility to get out and find out what was going on," Latimer said.

Latimer said an inspection team went out in the field in Vietnam and discovered that approximately 50 per cent of the U. S. forces in combat areas were not versed in rules of warfare and had not been briefed on how to handle prisoners of war.

"I'm not here to execute Gen. Westmoreland," Latimer said, adding that he did not agree with the ruling in the Yamashita case.

But he said the knowledge of this case might well have influenced Westmoreland's decision in bringing the My Lai charges.

Earlier the defense charged that potential defense witnesses were refusing to talk with defense attorneys and asked access to testimony given before the House Armed Services Committee.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

Breakdown Of Salaries For College Of Marin

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils and of school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives, pleading for large pay increases, cited the rising cost of living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin as of the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, are being published by the Independent-Journal during the next few weeks as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

No Mailing For Old Eyeglasses

Persons wishing to donate old eyeglasses to the Marin County Optometric Society's "Share Old Spectacles" campaign should not mail them, as asked in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Rather, the glasses should be taken to the office of any California Optometric Association member. There a tax deductable receipt will be given for the donation, according to optometrist James C. Earnest, public information chairman.

The donated glasses will be professionally checked and rated, then shipped overseas for distribution to the needy.

Good things come in little oak barrels.

What makes a brandy smooth?
Mostly, it's the wood the brandy is aged in. That's why the best barrels are small ones which allow close contact between wood and liquor.

as the division of authority (reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal) in the dispute a year ago between Dr. Clyde G. Miller, former head of the county's mental health services, and Dr. Donald P. Wilson, former director of the mental health center. Both lost their jobs in the fight.

How they differed as to their respective roles and — equally important — as to the kinds of programs at the center is evident in their comments made the other day.

Dr. Miller: There is a common misconception among many people that a community mental health center is a building. It's not. It is a group of five services — inpatient, outpatient, partial care emergency care and mental health education. By this standard Marin County had a mental health center in operation four years in advance of the construction of the building now commonly referred to as the mental health center.

In 1968, Dr. Wilson thought he was coming to Marin to organize a mental health center, or services. Actually he was coming to operate an existing program housed in a new facility. Those services had previously been dispersed at various locations.

Wilson was led by people discontented with the existing program — to believe he was organizing mental health center services.

His only responsibility in this area was to design inpatient and partial care service, previously on a very small scale, and to supervise operation of the center's other services.

He didn't see the center's role as part of a larger, countywide program which included services not offered by the center. Neither the supervisors nor the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board ever clarified what the role was to be.

Dr. Wilson: There are those in the mental health community who assume that there are standard ways of running mental health programs.. And there are, but they have been done for a good many years and they are not being very effective.

So as a community psychiatrist, I feel I'm dead if there is not room to experiment. Nobody is doing anything today in a way that is more than promising.

One of the first problems encountered was inheriting Dr. Miller staff in children's services. They were not coping with patients' problems in a way that made any sense at all. They were not practicing a brand of psychiatry that made sense and yet they were a homogenous group of people who were determined they had one of the best children's services in the country. That service could not be changed without getting rid of the entire staff.

The place that reflected me and my methods were the inpatient and day treatment services. They were brand new and were part of the center I was responsible for developing from scratch as far as starting and creating a style of delivering services.

These delivery methods were opposed by those in psychiatry who cling to a professional image. To maintain that image, they have to keep assumptions going that there are ways of doing things that only they as professionals, know how to do.

Wilson, interviewed the other day, said the children's staff had been running its program, developed by Miller, according to what he termed a "classical model." Such a program, he said dispensed psychiatric treatment for a child much in the manner of medical treatment.

This involved, he said, examining a child, watching him in a playroom, performing some psychological testing, talking to his parents, getting a history of his growth pattern and putting this information together and arriving at a diagnosis and treatment plan.

Wilson said he had eight years experience with this treatment method before coming to Marin and had "discovered not a hell of a lot ever occurred." He said his experience showed parents didn't get the help they wanted for their children and the children never seemed to change much under such an approach.

"It's a medical model and I don't buy it," said Wilson adding that mental health programs had to facilitate growth in an individual not simply treat for disease.

He suggested instead that the entire family be diagnosed and dealt with, not just the child.In this way, he said, the program can help the family "find more effective ways of getting what they want from one another."

To this end, according to observers, Wilson tried last October to integrate the center's adult and child service staffs.

The childen's staff objected. Miller claimed Wilson was trying to reprogram the two functions which under the county contract was the county's prerogative. Wilson countered he was simply initiating staff changes which was within the scope of his position as head of the mental health center.

The staffs remained separate and continue so today since the supervisors and hospital district board overruled Wilson at the height of the controversy.

Dr. James D. Green, president of the Marin Psychiatric Society, said the other day he felt children's services "was performing extremely well" under Miller's set up.

"Some modifications could have been made," he said, "but the favored treatment in handling children is the one-to-one (doctor-patient) relationahip." Limitations on manpower and money, however, have made impractical emphasizing the child and providing each child a pyschiatrist, he conceded.

Other areas of disagreement, Green said, centered around the staff structuring of the center's inpatient and partial care services.

He pointed to admission of patients under private care (as opposed to county patients) as an example.

"The conventional role of a medical staff, that is, doctors telling nurses and nurses telling technicians was eliminated (by Wilson) in inpatient and day care services," he said. "Everything was on a first-name basis. There was an effort to blur the lines of authority and identity. This was the basis of professional objection."

Green said that with this equality of positions within the center, it was not unlikely to have a nurse tell a doctor his (private) patient was not suitable for admission.

"Doctors are used to saying when their patients will be admitted," he said, "not having a nurse tell them."

Wilson said he established the services in that manner to facilitate operation by doing away with the usual preoccupation among staffs with the proverbial "pecking-order." First names were used, dress was casual and staff members had the responsibility of saying what they thought. This approach was superimposed on the psychiatric treatment of patients. It was a move, Wilson said, to set up a community of equals, and improve patient treatment through improving staff working conditions. He deemed it successful.

His informal approach remains in effect.

Dr. Miller said contrary to rumor he didn't object to Wilson's program, per se. "I could never find out what was going on," he said, blaming Wilson for failing to forward program description information.

Dr. John R. Guerrant, interim center director, and a candidate for the permanent post, said yesterday the programs established by Miller and Wilson at the center have not been changed substantially.

"We are initating just as few changes as possible to keep the program running until the (director's position is filled," he said.

While none of the selection committee members would give any indication of the type of director they are seeking — one with Wilson's philosophy or one with Miller's — it appears his success will depend on his ability to develop programs agreeable to a large segment of the mental health community.

Without complete program restructuring this may prove to be the only means of averting another mental health struggle like last year's. And it may prove to be the only means of overcoming the pitfalls created by division of responsibilities between supervisors and hospital board.

Study Asks Ban On Lagoon Development

A moratorium should be imposed on development in the Bolinas Lagoon Watershed, except within Bolinas and Stinson Beach communities, the Conservation Foundation recommended today in a 32-page report to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Conservation Foundation is a private, nonprofit corporation interested in saving environment. It had offered to make the Bolinas study without-charge, and the county accepted.

Arthur A. Davis of Washington, D. C., vice president of the foundation, and a team of consultants headed by David W. Walker submitted a series of recommendations to "protect beautiful Bolinas Lagoon from overdevelopment and environmental decay."

Other recommendations made by the foundation include:

1. An interim environmental zoning ordinance should be adopted to regulate development while planning is under way.

2. The lagoon should be protected as a wildlife refuge.

3. Fishing, canoeing, hiking, sailing, nature education and picnicking would be compatible with environmental protection. Hunting should be banned and so should motor boating, except in the passage from the berthing area in Bolinas to the channel mouth.

4. An ocean outfall line should be built for the area's sewerage system to control pollution .

5. No logging under current practices should be allowed. A sedimentation control program should be set up for residential development.

County supervisors accepted the report to be included in the county's current study of Bolinas Lagoon and its future.

Paternity Suit Against Sinatra

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Frank Sinatra Jr. has been named as the father of a 6-month-old boy in a paternity suit filed by a Las Vegas woman in U.S. District Court.

Carol Sue Edmondston claimed in the suit Sinatra was the father of her son, Victor, born in Chicago in April.

The suit asked Sinatra be declared the father and that he pay all expenses of the birth and support until the child reaches the age of 21.

Sinatra, reached at a Las Vegas hotel where he is appearing, said "this is impossible. There are no grounds for such an allegation."

TELEVISION AND CHILDREN: A HANDICAP?

ASHLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The amount of time a youngster spends watching television may limit his ability to communicate later in life, a psychiatrist and author suggested Monday.

Dr. Albert Glasser, author of the best-selling "Schools Without Failure" and "Reality Therapy," was keynote speaker to the Oregon elementary Principals Association convention.

"Young people have learned to value themselves excessively and television has had a profound effect on them," he said.

He said when children sit and watch TV there is a loss of "human interaction" which limits their ability to handle "the social skills of living."

Pickers Protest Picking Machines

HOLLISTER (UPI) — Pinot Chardonnay and Pinot Blanc grapes hung from their vines today at the 4,000-acre Almaden Vineyards—unpicked because of a labor dispute.

Some 300 pickers, all members of Cesar Chavez' AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, walked off their jobs protesting the use of three picking machines.

Woman, 85, Discovered Dead In Mill Valley Home

An elderly widow, grief-stricken by the death of her sister in a fire last week, died yesterday at her Mill Valley home.

Miriam A. Steimer, 85, apparently had taken an overdose of barbiturates, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. Her body was found by a neighbor at 8:30 a.m. in her apartment at 14 Evergreen Avenue.

A note found in Mrs. Steimer's apartment indicated, according to Madigan, that she had taken her life because of despondency over ill health and the death of her sister, Edna McGriff, 84, who perished Friday in a fire at her Homestead Valley home.

Mrs. Steimer was born in Latvia and came to California 75 years ago. She lived in various parts of the state and at one time operated a restaurant in Santa Barbara. She moved to Marin 30 months ago.

Air Pollution Panel To View Its Public Image

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors will take a look at how the district looks to the public in a "workshop" meeting at 10 a.m. on Friday in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The discussion of the district's image, and its attitude toward the public, was set in the wake of reports by two Stanford University groups critical of the district's performance.

Also on the agenda is discussion of how to improve relations between the directors and the staff, and between the directors and the advisory council.

Other discussion items include possible new regulations on emissions of lead, odors and carbon monoxide, and a review of new state laws that may give the district broader power to control emissions from motor vehicles.

Sun Valley Park Smeared With Paint

Vandals took paint from a caretaker's building and smeared three large areas of Sun Valley Park on Solano Street Saturday night, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A passer-by reported seeing three girls and a boy in their early teens in the park shortly after 10 p.m.; it was too dark to obtain any description. Police said the door to the men's restroom also was kicked in.

Computer Health Information Plan On Drawing Board

A computerized health information and referral service for Marin County is now on the drawing boards of California Regional Medical Programs Area I, a local planning committee has announced.

Although it might not be open for a year, the planning committee headed by Vivian Malmstrom of Novato is looking for public participation. Informing health-related agencies is also necessary, according to the planners.

The center will provide a computerized referral service for those seeking medical care of any sort and information on all facets of health.

Those interested in further information or in participating in planning should contact Sandra Halldorson, planning officer for the Area I programs, University of California Medical Center, 745 Parnassus Street, San Francisco.

Homeowners Help To Halt Mobile Homes Near Base

Air Force and North Marin homeowners ganged up yesterday to shoot down a new mobile home park planned just to the north of the Hamilton Air Force Base runway.

They convinced the Marin County Planning Commission that noise and danger from the Hamilton jets would make life miserable and unsafe for residents of a new mobile home park planned by Marvin Soiland and Associates of Bel Marin Keys.

Soiland planned 215 mobile homes on 32 acres of his 250-acre Novato Industrial Park, located to the south and east of Bel Marin Keys Boulevard.

Hugh Dougherty, John Hageman, Eugene R. Trombley, Margaret Azevedo and John F. West rejected the mobile home rezoning. Walter F. Freitas and Jack G. Nixon favored it. They declared the new mobile home park, which would be adjacent to the existing Las Robles Mobile Home Park, would be no worse off than residents of Bel Marin Keys or those living alongside freeway noises.

With the mobile home park deleted from the Novato Industrial Park, planning commissioners put off action on the industrial park itself until Nov. 9 so that Soiland can present a revised master plan.

Soiland's attorney, Albert Bianchi, brought in two accoustical experts to refute the Air Force charge that a mobile home under the flight path would be untenable.

Acoustical consultans Dariel Fitzroy and Billy D. Dobbs said they took a series of sound tests and found the noise at the mobile home site to be less than 100 decibels.

"The statement that this would result in hearing damage is utterly without foundation," declared Fitzroy.

Dobbs said the hill between the runway and the mobile home site muffles much of the sound, and trucks along Highway 101 would create as much noise as a jet takeoff.

Their findings were backed by four residents of Las Robles Mobile Home Park, who reported the aircraft have not disturbed them at all during their more than a year of residence near the flight path.

But the Air Force stuck to its guns. Capt. Reford Reid, acoustical specialist, reported he found sound intensities of 101 decibels at Las Robles Mobile Home Park and 119 decibels along Bel Marin Keys Boulevard. He said 90 to 95 decibels are enough to start causing hearing damage.

Clarence M. Ogle, real property officer at Hamilton Field, announced that 5,200 aircraft fly in and out of Hamilton each month. This means 173 flights per day, or one each eight minutes.

The officers said the Novato Industrial Park would be fine, but they would object strongly to mobile homes.

Several spokesmen from North Marin also opposed the mobile homes while approving the industrial park concept.

They included Novato Planning Director Brian Mattson; Evelyn Johnson, representing the North Marin Federation of Homeowners and the Loma Verde Homeowners Association, and Marie Kniveton of Bel Marin Keys.

High Speed Train Project Reprieved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Transportation Department has agreed to a temporary extension of the high-speed turbo train project between New York and Boston.

The agreement under which the project operates was to expire Oct. 22, but there was no indication how long the extension would last. Secretary John Volpe said the extra time would allow the government and the Penn Central Railroad to work out a new agreement.

Five Days Given In Battery Case

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court has placed Kenneth Vernon Ross, 25, of San Francisco, on probation for two years and sentenced him to five days in jail for a charge of battery upon a police officer.

Ross, who had first been charged with a felony charge of battery, later pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor count of the same offense.

Ross tried to hit a California Highway Patrol officer while being taken into custody July 15 in Lagunitas after he was seen walking on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard clad only in a jacket.

Ross told a probation officer that he had unknowingly ingested something like LSD before the incident.

Court Approves 'In God We Trust'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The United States is legally warranted to inscribe its coins and currency with "In God We Trust," a federal appellate court ruled Monday.

The decision in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth District upheld Judge Lloyd H. Burke in U.S. District Court, who refused in 1968 to call a three-judge court to test the phrase's constitutionality.

Stefan Ray Aronow, of Woodland, Calif., brought the suit, contending the phrase on coins violates the Constitution's First Amendment, which says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . ."

Pub-Inn Hangs On In 4-3 Vote Victory

An English pub and wayside inn, planned at the entrance to Muir Beach, squeaked by the Marin County Planning Commission last night over widespread protest from residents of the beach community. (Another planning commission story, page 1)

Planning commissioners voted 4-3 to rezone 20,000 square feet of property at the corner of Shoreline Highway and Pacific Way from residential to resort-commercial.

The owner, Charles Felix, wants to put in a Tudor-style county inn with a tavern on the first floor and six hotel rooms upstairs.

Walter F. Freitas, Eugene R. Trombley, John Hageman and Jack G. Nixon voted for the rezoning. Margaret Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, and John F. West dissented.

The decision must go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for final action. A delegation of Muir Beach residents said they would fight the rezoning before the supervisors because they fear the rezoning would open the door for other commercial enterprises.

Felix and two supporters, plus a half a dozen opponents represented by attorney Gil Medeiros sat through a marathon hearing until 9 p.m. to get the decision.

Felix presented a map showing the bulk of the landowners in Muir Beach supporting his English pub. He said 27 old-time landowners are in favor, whereas the oppoents are "renters and transients."

But Medeiros and Leslie Smith, Muir Beach engineer, countered with another map and figures showing that 52 of the 68 homes in Muir Beach are "opposed to any kind of commercial zoning."

Among other speakers opposing the rezoning were Kathryn Bakhtiar, a director of the Muir Beach Community Services District; Sonja Thompson, representing the Sierra Club; Katherine Arnold of Mill Valley, representing the Marin chapter of Zero Population Growth; and two individual residents of Muir Beach.

Opponents argued that if Felix won a rezoning, adjacent landowners would also apply for commercial, and the natural atmosphere of the beach community would be destroyed.

Two backers of Felix said the community needs a place where residents can socialize, enjoy beer or wine, and perhaps pick up small grocery items.

The planning commissioners wound up a 12-hour day at 9:15 p.m. by approving plans for a new administration building at the Guide Dogs for the Blind Incorporated at 350 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael.

Indians Buy Boat, It Stops, Sinks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 63-foot boat that sank in San Francisco Bay while en route to the Lummi Indian Tribe in the State of Washington is up for sale today "as is."

Tribesmen had acquired the Miss Behavior as surplus from the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries in San Diego and were sailing her north when she developed electrical trouble.

Its crew of five left the vessel here, expecting the Navy to move her north and unaware that she had a small leak around the propeller shaft.

When she was raised, it was determined that water damage repairs would cost $35,000, well above the insurance carried by the Indians.

Hearing Slated For Three In Cocaine Case

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 3 in Marin Municiapl Court for four men arrested Sept. 15 in connection with an alleged $6,200 sale of cocaine.

Hess was also charged recently in Santa Clara County with three felony drug offenses.

THE FORMER HOME of the McNear family at 121 Knight Drive in Glenwood is the reason that a group of members of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer parish will have a house tour in the Peacock Gap, Bayside Acres and Glenwood area on Thursday. Proceeds from the 1 to 4 p.m. tour will be used to aid in restoration of the old home, which is now the church parish house. It also provides low-cost housing San Francisco Theological Seminary students and their families, who serve as caretakers. Downstairs church activities and community groups' meetings keep the house busy.

A House Tour To Restore An Old Home

"It really began with a phone call from Jolly Rogers Chapter of the Children's Home Society asking if they could use our parish house for their Haunted House this year, "Mrs. Angus Dun Jr. says.

"We thought we'd better take a second look at the old place."

That's when Mrs. Dun, the wife of the vicar of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, and members of the parish decided they'd better do something to restore the parish house, formerly the McNear family home, at 121 Knight Drive in Glenwood.

The home, built earlier but rebuilt as "earthquake proof" in 1906, now houses the church Sunday school classes, some San Francisco Theological Seminary students and their families, and activities given by the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Glenwood School Parent-Teacher Association, Smoke Watchers and the YWCA day camps. The basement is the church's salvage shop.

"It's the only community center we really have in Glenwood," Mrs. Dun says. She figures that it will take some $7,000 to really refurnish the four-story brick and wood home, which also has unheated serv-

A BLENDING OF modern style and the natural setting is a trademark the late Frank Lloyd Wright's architecture, and the Bayside Acres home of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adams faithfully reflects the influence of Wright on its architect, Gary L. Tucker. The house, built in 1961, is set on the brow of a hill overlooking the north bay and McNear's Point. Redwood glass and brick is carried from exterior to the interior of the house. A freeform pool is set below the house, and on the hilltop a sitting area is located in the oak trees.

Marin Women

ANTIQUES AND family heirlooms dating the from early American history are among the possessions of Mrs. Fred Vogel of Peacock Gap, whose home will be on the tour Thursday. Here she displays a silver service that was a gift to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cornell, in 1868. Among the other interesting articles in a hall cabinet is Faith Vogel's silver pitcher made by John Myer of Philadelphia in 1773 and passed through her family from Dennis Cornell. Framed near the cabinet is a ship's certificate signed by George Washington for one of her family's fleet of ships.

Indian Women To Form Action Corps Oct. 31

Prominent Indian women from the United States, Canada and Alaska's reservation and urban areas will meet in San Francisco on Oct. 32 to form a native American Indian women's organization designed to strengthen the Indian family. The temporary name will be the National Indian Women's Action Group of NIWAC.

NIWAC's first general assembly, including approval of interim officers and the constituion, workshop and discussiions about objectives and procedures, will be held at the San Francisco American Indian Center, 225 Valencia Street, rom 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Any Indian woman may become a member of NIWAC if she is of duly recognized native American descent and is willing to take an active part.

The purpose of the organization is to promote the health, education, and welfare, to preserve the culture and heritage, to ensure the religious and civil rights of the american indian. An important objective is to preserve the beauty and protect the ecology of Indian lands.

The women plan to cooperate with existing Indian organizations in order to foster unity. This is to be a self-help organization geared toward encouraging Indian women to take a more active role in their communities.

NIWAC was started informally at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel on Aug 21 when a handful of concerned Indian women met to discuss the need for such organization as a way to find solu-

Older Women Feel Younger In The Mini, Says Balmain

"The main reaction against the midi length is from older women who are afraid of aging themselves wearing longer skirts," noted French coutourier Pierre Balmain states.

"With the mini, older women felt they looked younger. It was completely psychological. They were not looking younger, they were looking silly," M. Balmain said at a showing of his men's and coutoure collections celebrating the opening of Boutique Pierre Balmain for men in New York.

The French designer says "the younger generation is much less reluctant to try the midi, or the maxi which incidentally, I do not like because it doesn't go with our times. It catches on escalators," he said, "it doesn't fit into the life we live."

M. Balmain feels the midi will be accepted in America because it is "a very happy proportion. Of course American women will accept it. They always resist new fashion proportions at the

Senator Borah's Widow Will Be 100

BEAVERTON, Ore. (UPI)— The widow of the "Lion of Idaho" will be 100 years old Saturday and she still thinks her husband was right when he successfully fought to keep the United States out of the League of Nations half a lifetime ago.

Mrs. William E. Borah's political judgments come from keeping in touch with current events. "I have nothing else to do," she said.

So she listens to the radio in her room in the Maryville Nursing Home in this Portland suburb, keeps up an active correspondence with 20 or so relatives, old friends and children of friends, and looks forward to a visit each evening with her younger and seriously ill sister, who also is a patient in the home.

ASKED DURING an interview if the United States would have been better off to have avoided the world involvement which her husband fought for 33 years as a Republican leader in the senate, Mrs. Borah said, "Oh my, yes. He was right." She did not elaborate.

Borah was a leader of the "irreconcilables" in the Senate at the time the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations were being debated in 1919. When Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge began compromise negotiations with the Democrats, Borah threatened to move to replace Lodge as GOP leader in the Senate. Lodge dropped the negotiations and the Senate defeated the treaty.

As Europe moved again toward war in the 1930's, Borah opposed measures which might involve the United States. He died in 1949.

HE IS BEST remembered in his home state of Idaho as a champion of the income tax and labor legislation. Despite his deep fight with Presidents Wilson and Roosevelt over foreign affairs, he supported much New Deal legislation.

Mrs. Borah still thinks her husband was the greatest man she has known in American politics. "I've known the very top ones," she said. "But there was none like Billy."

She met Borah in her home town of Moscow, Idaho, when the young man was campaigning for her father, William J. McConnell, who was Idaho's second U.S. senator.

After their marriage Borah was named to the Senate in 1907 and they went to Washington.

MRS. BORAH RECALLS her friendships with many of the nation's leaders even after her husband's death.

"Whoever was in the White House would call up and say, 'Why don't you come over and have Sunday night supper with my wife and me?'" She did, of course, with Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

She has been here since 1966. Now Mrs. Borah discusses politics with few people. She said she and Sister Kathleen St. Martin, who writes Mrs. Borah's letters and reads to her, "are on opposite sides of the fence--so we don't talk about politics."

MRS. BORAH KNOWS a big party is being planned for her birthday. "I guess it's a surprise for me," she said with a twinkle.

She remains not only alert but immaculate. Her hair was freshly done for the interview and her light pink nail polish was unchipped.

Her opinions remain strong. She described Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as "a man with the courage of his convictions."

Mrs. Borah has had only one serious illness — a long ago bout with parrot fever in Washington, D.C. Her eyesight is almost gone and she is somewhat hard of hearing. She walks but little.

"It's not too bad to be 100," she said with a slight smile. "I have a soft bed to sleep in and a nice easy chair to sit in. If only my sister would get well . . ."

'Necessary' Informers On Campus Help Cut Off The Drug Supply

DEAR HELEN:

At our high school the word is that there are 150 narcs on campus. That's probably exaggerated, but look. Two guys selling "mes" (mescaline — the big thing in drugs around here this year) got busted yesterday. About five grassers aren't in class this week. Everybody knew they sold, but they always figured they were safe. Somebody had to fink or they'd still be here.

Don't get me wrong. I don't hold, use or sell — not even grass. But when you can't trust other students because they might be junior Mod Squad types, who can you trust? Like the no knock law, I think this is unfair police tactics. — JIM

DEAR JIM:

Paid narcs (narcotics agents) on high school campuses? Possibly a few in larger schools, but not disguised as students, and not that many.

However, it's true there are more informers than formerly, as young people become more concerned about the drug problem. To help shut off the supply is sometimes considered necessary finking.

Read on . . .

DEAR HELEN:

I have never been prompted to write a letter to a newspaper column until I read "Live and Let Die Not Proper Stand" in Helen Help Us.

Last month a friend of mine died from an overdose of heroin. I knew Billy was using drugs, but all I said was, "He better stop!" I didn't even say it to him. After all, it was his bag.

Well, Billy stopped all right — in the cemetery. If only I and all the others who knew he was shooting up had opened our mouths, he would still be here. He wanted our help, but the only help he got was from the needle. He wasn't a hood. He was an ordinary, sensitive, intelligent human being. Nobody really knows why he chose drugs, but I know one thing: We shrugged it off with "live and let live" (just as your correspondent said people should do) — and we let Billy die.

How many more Billys will there be before we change our attitude? The police aren't our enemies here. They're mainly looking for the pusher. When we protect a known seller, we're maybe giving our friends a death sentence. —SOMEONE WHO CARES

DEAR HELEN:

Look around any classroom and you can spot the heavy dopers. But everyone closes his eyes because who wants to get anyone in trouble? If we could be sure these kids would be helped instead of busted, maybe we wouldn't go by the policy of "live and let die."

Until they change the system, so that drug addicts (or heavy users on pills or the spike) won't be treated like criminals, but rather like sick people, we'll keep on protecting them out of their minds. — NO FINK

DEAR NO:

I couldn't agree more: an addict or heavy user needs help, not punishment. And he can get help at free drug-abuse clinics to be found in almost every large town nowadays.

It isn't finking when you direct a friend to one of these centers . . . and keep after him, with every means available, until he gets there. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You said the mild high you get from pot isn't worth the risk of being busted. High grade stuff produces considerably more than a mild trip. A tree a block away may look like it is right next to the driver. Stationary objects become animated. A highway intersection looks like a scale model of one. And the euphoria makes you feel immune to harm. To drive while smoking is the ultimate mistake. High quality grass is not mild. (But you can't often find it in the U.S.) — STUDENT

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help you. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

House Tour To Be Held Thursday

ants quarters in the right wing and high ceilings with peeling paint.

From a small, 70 to 80 family parish, with no rental allowed by law from the house's use by the community, that amount seemed too much.

So they have organized a house tour of various homes and interesting decorative pieces to be held Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. in the east San Rafael area from Glenwood to Peacock Gap. And from 2:30 to 5 p.m. a wine tasting will be held at the parish house, where the refurbishing will be done.

Lending their homes for the tour are Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adams, 125 Bayview Drive, Bayside Acres; the John Taylors, 110 Peacock Drive, whose home will have a formal dinner setting on the table and contains many antiques; the Mastyn Lloyd home, 124 Peacock Drive, where a formal English dinner party settiing will feature old English pieces from Mr. Lloyd's family; the Fred Vogel home, 249 Rivieria Drive at Peacock Gap, with a variety of family antique pieces and historic letters and documents such as a minutely-written sermon delivered by Mrs. Vogel's ancestor, Dr. William Cooper, who was pastor of the Brattle Street Church in Boston in 1717, and an Army Register from the War of 1812 which belonged to her great, great grandfather.

Also on the tour will be the David Kamp home at 412 Riviera Drive at Peacock Gap, featuring antique Chinese prints and a special table setting for a luncheon; and the home of Mrs. Marguerite Bates, 12 Driftwood Court in Glenwood, with its attractive waterfall, pool and gardens.

Tour tickets will be available at each of the homes during the tour hours, and tour guests will gather at the parish house for wine and cheese tasting. All proceeds will go toward restoration of the house.

Committee members are Mrs. Dun, chairman; Mrs. L.J. Howard, tickets; Mrs. Ron Magers, publicity; Mrs. Philip Judson, decorations; Mrs Mastyn Lloyd, hostesses; and Mrs. James Kennedy, wine tasting.

Germans Disagree About Mini Demise

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — Top West German fashion houses decreed yesterday the end of the mini, but German women disagreed and said they would continue to show their legs.

Leading designers opened the 11-day annual West Berlin spring and summer fashion shows by proclaiming "the knee is dead."

But a public opinion poll showed not only is the mini not dead but is growing in popularity among West German women.

The poll published in the newspaper Die Welt said only two per cent of women questioned favor the midi, and eight per cent the maxi.

TWENTY-FOUR per cent supported the mini, compared to 14 per cent two years ago.

The remaining 66 per cent represented women who basically wear the same dress length year in and year out no matter what fashion houses say.

Ulli Richter, a leading West Berlin fahion designer, at his show said, "The elegant woman does not show her knee any more. This is not a dictate but is a question of good taste, of a feeling for style, of fashion."

His shortened dress ended three fingers below the knee.

ANOTHER TOP West German fashion house, Staebe-Seger, said, "The long discussion about the length of dresses is over. The new dress length ranges from the covered knee to mid-calf."

But at the fashion shows elegant women sat in short dresses showing their knees and much more as the the models paraded by in their long dresses.

Conservation Interest Of Granada P-TC Leader

"Doing things together as a family group, even though its hard to corral all of us at one time, is my chief enjoyment," says Mrs. P. Dunlop Smith Jr., new president of Granada School Parent-Teacher Club.

Mother of six children and wife of the chief of surgery at Kaiser Hospital, Polly says, "We live a family-oriented and community-oriented life. I only wish we had time and energy for the world outside our own area."

Her children are Harry (Rusty) at University of California; Perrin, 18, at University of California at Irvine; Andrew, 13, and Jennifer, 11, at Del Mar School, and Christopher, 9, at Granada School.

Portable Playgrounds

DUSSELDORF, GERMANY (GF) — A former West German policeman turned architect and outdoor furniture designer believes he has found the ideal way for young and old to get rid of aggressions.

Klaus Goehling of Duesseldorf, West Germany, has fashioned giant outdoor toys out of inflatable plastic sheeting.

The toys, resembling huge pillows up to 60 feet long and 12 feet high, are suitable objects to climb up, slide down, crawl on, run on, ride on and jump on without getting hurt, he says.

Goehling asserts his "pillows" are great for getting children together in group games and for teaching "mutual tolerance and understanding."

Since introducing his invention in Dusseldorf, he has displayed his "portable playgrounds" throughout Europe, always, he says, with good results.

Mrs. Philip Bass Of Tiburon Is President Of Reed District P-TC

Mrs. Philip Bass of Tiburon will head Reed District Parent-Teacher Club during the 20th year of unification of Tiburon and Belvedere into the Reed Union School District.

The attorney's wife was president of Bel Aire P-TC last year and library chairman two years previously. She has been a member for five years.

To promote the students' welfare in the Reed Union School District, Sharon Bass' committee plans several programs to encourage community support. Planned is updating of "Shark Point, High Point," a history of Tiburon Peninsula written by Del Mar School eighth graders in 1958. The collector's item is being updated by Mrs. Louis Teather, Tiburon Peninsula historian; Joyce Wilson, Del Mar teacher; and Mrs. Artelle Farley, Dominican College teacher. Mrs. Richard Goff, director-at-large of R D P-T C is in charge. The history will be introduced at a 20th anniversary celebration planned by Mrs. Robert Scarth.

Mrs. Bass has planned four special evening meetings to give parents and teachers an opportunity to share ideas about what is being taught in Reed District schools. On Oct. 22 a teachers' panel will discuss the reading program. Mrs. Charles Bassett, vice president of R D P-T C, is co-ordinator.

The new president appointed Mrs. Arthur Gensler to head a Council of Supplementary Programs. Her aim is to present cultural and special activities not ordinarily available. The council will make a survey of student's needs and requests, the available talent and programs. It will maintain a file on local talent and encourage ongoing programs by arranging for students to attend performances and offering appreciation classes. The council will invite volunteer talent to the schools.

Mrs. Bass' club will sponsor a bicycle registration, individual and group pictures and a monthly news digest. Her other officers are Mmes. Charles Bassett, vice president; Thomas Price, treasurer; Frederick Manley, secretary; and James Shepard, Reed Review editor.

Any parent or teacher in the seven schools of Reed Union School District may join.

A cum laude graduate of Smith College, Sharon taught secondary school from 1958 to 1964. She taught English and modern, European, English and American history to grades seven through 12 in California, Oklahoma and Michigan.

Sharon has lived in Marin six years. She is the mother of Timothy, 10, and Ellen, 4 years old.

Her enjoyment is reading "especially poetry, biography, autobiography and cookbooks." Beaching, "especially tide pools," tennis and skiing are also interests of the new president.

Balmain Says Acceptance Of Midi Is Forthcoming

beginning. The acceptance comes afterwards," he told his audience at Hippopotamus.

M. Balmain, whose men's ready-to-wear is being sold in America for the first time this month, credits the current men's fashion renaissance to the Hippie revolution . . . the complete freedom in dress and the appeal of the Indian costume. There is always a reaction to any extravagance. In men's clothes there was a reaction against the sloppiness and the freedom, used in the worst sense of the word. "Also the Hippie Revolution stirred the men's fashion industry that was really falling asleep in a sort of routine of suits that were just basic and just useful.

"Now," said M. Balmain, "instead of just buying clothes to cover themselves, men are buying clothes to better their appearance, enhance their personality and make themselves more dashing. The idea that giving care to one's clothes makes a man a sissy has died.

"I don't believe in clothes as such," said M. Balmain. "I believe in clothes as part of a total appearance for both women and men. Clothes must be forgotten when worn. They must blend so completely with the personality of the wearer that he or she doesn't realize he's wearing the clothes."

$11.5 Million Bond Issue Is On Ballot

The financing of the first three years of a 10-year Marin Municipal Water District improvement program as well as the first stage of a project to bring Russian River water to Marin is at stake in an $11.5 million bond issue on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The bond proposal seeks $7.5 million for district improvements and $4 million for water supply, and both figures include small contingency reserves.

If the bonds are approved by voters, it will mark the beginning of a proposed $21,553,600 district improvement program and an initial commitment of the district's share of the Russian River water project.

Four more bond elections are tentatively planned in the next 10 years to finance the rest of both projects.

The bonds will be repaid through future district revenue without a tax levy and without an additional increase in water rates — which were hiked 25 per cent last month — according to a study by San Francisco financial consultants Stone & Youngberg.

The $7.5 million improvement program will replace and enlarge facilities, many constructed before 1900, to meet modern water supply demands.

The bond issue, if approved, will not finance water for new subdivisions or undeveloped property nor the proposed Southern Marin Sewer system, according to the district's general manager, William R. Seeger.

The system improvementts, to be completed by 1974, include:

Four transmission lines, totaling approximately six miles, to increase water supply from the district's watershed reservoirs at a cost of $1,280,500.

Installation of 42 miles of pipeline throughout the district to replace older and smaller distribution mains which carry water from storage tanks or transmission lines to the consumer, at a cost of $2,789,880.

Six redwood storage tanks with 100,000 — gallon capacity and 10 steel storage tanks, ranging from 500,000 gallon to five-million-gallon capacity, at a total cost of $1,520,000. The tanks will increase the district's storage capacity by nearly 17 million gallons to approximately 67 million hallons.

Increasing pumping plant facilities at a cost of $292,400. The work will include replacement of 12 obsolete standby pumps; installation of a pressure pump system to alleviate low water pressure in four areas and installation of two new pumping stations and relocation of two others.

Expansion of the district centralized control system which will provide a computerized monitor system for tanks, pumps and lines at a cost of $195,000.

Enlargement of the San Geronimo Treatment Plant from a capacity of 16 million gallons a day to 30 million gallons, at a cost of $1,300,000.

The other $4 million in bond monies, if approved, will provide pipeline, four pumping plants and a 20 million gallon underground reservoir near Corte Madera which will connect the Marin municipal district to North Marin County Water District facilities.

The connection of the districts between Hamilton Air Force Base and Novato, as well as the ultimate Sonoma-Marin aqueduct to bring Russian River water into both districts, is needed, according to Seeger, to guarantee a future adequate water supply to Marin County.

Historically the district has obtained its water supply from rainfall collected in its 17,000-acre watershed and stored in six lakes — Alpine, Bon Tempe, Kent, Nicasio, Lagunitas and Phoenix — with a 17 billion-gallon capcity.

Consumption has now passed what Seeger called the "Safe Yeild" level of 10 billion gallons a year. At that rate of consumption, he said, two abnormal years of rainfall could put the district in trouble.

With the completion of Nicasio Dam in 1961, all economically feasible water supply sites in Marin were exhausted, according to the district.

The Russian River water plan, to be financed jointly by the two Marin water districts and the Sonoma County water agency, will provide an adequate water supply into the 1990s.

The connecting pipeline which next month's bond issue is intended to finance will allow the Marin municipal district to purchase additional water from the North Marin district for an estimated three to five years until the Russian river water project becomes operational.

Also included in the $4 million portion of the bond issue is $250,000 for improvement of watershed lands. The funds will be used for maintenance, maintaining trails, improving picnic areas, fire protection and control and water and sanitary facilities.

A group called Marin Citizens for Yes on Water Bonds, with Rex T. Silvernale of San Rafael serving as chairman, has formed to work for the two-thirds majority needed for passage of the bond issue. No formal argument against the issue appears on the ballot.

Trash Bash In Novato For 2 Days

The Fall Trash Bash, in which residents of Novato will have free pickup of prunings and clippings, will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Oct. 25, it has been announced.

The central collection spot will be at Rowland and South Novato Boulevards.

This campaign differs from the Spring Trash Bash in that work will be by volunteer help. During the Spring cleanup, the city paid for hauling away the debris. Bresnan-Dalecio Inc., Ghilotti Brothers, Fernando Clementino and Marvin Soiland have volunteered trucks and drivers for the campaign.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce will have a cold drink station for the volunteer workers.

Tax, Bond Measures Endorsed

One tax and two bond measures have been endorsed by the Novoto Congress for Community Progress Committee said chairman Gordon L. Lee.

The committee, following up the proposals made in the May Congress for Community Progress, endorsed the tax override for the College of Marin, the bond issue for the college and the Novato Street bond issue, Lee said.

The tax override, measure B on the November general election ballot in the county, calls for killing an existing 35 cent tax override due to expire on July 1, 1972 and substitutes a 25 cent tax override for an unspecified period.

Measure C is for a $17 million bond issue to construct the Novato campus of the college. It was favored by the committee.

The Novato $3.25 million street bond issue was also given committee support, Lee said. It is measure D on the ballot.

The committee will also support the Novato Boy's Club, the Marin County Human Rights Commission, the development of a Novato human rights commission, enacting of an anti-litter ordinance in Novato, development of park facilities and the preservation of Novato Creek.

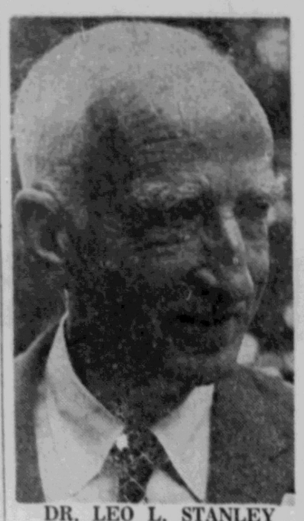
Group Named To Push College Ballot Measures

The Marin Community College District board has named a committee of citizens from throughout Marin under the chairmanship of Kent O. Seymour of Mill Valley to push its ballot measures.

Edwin Johnson of San Rafael was selected treasurer of the group to plump for propositions B and C which are on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The committee is to meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the county schools office to discuss its campaign.

The propositions would replace a 35-cent override tax for capital outlays with a 25-cent override for operations and provide $16.9 million in bonds for new construction.



DR. LEO L. STANLEY

RAY W. FOREAKER JR.
Runs for water board

Stanley, Foreaker Vie For Water Post

A challenge for the seat of a 24-year veteran member of the Marin Municipal Water District board will be decided by voters in the district's first Division Nov. 3.

Dr. Leo L. Stanely, 84 year-old incumbent opposed by engineer Ray W. Foreaker Jr., 43.

Two other candidates for the seat were eliminated in the June primary election in which Stanley received 4,708 votes and Foreaker 3,385.

District 1 encompasses Lagunitas, Forest Forest Knolls, San Gernoimo, Woodacre, Fairfax, Seeepy Hollow, Terra Linda, Marinwood, Hamilton Air Force Base, Santa Venetia, Los Ranchitos, all of the district's watershed lands northwest of Alpine Lake and North San Pedro Road northwest of McNear's Beach.

Stanley was chief surgeon at San Quentin Prison from 1913 until retiring to private practice in 1951. A native of Oregon, he has lived in California since 1895 and was graduated from Stanford University and Cooper Medical College in San Francisco.

In his bid for reelection, Stanley stresses his long experience on the board and his familiarity with the district.

He said he thinks it is important to have a doctor on the board because of sanitation issues and he described himself as a "common sense conservationist" who knows the "ecology of the district watershed as well as anyone."

Stanley and his wife, Bernice, live at Crest Farm in Fairfax.

Foreaker, a San Rafael Civil Engineer, has served as a consultant to water districts on planning and designing water systems. He is Tiburon city engineer on a consulting basis and a partner in the firm of Copple & Foreaker.

He is a native of Oakland and a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

Foreaker is chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission and the Marin County Board of Appeals.

If elected to the water district board, he said, he would like to get involved particularly with the Southern Marin sanitation situation.

He said the board needs a "younger, more aggressive" membership to meet current, modern problems.

Foreaker lives with his wife, Jeanne, and their four sons at 42 Edward Avenue, Santa Venetia.

Rec Department's New Activities

The Corte Madera Recreation Department has announced three new activities.

Royal Mint Plans To Scuttle Penny

LONDON (UPI)—The Royal Mint said Monday it no longer will issue pennies to banks, effectively ending the 1,000-year era of the British coin.

The mint, which last month halted all production of the copper pennies, said the step was taken in anticipation of the conversion of the nation's currency Feb. 15 to the decimal system.

The penny, which will remain legal tender until the changeover is complete, will be replaced by bronze one-half pence, one pence and two pence coins.

Civic Ballet Will Open 1970 Season

Marin Civic Ballet will open its 1970 season Saturday with performances of two new works that won cheers at the regional ballet festival in Fresno last May, and also brought the company national honors.

The ballets have never been performed in Marin County, according to Leona Norman, civic ballet director.

The concert will begin at 4 p.m. on the stage of the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Tickets are available from the center's box office.

The new works are "One Fine Day," choreographed by Charles Perrier to music by Aaron Copland, and "Motherless Child," created by the company as a whole to music sung by Odetta.

"Love in Bath," another new ballet by Perrier to Handel's music will be danced by guest artist Cindy Lucas of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, formerly of the Marin company. A classic ballet, "Paquita," to music by Minkus, will be danced by the entire company, which has been named an honor company by the National Association for Regional Ballet.

Lead dancers for the concert will include Perrier, Jane Thelen, Becky Jones, Lori Crichton, Laurie Berryman and Rocky White. Other members of the ballet include Carol Brannan, Kathi McCormick and Cynthia Harvey, plus newcomers Debbie Farb, Jody Marvin, Laura Przetak, Doreen Singer, Nancy Jones and Kerry Burcham.

Guitar Courses To Be Offered

A 10-week session of guitar courses will be offered by the Petaluma Park and Recreation Department Oct. 19 through Dec. 23 at La Tercera School.

Courses include beginner and intermediate folk guitar for persons 12 years and older. Students must furnish their own guitars.

DRAMA REVIEW

British Play Looks Into Military Honor

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The suspense drama within the framework of a trial has been a theater staple for many decades, and the good ones always get a warm reception.

These don't show up much any more, but "Conduct Unbecoming," which opened Monday night at the Ethel Barrymore Theater, has enough on the ball to make it appealing.

It gets off to a tedious beginning, but playwright Barry England begins to get down to business near the end of the first of the three acts, and the drama is suspenseful the rest of the way.

England's London hit has a point to make about the tradition of officer honor in the British army of the old days in India. Set toward the end of the 19th century at a regimental post, it has some scathing things to say about this tradition without exactly destroying it.

Trouble arrives with two new subalterns. One is the son of a general, formerly colonel commanding this post, and he couldn't care less about the military life. He plans to cause so much trouble that he will be cashiered back home as soon as possible.

The other second lieutenant has realized the dream of his life by being assigned to this famous regiment.

After considerable social horseplay at the post, matters get rolling when the malcontent officer makes a drunken pass at the window of a major. She rushes in from outdoors screaming hysterically that she has been assaulted and accuses the young man.

A regular court martial is not in order, but there is a tradition about a subalterns' court that has no official standing yet serves to clear up certain matters without arousing public attention or getting the top officers involved.

The ambitious lieutenant is assigned to defend the trouble-maker, and he takes the job with great reluctance. As the trial proceeds, testimony seems cut and dried as to the guilt of the accused, but gradually little things come to light that cause the defense "lawyer" to become curious enough to probe deeply.

Some astonishing things are unearthed, and the lieutenant who is so keen on the military becomes disillusioned about the honor business. And as a proper solution finally emerges, the defendans begins to think the military may be for him after all.

The writing is of a meat-and-potatoes type, hewing to the business of creating and maintaining suspense. The acting is excellent all around. Many of the players are from England and not well known here.

The two young subalterns are played skillfully by Paul Jones and Jeremy Clyde, both former British rock singing stars, by the way.

Donald Pickering is outstanding as the captain adjutant who runs the court hearings, and Michael Barrington is exactly right as the commanding colonel.

Elizabeth Shepherd has a couple of fine scenes as the woman who accuses the young officer. Others in the large cast with good roles and abilities include Michael Bradshaw, Paul Harding, Robert Hewitt, Richard Lupino, Ronald Drake, Madhur Jaffray and Richard Clarke.

Student Films

A three-part collection of prize-winning student films will begin at 7 p.m. Friday and be completed following two Fridays at the Little Theater at Redwood High School, the sponsoring Redwood High School Film Club has announced.

Festival Protesters Call Art Committee Hypocritical

The Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival committee has been criticized for "hypocritical audacity" by a group of war protestors who ran into trouble with both the committee and Mill Valley police at the festival Sautrday.

The protesters, who call themselves the American Playground, set up a booth Saturday selling burned meat as "napalmed flesh" and models of human genitalia labled "government subsidized imports."

The group also distributed posters reading "Too political (signed by) Festival Committee" to artists participating in the festival.

About 25 artists covered their art work with the posters protesting the committee's rejection of a student protest are exhibit for inclusion in the festival.

Committee members ripped the posters down despite the protests of the artists, said Mark Estrin of the American Playground.

In a letter to the committee, the Playground said that Saturday "by posing as war profiteers peddling such gruesome memorabilia of the Indochina war as My Lai souvenir remnants and napalmed Vietnamese flesh, we tried to counter the hypocritical audacity which would dare censor political art."

"There can be no haven — even in Mill Valley — until the war is over and American racist imperialism lies deal in its cave," the letter said.

Estrin said the American Playground is a "street theater group" of about 15 members who live in Mill Valley.

The letter was mailed to the committee yesterday, he said.

New Student Operation

By LARRY MOWELL

When it takes three hours to decide how to elect a homecoming queen, it is time for a change of government, according to two student body officers at San Rafael High School.

Disgusted by such lengthy wrangles, school president Parker Lee, 17, a junior, and vice president Larry French, 16, — aided last year by the then president Tony Salin and a school administrator — streamlined the student government.

Last year the system was a miniature federal system with executive, legislative and judicial branches that seemed to function as slowly on picayune matters as the U.S. Senate during a filibuster.

LARRY FRENCH
Appointed vice president

"The inefficiency of the old government had shown it necessary for a change," French said.

After the 40-man student senate abolished itself by voting out the constitution on the last day of school in June, Lee and French said their government setup was established.

The student Congress eliminated itself because "they all agreed that the system they were in was not efficient enough and it just had too many people to get things done and a lot of people who got in were just doing it to get out of class," Lee maintained.

Elections in the past were popularity contests and those elected were often more interested in avoiding class than running a government, the pair asserted.

Under the new system, instead of electing 40 senators and 20 officials twice a year, the student body now elects a president and each class chooses a president once a year.

The five make up the executive board which makes all of the final decisions. They choose their own vice presidents and jointly select the chairmen of the school committees for the next year.

The chairmen of the committees — finance, spirit, minicourse, student interclub and student action — then select their own committees subject to approval of the student president.

"Hopefully, the people who enroll on the committees will want to do it," French said. "It used to be that Congress was a great popularity contest."

While people in Congress weren't interested in all the issues they were called upon to decide, committeemen only make recommendations in one area in which they are interested, the pair said.

"I think in a school government this is an ideal system because of the nature of decisions involved," French said.

Both Lee and French said students are allowed to make only trivial decisions. To them, protecting the system of checks and balances is not as important as maintaining efficiency.

They said decisions have been made as reasonably and much more quickly under the new system this year.

The only incomplete part of the changeover is legitimizing a constitution, they said. It is expected to be completed within a month and voted on in a general student election.

The constitution will include an impeachment process to oust incompetent officers, but the officers should be much more effective than in previous years since they serve for a year instead of a semester, the two said.

"The reason why is the president and the new officers would come in and they couldn't get all their goals in and the new people were coming in and they were just getting used to the office when they were out," French said.

Is it more efficient? "It seems to be running a lot better than the other one," French said.

Teacher's Departing Criticism

A fifth grade teacher at Martin Luther King school, last night submitted her resignation to the Sausalito School District board, saying that district efforts "to develop a creative humanistic experience for children" have turned "into an almost Orwellian nightmare world for children."

Mary R. Davis of Stinson Beach, a teacher with the district for three years, said recent election "of a reactionary board which is now in control of the district" is evidence of the trend she sees in the schools.

RESIGNATION

"I do not feel that I can in good conscience continue to be a part of the Sausalito School District in light of what I have experienced, Mrs. Davis said in her letter of resignation.

She continued: "I know, after great consideration, that I would not be allowed to teach creatively in such a system. The administration has lapsed into a backlash reactionary posture of so-called professionalism, which belies the real problems of children by perpetuating an educational system unrelated to the existing educational reality."

Mrs. Davis said she sees Sausalito schools "rapidly turning into punitive institutions. I wish I had the energy to remain . . . to fight."

The teacher, who taught reading for two years in the district, suggested the board "take a good look at the texts being used in the classrooms.

DULL TEXTS

"They are incredibly dull, and even those children who can read them do so under great protest," she wrote, adding the district should bring in qualified personnel to set up an effective reading program.

She warned the district and community against "camouflaging the problem behind paper progress which in fact the child has not obtained," and suggested the schools measure progress on the basis of ability to perform.

In conclusion, Mrs. Davis said the most frightening aspect of the situation in which the district now finds itself "is that the supposed enlightened element of the Sausalito community has sat idly by and allowed this situation to take place."

OVERRULES JOHNSON

On a motion by Trustee Robert A. Thompson, the board (by a 3-2 vote) overruled chairman Nathaniel Johnson who had started to read Mrs. Davis's letter, and voted to read no more letters of resignation.

"These letters are on file in the district office for public perusal," Thompson said, adding that persons resigning may not want their letters read. Trustee Jerry L. Whitcomb abstained in the vote, but moved to accept Mrs. Davis's resignation and send her a letter of appreciation for her service. The board agreed to do so.

On a similar note, a Marin City parent, Mrs. Royce McLemore, appeared before the board to protest conditions at Martin Luther King School where she said she had been observing classes for the past two weeks.

Mrs. McLemore said she visited classrooms "where all the children have been out of their seats playing. One class was supposed to be a reading class, but no kind of teaching was going on," she said.

In the fourth week of school, she said, her daughter "had not yet been placed in any kind of a math program. I was told the tests had not yet been graded," Mrs. McLemore added.

She said discipline is a problem, too. "One student was in the school office from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. because she was afraid to go to class because she had had an argument with another child," Mrs. McLemore told the board. "She missed four hours of school for no reason." Another child, she said, was sent home by the principal without the mother being notified.

At that point Johnson interrupted Mrs. McLemore, asking if she had brought the problems to the teacher, principal and superintendent before coming to the board. She said she had, but interim Supt. Robert E. Spain said she had not come to him.

Johnson asked Mrs. McLemore to talk to the superintendent before the next board meeting, then ask for a closed session to bring charges against specific staff members if she felt the problems had not been solved.

Factory production of chewing gum in 1969 was valued at $256 million.

Sausalito Board, Audience In Heated Verbal Exchange

By PAT ANGLE

Trustees of the Sausalito School District last night exchanged hostile words with members of the audience and disagreed with each other on a variety of topics — from audience participation at board meetings to board correspondence.

And throughout the five hour meeting, approximately 80 persons attending assumed the role of a disgruntled Greek chorus, cheering trustees with whom they agreed and making angry remarks to other trustees.

The controversy began shortly after the start of the meeting when Eleanor Dizon, a black parent, rose to propose 10 curriculum changes which she said would improve education for black children in the district.

Mrs. Dixon prefaced her plan by reading a two-page statement which charged that "any attempt to raise academic standards in the Sausalito district has always been in terms of what would benefit the white student and perpetuate the institutionalized racism rampant in the schools."

She accused the district administration of "pretending that black and white children enter the race on equal terms" and "stacking the deck so white Johnny thinks he is superior."

Mrs. Dixon added that while children are given confidence at the expense of black children "who are therefore brainwashed into lack of confidence and inferiority."

Before Mrs. Dixon had finished, she was interrupted by Trustee Robert A. Thompson who asked why the board "must simply sit here and listen to a political treatise . . . that has no bearing on present school problems?"

Board chairman Nathaniel Johnson said he felt "all visitors have the right to speak."

Mrs. Dixon proposed the school board take the following actions: 1. get a program started to rewrite the texts; 2. supply supplementary materials to make up for misinformation in the texts; 3. bring in teachers with broader perspectives "instead of the safe teachers who lack creativity and individuality."

She also asked the board to "teach true history" and "give a gold star to the student who finds the lies and distortions in our society" and "tell why wars are really fought, for money and because of greed." In addition, she asked the district "to work on the self-concept of the black child" and "help him develop pride," "teach community realities, make social studies multi-ethnic and focus on preventive rather than remedial education."

"Who are you speaking for?" Trustee Delta Christ asked Mrs. Dixon, who replied: "the black community." "Who specifically in the black community do you represent — except yourself? Can you give me the names of some of the people you represent?" asked Thompson.

At that point about 20 members of the audience stood up. "She's speaking for me," many of them called out. "I think we would have a hard time getting the responsible Marin City community to register support for Mrs. Dixon's statement," Thompson retorted, adding he felt it was important the board find out whether Mrs. Dixon "was speaking for the black community or for herself and a small group."

Trustee Jerry L. Whitcomb objected to Thompson's remarks. "I would hate to see the day when every visitor asking to address the board is subjected to the question 'Who do you represent?' " he said. "I think we have to take a statement for what it's worth, not for how many people support it," Whitcomb added.

The conflict, which was evident all through the meeting, flared briefly into open hostility when the board came to the part of the agenda termed "correspondence."

Thompson moved that the board not read any letters aloud — either at last night's session or in the future. The audience disagreed and protested, as did Johnson and Whitcomb.

"I think (in doing this) we are taking away from our constituents one method of getting to and talking to the board," Whitcomb said. "We are cutting off an avenue of communication for people who can't get down here and we can't afford to do that."

He continued: "The more open we can be in trying to let the public know we are moving in a new direction to try and educate their children, the better off we will be."

Thompson stood firm and Mrs. Christ and Trustee Robert R. Lyon concurred. "One of our functions is to gather information and we get very little information from inflammatory or self-serving letters," he said.

After the board voted 3-2 (Johnson and Whitcomb opposed) to read no future letters to the board aloud, Mrs. Christ asked the superintendent to reinstate a bulletin board on which all the information normally contained in the board packet would be posted.

Bargaining Agent Is Recognized

The Lagunitas School District board last night recognized a teachers' organization as exclusive bargaining agent for district instructors.

The Lagunitas Chapter of the California Teachers Association was approved as the sole agent for the 25 Lagunitas teachers during salary negotiations according to Supt. Joseph Amato.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

SINGERS — Granted permission for the San Geronimo Valley Singers to use a classroom each Tuesday from 8 to 10 p.m. for practices.

PRE-SCHOOL — Asked Amato to see if a proposed Valley Family Pre-School Center would interfere with other classes and to check on the feasibility of a nonrectangular play area. He is to report back at the Oct. 26 meeting.

RURAL LEAGUE — Authorized a $300 stipend for teacher Fred Brown for running the Marin Rural Sports League this year.

IN SERVICE TRAINING — Authorized a leave for sixth grade teacher Muriel Dillard to take a two-week study trip to Mexico under the auspices of Dominican College at her own expense from Dec. 28 to Jan. 14.

PRINCIPAL SALARY — Put over to Oct. 26 the question of tying principals' salaries to teachers wages by setting them one and one-quarter times what they would make as teachers.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $25 from Mr. and Mrs. M. Dickson in memory of Katherine R. Dickson for purchase of library books.

OPEN HOUSE — Authorized a casual roundtable meeting between teachers and parents Oct. 27 instead of the traditional open house.

DRUG PROGRAM — Authorized Amato to begin the Lockheed drug abuse program for seventh and eighth graders at a cost of about $500.

Office Equipment Stolen From School

Burglars took office equipment of undetermined value from Coleman School, 140 Rafael Drive, San Rafael, sometime during the weekend, police reported today.

The equipment was taken from an office between 5 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday, police said.

Friese's Reed School Contract Is Canceled

Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, today cancelled the contract for his deputy superintendent, Stanley Friese, to serve as interim superintendent of the Reed School District.

Hollis took the action because of Reed district trustees criticism of Friese's report on his stewardship to the county board of education last week.

In a letter to Gordon C. Wright, Reed board president, Hollis wrote:

"Since the Reed board has felt it necessary to object so strenuously in this instance, there seems little need to continue with the contract upon which Mr. Friese's services, and other related resources of this office, are now being provided. The Reed board is therefore notified that Mr. Friese's services to the Reed district will terminate as of Oct. 31, 1970, and we will expect Mr. Friese to return to his regular duties in this office on Nov. 2."

Noting that the Reed board has resumed efforts to recruit a permanent superintendent, Hollis suggested that it assign one of its school principals as acting head of the district until a permanent appointment is made. "Perhaps Mr. Irwin Karp, who has had recent administrative experience at the district level, could handle this assignment," he wrote.

The Reed district obtained Friese on loan from the county schools office as interim superintendent on the departure of Robert B. Gaw last June 30. Gaw took a two-year job directing a school in Malaysia, and said that, while he would like to return to the Reed district, he would not expect to do so as superintendent.

He had notified the board of his intention early in April, and initially some trustees hoped to have a replacement by the time of his departure. A screening process continued into the fall, however.

County board of education members questioned Friese at their Oct. 5 meeting as to how long he expected to remain on loan to the district. His reply was that the initial screening had failed to result in selection of a permanent superintendent, and the district was starting the screening process over again. He shrugged his shoulders as to how long it might take.

In his report to thecounty board, he said he had to "step on a lot of toes" in the Reed district schools because of "very loose programs" and "innovation for innovation's sake." He stressed that he was following the direction of the district board in doing so.

He was taken to task for the reporet at the Reed board meeting the following Thursday. The public board meeting started a half-hour late after trustees had been closeted with Friese.

Hollis wrote that the reprimand of Friese "comes as a shock and a disappointment." He recited that county schools personnel on loan to districts have customarily been asked to make periodic reports to the county board. Robert E. Spain, county schools director of administrative services who is on loan as interim superintendent of the Sausalito district, made such a report at the same meeting at which Friese gave the account that drew the Reed trustees' displeasure.

Kent School Architect Fee Delayed

The Kentfield School District board last night delayed payment to the district's architect for drafting landscape and drainage plans for Adaline E. Kent School.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said today the board wants a clarification on an item in the architect's bill listed as "slow drainage."

Bacich said the board's action withholds payment of 80 per cent or $3.294 of the total bill submitted by the architect, Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey of San Francisco.

The firm was hired earlier this year to design work expected to cost about $44,000. Among other items the work includes landscaping of school grounds adjacent Corte Madera Creek. The district has received $18,000 from the Ross Valley Flood Control District for the landscaping, according to Bacich.

The trustees coupled creek landscaping with a $26,000 drainage and landscaping project of their own for the school, he said, and the architect was hired.

Work started during the second week of September, Bacich said, and is expected to be complete in two weeks.

The Kentfield School District board also:

REPAIRS — Approved minor repairs totaling about $50 for the multi-purpose room at Adaline E. Kent School.

SOUND SYSTEM — Approved expenditure of $900 of district funds for a sound system at Adaline E. Kent School. About $700 had been donated for the $1,600 system from the school's Parent-teacher association.

GROUNDS — Approved a request from Marin Catholic High School for after-school use of the Wolfe Grade School playground. The high school will use the grounds as baseball and soccer practice fields.

TESTING — Approved spending $1,600 to test for academically talented students. The district also approved hiring another psychologist on a part time basis to do the testing. The state will reimburse the district $40 for every student identified as academically talented.

LANDSCAPING — Authorized payment of $19,000 to contractor Cagwin and Dorward for landscaping and drainage work at Adaline E. Kent School.

Suspect In Stolen Car Sale Hunted

San Rafael police were looking today for a man wanted for embezzlement by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in two states, and suspected of selling a stolen car to a San Rafael man.

Police said the man, Gilbert E. Selmos, who stayed at the Villa Rafael Motel in San Rafael, sold a car stolen in Colorado to an unidentified San Rafael man who paid Selmos with an $800 check.

The check turned up in the hands of a Fairfax woman who told police she met Selmos, who also uses the name G. L. Perry, last Friday.

Mary E. Ahola of 303 Cascade Drive told police she had dinner with Selmos Saturday and Sunday. Yesterday morning he went to her residence and told her he had an appointment and didn't have time to go to the bank and asked her to give him $600 for the $800 check, which she did.

Police said Selmos had left the motel without paying and was last known to be driving a rented 1970 Lincoln Continental with California license plates 739AIK.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Behr Has Qualifications For State Senate Job

In an editorial last May 21, during the primary campaign, we made this comment on the contest for Republican nomination for state senator:

"Representing what might be called the Warren-Kuchel wing of the GOP is Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, former Marin County supervisor well known for his efforts on behalf of open space conservation. Behr, when challenged on his standing as a 'real Republican,' has emphasized his efforts on behalf of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, thereby indicating his adherence to Kuchel's principles."

In that editorial, we endorsed Don Pinkerton of Fairfield for the nomination. Republicans of the Fourth Senatorial District, however, preferred Peter Behr.

We cannot quarrel with their choice.

BEHR, AS WE pointed out in May, has excellent credentials as a conservationist. He has experience through his service on the Mill Valley City Council and Marin County Board of Supervisors. He has been active in many political organizations — mostly conservation-type groups rather than party organizations. He has proved himself a man of ability.

Whether Behr is a "real Republican" becomes of no consequence now. The choice Nov. 3 will be of a man to represent all the residents of the Fourth Senatorial District — Marin, Napa and Solano— in the upper house of the state legislature. The winner should subjugate party interests to the greater public interest. Since Behr has not been a "strict party man," this should not be difficult for him.

Behr's Democratic opponent is Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael.

In many respects, there is not much difference between what Behr professes and what Peevey professes. Both are opposed to continued involvement in the Vietnam war. Both espouse conservation and environment issues with approximately equal fervor.

Peevey, following the lead of his party's hierarchy, downgrades the Bagley-Reagan tax reform plan that failed by one vote in the state Senate this year. Behr says he will vote for the plan if it comes up again next year — as it likely will, with some modifications.

Peevey, as a Democrat, finds little good about Gov. Ronald Reagan. Behr, as a Republican, finds little good about Jesse M. Unruh, the Democratic candidate for governor.

But on most issues, the two candidates are not far apart.

THIS DOES NOT, however, mean there is little to choose between them. While Behr has long experience in government, Peevey has none. While Behr has a long record of public activity in behalf of conservation, Peevey is a newcomer to the field. While Behr has proved his ability, Peevey has yet to do so.

The choice thus becomes simple: Party labels aside, Peter Behr is far the stronger candidate, and should be elected.

Progress Of Virus Insecticides

As a safe substitute for hard insecticides, the natural virus diseases of insects look more and more promising. Viral insect control is far more precise than chemical control.

Using viruses for insect control has been compared to picking off a criminal in a crowd of people with a high-powered rifle, while using hard pesticides is like spraying the crowd with a machine-gun to get the one man.

About 85 per cent of all hard pesticides are used against 100 insect pests. The U. S. Department of Agriculture expects to have specific biological controls for half of these within the next 10 years.

Ukrainian scientists are working on a virus which kills the coddling moth larva, the nortorious worm in the apple. In university and the department of agriculture laboratories, scores of biological controls are under investigation.

It is too early to make a prediction, but at this time the outlook is very promising.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Supervisors' Pay, Chiropractors Among Subjects Of Propositions

(This is the fifth of a series on the 20 propositions before the electorate on the Nov. 3 general election ballot.)

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — Proposition 11 would give the board of chiropractic examiners powers to require additional and continuing education for members of the chiropractic profession.

Chiropractors operate under their own initiative act, adopted in 1922, and amended only three times since adoption. The profession has decided it is time to bring the act up to date.

PROPOSITION 12 is another battle between home rule and state rule. If passed, it would remove some of the work now done by the legislature, and put it in the hands of the counties.

Specifically, the proposition provides that boards of supervisors fix their own compensation, subject to referendum of the people in the counties. At present, the supervisors' pay is fixed by the legislature which usually acts on recommendation of the county grand jury and board of supervisors.

PROPOSITION 13 authorizes the legislature to increase property tax exemption for disabled and blind veterans to $10,000 from the present $5,000, and to extend the veterans' exemption to widows.

Proposition 14 is another attempt to circumvent certain civil service provisions now in the constitution. The measure has been defeated by the voters twice, but comes back in slightly changed form on the recommendation of the Constitutional Revision Commission.

Specifically, the measure would exempt all employees of the lieutenant-governor from the requirements of civil service. Presently, the lieutenant-governor has one exempt employee-like other state officials.

Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, who opposes the proposition, says the Constitutional Revision Commission has gone beyond its charge of updating the constitution, and is recommending substantive changes.

PROPOSITION 15 is another recommendation of the constitutional Revision Commission. The proposal restates several provisions in the constitution without substantive change, and shortens the language.

Certain sections of the constitution would be eliminated and placed under the jurisdiction of the state legislature, including the obsolete provision against dueling, which was adopted in the early days of the state to prevent the politicians from shooting each other up. Now most of the political dueling is with words.

Some opposition to Proposition 15 results from the fact it removes the constitutional protection of veterans to be reinstated in their jobs when returning from military service.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Follow-Up Needed By 'Rights' Critics

Largely through the efforts of the PTA units and coverage in the I-J, citizens concerned with our San Rafael schools were able to give their reactions to a proposed draft on "Student Rights and Responsibilities." The attendance at this meeting Monday night showed that citizens are concerned and do want a voice in their schools.

Each person who voiced concerns or objections was asked to follow these up with a proposed draft of his own which he considers totally adequate and acceptable and to present it to the committee by Oct. 26. While mere criticism comes easy, a constructive document such as requested takes a little more time, a little more thought and a little more research. It will be interesting to see if these people care enough to follow through in a more positive vein. I hope so!

It will also be interesting to see if the committee, through utilization of these contributons, can come up with a document that will gain community support as well as board approval for adoption. I hope so!

Fortunate To Have Military Academy

Thank you for your excellent article on the San Rafael Military Academy (Oct. 2).

May I add what Col. (Frederick D.) Whiting said in a recent address to the Mothers' Club (of SRMA):

"The academy is placed here to make a boy stand upright, look another person in the eye and be proud of the ground on which he walks."

As new parents at the SRMA, we have already seen this attitude reflected in our son.

We are extremely fortunate to have a school of this caliber in the county.

Bennett Definitely Consumer's Friend

William Bennett is definitely a spokesman for the consumers. His record in the attorney general's office and that of public utilities commissioner proves it. Every single gas and telephone rate payer in the state has benefitted by his sole efforts. Paul Brindel's letter ("Readers Say," Oct. 7) appears to be from uninformed sources. Even though the conservative I-J does not endorse Bennett for the board of equalization it should inform its readers that Mr. Bennett has won every case he has brought before the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of the California rate payer. If you prefer Mr. Bennett's opponent in the B. of E. race it's OK but let's print the truth, not just the half-truth.

Sad Day For Many In Health Dept.

Oct 13, will be a sad day for many of the Marin County Health Department employees as we will be saying goodbye to our beloved friend and adviser, Dr. Patricia Hallinan, assistant health officer.

We in Crippled Children Services have enjoyed her as our director and "leader" for five years and for sure it would take some doing to find a person like her - she who at any time could be called on for advice. No one could ask for a nicer "boss" and WOW will we miss her.

Board Responding To Public Demand

The recent editorial "Who Makes the Policy for the Public Schools?" seems based on the premise that school boards serve as independent policy-making bodies. Policy is not created in a vacuum. To my knowlege, most, if not all, policy-making boards call upon staff, committees, task forces and other informed groups to provide them with facts, statistics, attitudes and information necessary for arriving at objective decisions.

If one accepts this as the function of a board then the San Rafael Board of Education has responded vigorously to one of the uppermost concerns expressed by the recent Citizens Advisory Committee — that of improved communication among the board, administration, faculty, parents and students to better serve the needs of the community by a reciprocal sharing of attitudes, goals and objectives. The board has created a standing public relations committee of citizens to serve as liason to the community. It has formed task forces to study parental educational concerns. It has given unstintingly of its time to join with the schools and the community in waging school tax election campaigns. It has responded to a community request for "defenitive statements of policy" which included a request for a statement on "Student Rights and Responsibilities" and which has resulted in the formation of a board policy review committee . . .

Is this not a better method to mandate policy?

Rafferty Trick Obvious To Student

I felt that I must write to you in regard to your editorial of Oct 6 on Max Rafferty's old tricks.

I had recently acquired a pamphlet on Rafferty. The same one to which you refer in your article.

I was very much upset by it. It was the first time that that I had ever come in contact with this type of campaigning. I had no idea that propaganda such as this was allowed in a campaign. Even I, as junior in high school, could see what Rafferty is trying to do.

Anyway, thank you for doing what I wanted someone to do (and very neatly, I might add!). You've eased my mind a great deal and I appreciate it.

Cease-Fire's Greatest Value Would Be To End Bombing

WASHINGTON — In offering a cease-fire without preconditions, President Nixon said it should cause all kinds of warfare to end, including bombing. This places in pawn those who have suffered most in the war and whose suffering has been callously ignored.

Already it is being said that while the Communist side will not formally "reject" the cease-fire, they will never agree to it. The people not alone of South Vietnam but Cambodia and Laos will thus continue to be subjected to the hell of bombing that day after day shatters the lives of men, women and children, destroys villages and farms and drives ever-new thousands of refugees into tre cities and pitifully inadequate refugee camps.

TO BE BLIND to the suffering of the people of Indochina is to deliberately ignore one of the most urgent, desperate even, reasons for an end to the shooting. Almost the only agency that has tried to bring this vast and increasing pool of misery to public attention is the Senate subcommittee on refugees of which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is chairman.

The committee's latest report, prepared by staff members after on-the-spot inspection in Indochina and largely ignored, shows an official figure for civilian war casualties admitted to hospitals of 59,480. But that figure ignores other casualties treated elsewhere or not related at all.

The report notes that while the U.S. aid mission in Laos was asking for only a few millions for refugees, the military was spending upward of $4,-680,000 a day on sorties over Laos. From Udorn Air Base in Thailand each sortie, according to the Defense Department, costs $7,400. At the peak in the dry season up to 800 sorties a day were being flown.

DESPITE REPORTS of progress in pacification, the report states that a vast segment of South Vietnam's 18 million people are not convinced that their villages are secure and they remain as refugees. An additional 500,000 have been added to the official rolls in the first six months of 1970 alone.

Confronted with the statistics of civilian death, misery and fear, those directing the war point to Viet Cong terrorism as a root cause. Terrorism is more pervasive as the strategy of frontal attack recedes. The official figures through September of this year show 9,000 incidents of Viet Cong terrorism, with 4,800 killed and 10,000 wounded. That undoubtedly contributes to the refugee flow, yet it is small when compared with the force of the bombing armadas that take to the air without fail day after day.

The president in his address included "acts of terror" as ending under a cease-fire. An administration source responded to a question on this score that the Viet Cong were believed to have fairly tight control over their cadres. While sporadic acts of terror might occur, they would not disrupt an agreement to stop the shooting.

When the bombers and the fire ships roar across the rice paddies, peasants and soldiers alike brandish clenched fists in helpless rage at the intruders.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Czechs Are Sadly Cynical Over Loss Of Freedom

By PERCY ROWE
TORONTO TELEGRAM NEWS SERVICE

PRAUGE — Behind all cynicism there is sadness, and never was that more apparent than in the Czechoslovakia of today, two years after the uprising — and subsequent Russian invasion — of 1968.

The Czechs, a people accustomed to imperial suppression, tend to refer today to the U.S.S.R. as "the Emperor."

It is obvious they know that while emperors may change their clothes, the emperors are all similar underneath in their naked power.

Does this mean the power may be challenged? Not likely.

AS ONE CZECH put it: "Everyone hates this new regime. But those with jobs and families won't make a move. Only the young people, the teen-agers, who hasen't any obligations yet, express their atered."

Even they do it carefully, for when I asked another Czech if there were city police or simply one state police force, I received the answer: "Just one — and just one secret police."

The young, perhaps, have even more reason to hate the new system than their elders. After all, more than any other group they tasted the freedom of expression — especially in the arts — during the three months before August of two years ago.

THERE IS NO doubt that freedom has been crushed. Entrants to Czech universities today must pass two examinations, one academic, one political. The child of an intellectual or a member of the professional classes doesn't stand much chance of passing the latter.

For the young artist, life can be even harder.

Czech film-making is world renowned. But when I asked what the young director of the Oscar-winning "Closely Watched Trains" was now making, I was told nothing. It seems he made a film after that one that the authorities considered too pessimistic. He was "sentenced" not to make any films for a couple of years.

This idling of brains, this restriction of talent, can be more insidious than sending a man to a physical Siberia. It fosters cynicism, and then nihilism.

PRAGUE'S favorite beer halls and wine shops and restaurants are full (in the evenings) with young people. They get there early. They need to. Not since wartime have I encountered so many items struck from the menu so soon after meal-hour starts.

Some Czechs maintain that 80 per cent of a man's income has to be spent on food — an obvious reason why a wife has to work, too.

This subject of food prices is the most bitter I encountered. A man told me it cost him three weeks' pay for his annual car license. But he said it with a shrug.

Czechoslovakia has rich farmland, well able to produce grain, beef, fruit. Yet I traveled through southern and western Bohemia for three days and rarely saw cattle.

Czechoslovakia is a small country, not rich, and in some of its cities distinctly shabby.

It doesn't look like a country that can afford both military arms and butter. The people know this, and are cynical, often tense, and not given to easy laughter.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

To drink wine is a sin, and so if you must do it, drink gracefully. Let the wine be good, and the music, and if you jest, do it well. If you are going to be punished for it in the next world, at least don't make a fool of yourself. — Fadh'r-ad-Din (seventh century).

It could not be less folly to abolish liberty, which is essential to politicai life, because it nourishes faction, than it would be to wish the annihilation of air, which is essential to animal life, because it imparts to fire its destructive agency. — James Madison.

City Of Novato Violates Own Ordinances In Street Extension

For years the Novato Public Works Department and city council talked about extending Arthur Street through to Indian Valley Road, a short distance away. For years this was talk, talk about relieving the congestion of Novato High School students having to detour around Center Road and South Novato Boulevard to get to the school from West Novato.

This year the road was finally cut through and Indian Valley Road was improved. In the same project, the Hill Road and Diablo Avenue intersection was straightened.

There is a noticeable improvement in the traffic to and from Novato High School, but the city did not insist on sidewalks on the extension.

This has caused considerable comment, especially among developers and real estate men. Developers are required to install sidewalks on new development, but the city did not put them in on Arthur Street nor along Indian Valley and Hill roads.

To straighten out Hill Road at Diablo Avenue, the city violated its own grade ordinance and made a cut about 60 feet high.

The new convalescent hospital nearby had to redesign its plot plan to avoid high cuts. It also had to install sidewalks.

It would seem that the city ordinances apply to everyone except the city.

ONE PUBLIC agency that deserves some praise is the Novato Creek committee. It organized and carried out a successful cleanup of the creek from Seventh Street to Grant Avenue. It wanted to show how much debris is thrown into the creek, and it succeeded.

Whether it can get enough interest aroused to clean up the creeg from Seventh Street to Highway 101 remains to be seen.

At least, the water from heavy rains will flow faster through the cleaned-out section. And it was done with volunteer labor, not through hired crews.

THE NOVATO CENTER Building has been undergoing some drastic exterior changes. Originally it was called the Talbot Building and later the Key Insurance Building. It went from pastel colors to black. Many people said it was the ugliest building in Novato.

Its new owners have painted it light green and installed a two story-high screen in front of it. With the huge screen it cannot be ignored. Certainly it does not blend in with the other buildings on Grant Avenue.

The city plan review committee has aimed at trying to get some conformity in plans for the city. It missed on that.

One redeeming feature was the group of beautiful sunburst locust trees in front of the building. However, it was claimed that they were pruned wrong and the branches hung too far down, so the trees were removed. This does not conform to a city policy in trying to beautify its business district with trees.

IS THIS the shape of things to come?

Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown was sitting among employees of Tankersley Realty at a recent chamber of commerce luncheon. When they introduced themselves, there were so many from Tankersley Realty that Brown said he was also.

ART BUCHWALD

Every Time A Bank Goes Up, Something In All Of Us Dies

WASHINGTON — Every time an old building is torn down in this country, and a new building goes up, the ground floor becomes a bank.

The reason for this is that banks are the only ones who can afford the rent for the ground floor of the new buildings going up. Besides, when a bank loans someone money to build a new building, it usually takes an option for the street-floor facilities.

Most people don't think there is anything wrong with this and they accept it as part of the American free enterprise system. But there is a small group of people in this country who are fighting for Bank Birth Control.

THIS IS HOW Huddlestone Hubbard, the BBC's chairman, explained it:

"Whenever you see an old building torn down," Hubbard said, "you usually see a candy store, a dry cleaner, a delicatessen and possibly a florist torn down with it. These shops are all replaced in the new building with a beautiful glass, aluminum, wall-to-wall carpeted money-factory.

"Now from an esthetic viewpoint, a bank looks better than a dry cleaner, a candy store, a delicatessen and a florist. But from a practical point of view, it's a sheer disaster. If you want a newspaper, a candy bar or a chocolate milk shake, you can't get it at a bank. Nor can you run out to a bank for a pound of Swiss cheese and a six-pack of beer when you have guests coming over.

"A bank is great if you want to buy a car, but it's useless if you want to have your dress cleaned.

"And while a bank might buy flowers to give itself a human image, it doesn't sell any when you want to make up with your wife."

"WHAT YOU'RE saying then, Mr. Hubbard, is that every time a bank goes up, something in all of us dies."

"Exactly. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever. Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank."

"It's true," I said.

"The situation is more crucial than anyone thinks," Hubbard said. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in the country. What good is it to get 7 per cent on your money, if you starve to death?"

"THEN WHAT you're saying is that it isn't a question of not taking it with you. It's a question of staying alive while you have it," I said.

"Something like that," Hubbard agreed. "We're trying to get the public to wake up to the fact that it's better to have a store that sells screwdrivers than a bank that gives away alarm clocks."

"What's the solution?"

"A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services of the stores it tore down on the same property. If it's a bakery, they have to sell cake; if it's a photography shop, they have to develop film; and if it's a dry goods store, they have to sell warm underwear. If they provide the services of the stores they tore down, then we'll let them do a little money lending on the side."

Practical tips on how to get more for your money

Presented as a public service by private enterprise—this newspaper and your business-supported Better Business Bureau.

How smart are you in your job as "family purchasing agent"?

One survey found that most high school graduates can do a very competent job of shopping in a supermarket—can buy almost as efficiently as a professional home economist. Another study discovered that most women know exactly what to do when disappointed in a purchase: they complain either to the store, the manufacturer or the Better Business Bureau.

So it's quite possible that you already are the wise, informed shopper our headline talks about. But maybe some of these suggestions will help you be still more knowledgeable and alert.

Ask Right Questions

Before you buy anything except routine necessities, first ask: "Should I buy it? Can I afford it? If I buy this, will it deprive me or any of my family of something else we need more?"

Second, "What are my requirements? What specifications—exactly what size, capacity or whatever—do I really need?"

Third, "What does similar merchandise sell for elsewhere? What facts should I know about this item, and how can I get them?" (Suggestions for getting facts:

Think with ink before you buy

What does the label guarantee?

Rules for Buying

Finally, to get your money's worth, keep in mind these rules for intelligent buying: 1. Buy only from reliable businessmen. If you don't know the firm, see what the experience of others has been. 2. Don't shop for price alone. Quality can be just as important. 3. Read ads carefully. Be cautious when you see such claims as "unbelievable savings!" 4. Learn to recognize an honest salesman: he knows his merchandise, gives a full explanation, does not evade questions. 5. Never sign a blank contract. Always read before you sign. 6. Get all promises in writing. 7. If in doubt about a company or business practice, call your BBB.

Now, consider how these rules work out in practice:

Making Home Improvements

To help people select and work with home improvement firms, recently a survey was made of BBB experiences in 79 cities. It showed that most frequently persons who complain to Bureaus about home improvement contractors were distressed over poor workmanship or unfinished work.

These problems resulted, in part, from itinerant workers and high pressure selling, but also because many people did not seek out a reliable contractor or just decided on price alone. Many accepted verbal promises, did not insist that promises be put in writing. BBBs advise: Know the contractor's reputation. Make sure all work to be done is written into the contract, and read—and understand it—before you sign.

Make him put it in writing

TV and Radio Repair

Manufacturers are working constantly to produce trouble-free radio and TV sets. Still, electronic devices can have occasional operating problems, most of them readily solved by competent servicemen. However, your BBB suggests you know the reputation of a serviceman before you call on him.

Although most radio-TV service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of complaints. When a concern advertises home service at an extremely low price, it may be "bait" to get your set into the shop, where higher charges are added. Reputable firms provide qualified personnel and equipment, a guarantee on work and materials, a work order showing prices of each part.

Deal only with radio-TV repair firms you know to be reliable. When in doubt, contact your BBB.

Facts About Borrowing

To be safe and sensible when you borrow money, borrow only for worthwhile purposes, and only as much as you can repay comfortably. Payments of more than 15% of your total income could spell trouble. There are many ways to borrow—from your insurance, a bank, a savings and loan, a finance company, etc. And there are various types of loans—for example, a loan based solely on your signature vs a loan based on tangible security or collateral. Co-makers may be required, and interest rates may be higher, when the lender takes a greater risk. In obtaining money from a lending institution, the new federal lending law requires that you be informed of the total dollar cost of the loan as well as the annual interest rate.

Read and understand before you sign

These are just a few things smart consumers must know about buying specific kinds of goods and services. You also must know enough to reject such unscrupulous practices as "bait and switch".

No reputable company would stoop to such a practice, but some firms will run an ad offering a product at an extremely low price merely as a come-on. That's the "bait". When customers come in, the salesman tells them the advertised product is inadequate or "sold out"—and tries to sell them something more expensive, and often, over-priced. That's the "switch".

If a product is advertised well below the usual price, be cautious. Check the advertiser's reputation with your BBB. If you come in and the salesman tries to switch you, tell him you're just not interested!

Don't get hooked by bait and switch

Truth in Advertising

Fortunately, most business is honest; and over the years, advertising and selling have become more truthful and informative.

Thirty years ago, most people called the Bureaus to complain—about advertising or selling misrepresentation. Today it's just the opposite. Most people call the Bureaus not to complain but simply to inquire. Of the more than 4½ million calls to the BBBs last year, 9 out of 10 were inquiries—people who simply wanted to check on the reputation of a company or find out about some business practice.

Frequently, today's problems result from unintentional mistakes. In 80-90% of the cases, Bureaus report voluntary solutions. Even so, there's room for improvement. That's why communications media and business work constantly with the Bureaus to make advertising and selling honest and helpful.

BBB 6-Point Program

But that's only part of the BBB activity. To serve and protect you, the consumer, American business spends millions of dollars every year to maintain 147 BBB offices across the country. These Bureaus operate a 6-Point Program in your behalf:

1. BBBs answer your consumer inquiries. 2. BBBs act on your consumer complaints. 3. BBBs handle customer relations problems. 4. BBBs work with advertising and media to lift advertising standards. 5. BBBs offer you consumer information. 6. BBBs make facts about business-customer relations available to government.

How well does this business-supported program serve you personally? To a considerable extent, that's up to you. The more you use it, the more you benefit. Before buying anything, if you have doubts about a company, questions about a business practice, or simply want more information, accept this invitation and call your Better Business Bureau.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Primer For Political Appeal On Television

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Election time is near, and the Taft Broadcasting Co. has issued a "TV-Radio Handbook for Political Candidates." Among its points are these:

—The current trend is toward spot announcements rather than full programs. These spots, says the handbook, afford "the greater audience reach per dollar spent, frequency, and the opportunity to register a strong if limited impression."

"The problem with buying programs," it continues, "is that if you want exposure in high-audience periods, you have to pre-empt already existing popular shows . . . And accept the alienation of a large number of irritated viewers."

—"The longer the program, the more difficult it is to sustain viewer attention. For this reason, the shorter program periods, from five to 15 minutes, are preferable to the 30 or 60-minute programs, unless there is an unusually powerful film or special feature involved."

—Spot announcements are not practical or efficient for discussion of issues in depth, but are "excellent for getting across an impression of a candidate and for associating him with a single, important idea at a time."

—"You do not have to look like a movie idol. But you should be presentable, with modern, clean, pressed suits, collars that do not curl, shoes that are shined and not run down at the heels, socks that are plain, unwrinkled and which cover the calves, hair that is near."

—"It can be costly to dismiss makeup as 'sissy stuff.' For example, some men's beards show up darkly on the screen even when they appear acceptably shaven in person . . . When a candidate who is familiar to the audience appears 'different somehow' on the TV screen his TV image is a distraction. The audience concerns itself more with how bad he looks than with what he is saying."

—"To the lady candidate: Your main concern is to dress and make up conservatively. Extreme hairdos, too much makeup, over-dressing, sequins and sparkling jewelry will all distract the viewers' attention and detract from your own message. Noisy bracelets and necklaces have no place in a studio because microphones frequently amplify the sounds to the point where it is annoying."

—Keep in mind "you are not on a speaking platform or stage, but in the voter's living room . . . Avoid the heavy gestures and dramatic expression, loud tones or formal delivery. Talk directly to your (viewer) host, conversationally, calmly, in even tones.

"Look him in the eye. That means look directly into the camera eye. Occasionally, look away for relief, just as you would do in person. However, try not to look to either side, for that somehow makes you appear anxious or uncertain. Instead, glance downward, as if consulting notes."

—In trying to get news show the mechanical requirements you must meet, the simple fact remains that they mean little unless what you have to say is newsworthy . . . Your news story must compete with everything else that's going on in the world for a place in the news programs on the air."

Arson Fire Hits Mission Building

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A four-alarm arson fire quickly gutted an unoccupied three-story office building in downtown San Francisco Monday night that was hit by a general-alarm blaze a month.

"It's arson, all right," said Fire Chief William Murray as he stood in front of the burning building next to St. Patrick's Church on Mission Street.

Murray said the brick structure was heavily damaged in the earlier fire and several windows had since been bordaed up with wooden slats.

The fire, between Fourth and Third Street, was fought by 185 men backed by 44 pieces of equipment. No injuries were reported.

Firemen sprayed the church and several other buildings with water as cinders flew through the night air and landed on rooftops.

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 13, the 286th day of 1970.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Those born today are under the sign of Libra.

On this day in history:

In 1775 the Continental Congress ordered construction of a naval fleet, thus originating the United States Navy.

In 1792 George Washington laid the cornerstone of the president's house, the first public building erected in Washington D.C.

In 1937 Nazi Germany promised Britain and France it would not violate Belgium neutrality, a promise later broken.

In 1943 Italy declared war on her former Axis partner, Germany.

A thought for today: Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stevenson said, "There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Belgian Expert Charles Monk Knew How To Read Hand At Second Trick

"Did you ever know the entire hand at the second trick?" Belgian expert Charles Monk asked me a few months ago during the world championships in Stockholm. "Many times," I lied. "Well, try this one," Monk continued, paying no attention to my boasting. And he showed me just the North-South cards and the bidding of today's hand.

TOURNAMENT HAND

"I played this hand at the Cannes tournament this year," Monk told me. "The opponents were Jacobi and Catzeflis. The bidding was pretty normal for me. As you know, I like to bid."

This was the understatement of the year, but I just nodded.

"The opening lead is the ace of spades," Monk told me. "Everybody plays low. West then leads the queen of spades, and East discards a low diamond. What do you know about the hand, and how do you play it?"

EASY TO READ

It was easy. East couldn't have all five of the missing hearts since with an ace and a king he would respond to the opening bid of one spade. East surely had four hearts for his double of our hearts, and West's singleton was either the king or the ace.

East surely had only four diamonds since with five diamonds and three clubs he would discard a club at the second trick rather than a diamond. So East started with one spade, four hearts to the A-J-10 or to the K-J-10 and four low cards in both diamonds and clubs. There was a slight possibility that East had five low clubs, but then he would probably discard a club at the second trick.

WINS SECOND TRICK

Monk won the second trick with the king of spades and led a low heart. Then he won the spade continuation, took the diamond finesse and ran the rest of dummy's long suit, discarding three hearts and two clubs from his hand.

At the end, East had to hold the ace of hearts and could therefore hold only two clubs. Monk cashed the top clubs, knowing the queen would fall, to win his doubled contract and an overtrick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:

♥ - A J 10 7
♦ - 6 5 3 2
♣ - 9 8 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You would pass if partner opened with one spade, but your singleton is an asset if partner opens with one heart, and you can well aford to raise.

Board To Discuss Year-Round School

The San Rafael Board of Education is slated to discuss the year-round-school concept at 7:30 p.m. today at the district office.

Also scheduled for discussion are formation of the salary negotiating team for this year and priority itmes for the Citizens Advisory Committee to consider.

49ers' Sam Silas Talks About Depth

That word "depth" continues to rear its beautiful head among followers of the San Francisco 49ers and there are those enthusiastic enough to think it can carry the National Football League team to the Super Bowl.

It was depth — the shuttling of fresh men into the game — that beat favored Cleveland last month and it was Coach Dick Nolan's same masterful use of fresh material in the fefensive line that helped crush the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in the Coliseum.

"It was 106 degrees down on that field," said defensive tackle Sam Silas yesterday, "and while the Rams were sticking with their same offensive line, we were shuttling our defensive line. We could tell late in the game they (the Rams) were getting weaker and weaker."

Silas, addressing the 49er Goal Rushers of Marin at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael, was one of the eight defensive lineman who were awarded the game ball, the others being Charley Krueger, Roland Lakes, Earl Edwards, Tommy Hart, Cedrick Hardman, Bill Belk and Stan Hindman. It was the shuttling of those men in waves of four that completely throttled Roman Gabriel and the Rams. Gabe had his worst day of the year.

Nolan Bubbles With Praise

Silas laughed about a post-game incident when he was greeted in the dressing room by the usually stoic Nolan who bubbled: "We shut 'em out, Baby, we shut 'em out!" Those who know the reserved, quiet, almost shy Nolan will share Silas' amazement. Nolan is the Ed Sullivan of football.

Another amusing incident in the Ram thriller, Silas related to the 92 football fans at yesterday's luncheon (high for the two-year history of the club), happened after the rookie Hardman dumped Gabriel for a loss.

"Hardman was playing against Charley Cowan, a 10-year veteran and one of the best offensive tackles in the NFL," Silas said. "But big Cedrick handled him pretty well all day. Then, after he hit Gabriel, he pushed himself up off Roman's chest, then turned to Cowan and said, 'Sorry about that, old boy.' Most rookies have a certain amount of humility, but Cedrick has a certain flair about him."

Eight-Year NFL Veteran

Silas, who has been with the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals in addition to the 49ers in an eight-year pro career, says of the 1970 S.F. club: "Never have I seen so much talent on one ball club. We've got guys who can step in at any position and that position will not drop off in ability. Look at Elmer Collett, for example. Last season he was on the Pro Bowl team; this year Randy Beisler has beaten him out of his (left guard) position. It's like that throughout the squad. Keen competition at every position. No one has his job cinched."

Asked about middle linebacker Frank Nunley's great game against the Rams, Silas laughed: "He was like a wild man — never shut his mouth once all day. When he wasn't screaming and making tackles all over the field he was over on the sidelines yelling at everyone on the bench like a cheer leader."

Great Future For Taylor

Silas, who holds a Master's degree in physical education from Southern Illinois, and has worked toward a doctorate, says rookie c o r n e r b a c k Bruce Taylor ". . . will make it in a big way. Cornerbacks are not made, they're born . . . and he has it."

The 30-year-old defensive lineman from Carbondale, Ill. shared the head table with two Marin County highschool stars and their coaches — Larry Kerr and Coach Don Lucas of Terra Linda, and Bill Washington and Coach Mike Davlin of Tam.

The Goal Rushers announced that Silas replaced defensive tackle Charley Krueger due to a schedule mixup yesterday and that Krueger would appear at a future Marin club meeting. Next week it will be wide receiver Gene Washington at the Goal Rushers' meeting at the Holiday Inn, beginning at noon.

A Day Of Confusion For Official

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams officials declined comment Monday on Referee Ben Dreith who made at least one disputed call in a game against the San Francisco 49ers Sunday and also made a telephone call to double check on what down it was during one series.

The disputed call for which the official was booed by the partisan crowd came in the first quarter and involved Roman Gabriel, quarterback of the Rams who were upset 20-6.

Gabriel went back to pass on third down and 13 yards to go on the San Francisco 29. He was rushed and hit by linebacker Jim Sniadecki and as he put his arm up to throw he lost the ball and it flew backwards. It was caught in the air by 49er end Tommy Hart who headed for the end zone but was whistled down by Dreith.

"The referee blew the whistle as soon as I let it go and called it an incomplete pass," Gabriel said. "Then the 49ers got around him and complained and he was about to call it a touchdown. But I rushed up to him to remind him that he blew his whistle and he said, 'That's right, I did.'"

Dreith then ruled it was an interception but said Hart came in contact with Gabriel and fell to the turf and the ball was dead at that point — a first down for the 49ers on their own 43.

This ruling may be made to protect a man from injury when recovering a fumble, for eampxle, or in any situation where he is vulnerable to opposing tacklers.

In the last period, Dreith went to the s i d e l i n e s to telephone the press box and asked official statistician Chuck Weinstock to verify the down.

Dreith is a former American Football League official.

From Ace Pitcher To Shagging Flies

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Wayne Simpson says he's accepted it.

He even tried to laugh about it. He and Jim Maloney put on their uniforms in front of cubicles next to each other Monday in the Cincinnati Reds' dressing room before the off-day workout and Maloney joked, "we're in charge of shagging flies."

Simpson laughed. But behind the smiles, there was anxiety.

Simpson, the 6-foot-3, 210-pound righthanded pitcher who was the Reds' rookie sensation during the first half of the year, can't pitch during the World Series. He was 13-1 midway in the season and had a 14-3 mark when he was sidelined.

Neither he nor Maloney are on the Reds' series roster because their arms are ailing. It's nothing new for Maloney, who's had a long history of arm problems. But it's been a tough adjustment for the 21-year-old right hander who isn't used to putting on a uniform without being able to play.

Simpson would have probably been the Reds' opening game starter in the series, but instead he's had to stand around and watch and do things like shag flies.

"It's not so bad when we're winning," said Simpson as the Reds prepared to go into the third game with the Baltimore Orioles holding a 2-0 lead. "But it's really difficult when we lose. You feel so helpless because you can't do anything about it and you feel you're not making a contribution."

It's been frustrating, too, because the Reds have lost both games, blowing leads of 3-0 and 4-0.

One of the reasons why the Reds haven't looked like the team which stormed through the first half of the season is simply that they're not the same club. Simpson isn't on the roster and 20-game winner Jim Merritt is ailing and probably won't pitch.

Jim McGlothlin, who was 11-3 when he was hit twice by line drives in July, is still pitching, but isn't as effective as he was before the injuries. He failed to survive the fifth inning Sunday.

The result is that Simpson, who was the team's ace, can only be a cheerleader instead of a stopper as the team's staff flounders. "It's not over yet," he insists.

But his own season is over, and he can only wonder if his arm is going to be as good as new next year.

His trouble was that he simply pitched too much too soon. He threw 162 innings at Indianapolis last season, added almost 200 innings in Puerto Rico over the winter, then almost 200 more for the Reds. Almost 550 innings in about 15 months was too much for his young arm.

"Two games after the All-Star game, I threw a fast ball to Billy Williams of the Cubs, an inside fast ball, and I felt something in my shoulder. It just went dead, limp. That cleared up in a couple of weeks and then it happened again," Simpson said.

"Finally, I threw a couple innings in San Diego, but my arm was just tired and I didn't have a thing. A couple of days later it started hemorrhaging and got all black and blue. There was nothing that could be done except complete rest. I'd already had seven or eight shots of cortisone. I'd never felt that type of pain in my arm. I'd wake up in the morning and I couldn't move it."

Simpson hasn't thrown since, but he's hoping that a winter of rest and therapy will enable him to throw with the same zip he had at the start of the season.

While he sits and watches this year Simpson can only think about the future. "This team is going to be back here in the series several times in the next few years," he says.

Raiders In Need Of Back

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders are expected to pick up an extra reserve defensive back now that all-pro cornerback Willie Brown is sidelined by a shoulder separation.

Brown was examined in Los Angeles by a specialist Monday and may have to undergo surgery today. He is expected to miss four or five weeks of duty after suffering the injury on a diving pass interception during Oakland's 35-23 win over Denver last Sunday.

"The ball was overthrown, I dove for it and landed on my right shoulder. It tore on impact," Brown said.

Nemiah Wilson will move to Brown's right cornerback spot with former all-leaguer Kent McCloughan taking over Wilson's vacated position on the left side. George Atkinson and Dave Grayson remain the starting safeties, but rookie Alvin Wyatt is the lone replacement on the active roster.

Coach John Madden said the Raiders are dickering for the services of a veteran cornerback. However, the new acquisition probably would not be activated for the Raiders' game Monday night against the Washington Redskins.

Madden said he would like to activate middle linebacker and defensive captain Dan Conners, assuming Conners is fully recovered from a broken bone in his forearm. Conners would take Brown's spot on the roster and wide receiver Rod Sherman would fill in as a safety in case further injury problems hit the secondary.

Overconfidence? Nolan Not Worried

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Coach Dick Nolan doesn't figure he'll have to guard too strongly against overconfidence as his San Francisco 49ers prepare for Sunday's game against the New Orleans Saints.

The 49ers, exhibiting an abundance of poise to accompany their plentiful talent, are tied for first place with a 3-1 record in the National Conference West after beating the Los Angeles Rams 20-6. New Orleans, losers by seven points last week to St. Louis, has a 1-3 mark.

"All the players have to do is look around the league and see what happens every week," Nolan said. "You have to b e aware that you can lose at any time."

John Brodie, brilliant at quarterback for the fourth straight weekend, hit 13 of 20 passes against Los Angeles to improve his season percentage to a remarkable 66 of 99 for 67 per cent. He has yet to fire an interception.

Brodie got excellent protection from his offensive line while the Rams' Roman Gabriel was rushed continually by San Francisco's front four. The 49ers held Los Angeles to only 205 total yards and hope to do the same against New Orleans.

Defensive end Stan Hindman suffered a knee injury but may be able to play against the Saints. Running back Ken Willard and linebacker Dave Wilcox suffered minor knee injuries but should be in the starting lineup at Kezar Stadium. Wide receiver Dick Witcher, sidelined two weeks by a slight shoulder separation, also may be back in uniform.

MAYBE A CHIP OFF THE OLD BLOCK

Baltimore Orioles' first baseman Boog Powell had his seven-year-old son, J. W. Powell, along with him at yesterday's w o r k o u t for today's third game of the World Series at Baltimore. Powell homered in each of the first two games as the Orioles beat the Reds at Cincinnati twice, 4-3 and 6-5.

Gale Sayers Awaits Decision On Future

CHICAGO (UPI)—Gale Sayers, five time all league running back and holder of 17 Chicago Bears team records, waited today for the decision on his football future.

Dr. Theodore Fox said Monday, it would be "at least 27 hours" before the decision is made on whether to operate on the injured right knee of Sayers.

The fleet footed Sayers was injured during the first half of the game Sunday between the Minnesota Vikings and the Bears.

Fox said he would check the knee "several more times" before making a decision.

Should Sayers require the knee operation, it would be the second such operation in the past three years. He had surgery in the right knee missing part of the 1968 season, and his recovery was so great that last year he won the National Football League's rushing championship with 1,032 yards.

Fox described Sayers' latest injury as "a very rare type."

Packers In Narrow Win Over Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—"It was a Little League play," young San Diego Chargers' quarterback Marty Domres said after his club lost to the Green Bay Packers 22-20 Monday night.

"I didn't even see that back." Domres had g o o d reason to moan. He was transformed from hero to bum with one shot, a soft lob pass that veteran safetyman Willie Wood intercepted and returned 21 yards to set up a 14-yard winning field goal by Dale Livingston.

YAWNED

A crowd of 53,064 plus a national television audience of 20 million yawned through three quarters of defensive football in which two short third-quarter touchdown passes by Bart Starr gave Green Bay a seemingly insurmountable 19-6 lead.

Then the 15-year veteran suffered a stiff shoulder and coach Phil Bengtson sent in former local hero Don Horn, who used to play at San Diego State.

Horn's fourth pass was picked off by San Diego's Pete Barnes and returned 19 yards to San Diego's 38. Domres replaced Chargers' veteran John Hadl. Hadl completed only six passes for 53 yards while losing 55 attempting to throw. He had three intercepted.

Domres connected on a pass to rookie Dave Smith which gained 42 yards. Two plays later he gave to Willie Frazier on a 24-yard end around and San Diego had its first touchdown.

DISASTER

Disaster struck Horn again after the ensuing kickoff.

He faded to pass, saw Travis Williams was covered, turned around and, as he put it, "the guy (Joe Owens) was in my face. He hit my hand. It happens."

Bob B r u g g e r s recovered Horn's fumble on Green Bay's seven-yard line. Domres carried to the one and then handed off to Jeff Queen for the touchdown that put San Diego ahead 20-19.

Back came Starr and, injured shoulder or not, he hit Carroll Dale for 10 yards, handed to

Nats Baseball Team Is Near Bankruptcy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said today he had been told that the Washington Senators baseball club was near bankruptcy, but that he would do everything in his power to discourage any move to another city.

Kuhn told a House subcommittee that Senators owner Robert E. Short had told him the club's financial plight left him "no alternative but to go bankrupt or to move."

Kuhn said a transfer at this time was very remote, and "I will do everything in my power to keep it here."

Short, accompanied by manager Ted Williams, appealed for a better deal on the rent of Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, a bigger cut of concession receipts and a cut of parking fees which he does not now get.

Short, who recently added controversial pitcher Denny McLain to his club's roster, received a generally sympathetic reception from the subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the stadium owned by the D. C. government.

Discussing the controversial eight-player trade with sent McLain to the Senators, American League President Joe Cronin said Short "made a good deal" in bringing McLain to the last-place ball team.

UNITAS' OPINION:

Kapp's Bad Advice

HOUSTON, (UPI)—Baltimore Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas believes Joe Kapp will miss the Minnesota Vikings more than the Vikings miss Kapp and predicts the Vikings will go on to win the NFL title with his former understudy at quarterback.

Unitas said Kapp followed some bad advice when he held out on the Vikings this year and wound up playing for the Boston Patriots.

Unitas fielded questions Monday at the touchdown club, one day after his Baltimore Colts defeated the Houston Oilers in the Astrodome. Next week the Colts, playing their first season in what used to be the American Football League, meet a team they've been waiting to play for more than 20 months —the New York Jets.

Unitas predicted the Vikings would win the National Football League title (which this year is comparable to a Super Bowl victory because of realignment) with quarterback Gary Cuozzo replacing Kapp.

"Gary is a good ballplayer," Unitas said of Cuozzo, a former understudy to Unitas himself.

The Baltimore quarterback said the Detroit Lions are the darkhorse candidate for title honors and said Green Bay appeared to be regaining some of the form it displayed during the Lombardi era.

Unitas said the Vikings did everything possible for Kapp while negotiating with him this year. Kapp played out his option with the Viking last season.

"They offered him $100,000," Unitas said. "As far as I'm concerned $100,000 ain't bad. I think he had some bad advice.

"I've been playing 15 years and I never had any problems signing," Unitas said. "I think both sides have to give and take."

MILLION DOLLAR MAN

Making Sport A Business

By SIMON KAVANAUGH
(London Express Service)

LONDON — Mark McCormack was here looking like an overstated advertisement for himself. Six feet four, an electric blue mohair suit failing to conceal muscle, guileless blue eyes in a clean-cut tanned face. McCormack sat by the telephone in his graceful Park Street office as though only a sense of duty kept him from the golf links or the tennis courts.

LAWYER

McCormack lives sport from the moment he starts work at eight in the morning until he packs up near midnight.

But several million dollars and 70 of the hottest properties in international sports stand between him and the changing room. McCormack is the Cleveland lawyer who took hold of sport and made it a business proposition for the players.

Ten years ago McCormack saw a professional golfer's contract for the first time. "I was appalled. Those golfers were right over a barrel with some of the clauses."

MILLIONAIRES

Today, at 39, he has made millionaires of three golfers and has sewn up the careers of top men in sports as contrasting as skiing and cricket by the simple expedient of treating them as marketable commodities.

"He's attractive, humble, says the right things at the right time and has so many years ahead", he enthused over British golfer Tony Jacklin earlier this year. "Being so personable from a business standpoint he has everything a company could want".

Being described as a product might not be flattering to a sportsman, but McCormack's assessment that Jacklin could earn half a million pounds sterling over the next five years was probably adequate compensation.

Gary Player says, "But for Mark I'd have just been peanuts", and if it sounds like a testimonial in a sports magazine it may be because that's the kind of thinking McCormack fosters.

MARK McCORMACK
Sporting lawyer

"We represent professional sportsmen and try to do the best job for them by getting the most out of their careers and talents financially" says McCormack. "People like Joe Louis have been champions in a particular area and wake up one morning unable to be champions and with no money".

When you speak to McCormack of the general decline in sportsmanship he looks like a property tycoon being asked to comment on Monopoly.

"This is not to say I don't believe in sportsmanship, but I think these days the whole world involves competition. You play a game to win. You play fairly, but to win. I think if you get an unjust call you should protest. Just as in business if some one breaches a contract you go to a lawyer. It's nice to be friendly, but at the same time to pretend that inside the people shaking hands there isn't a fierce desire to win is just unrealistic, and there's nothing the matter with showing that fierce desire to win".

ALL SPORTS

McCormack has offices in Johannesburg, Tokyo, Sydney and in Canada and New Zealand, as well as in London and Cleveland. He represents racing driver Jackie Stewart and showjumpers David Broome and Nelson Pessoa, cricketer Geoff Boycott and skier Jean Killy. He even has model Jean Shrimpton on his books. His cut is said to be nearer 25 per cent than the customary 10 per cent, and he's long since a millionaire. But none of his clients complain.

Hockey: Blues Trip Canucks

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Gary Sabourin scored two goals in the third period Monday night to give the St. Louis Blues a 4-1 win over the Vancouver Canucks in a National Hockey League game.

Sabourin, a 28-goal scorer for the Blues last season, grabbed the puck on the right side of the Vancouver net, carried it behind the net and jammed it between the left post and goalie Dunc Wilson at 6:49 of the third period to break the 1-1 tie. Ab McDonald and Christian Bordeleau were credited with assists. Sabourin then scored the insurance goal on a 50-foot shot at 16:37 of the third period, also on assists by Bordeleau and McDonald.

70 SECONDS

Bob Wall added the final St. Louis tally with 70 seconds remaining in the game.

Captain Orland Kurtenbach had tied the score for Vancouver at :49 of the third period. He was trailing Wayne Maki, skating down the ice on the left side. As Maki reached the crease he dropped a pass to Kurtenbach, who had St. Louis Goalie Ernie Wakely out of position and scored. Murray Hall was also credited with an assist.

Red Berenson scored for St. Louis on an 18-foot shot directly in front of the goal at 12:54 of the first period after a pass from Bordeleau standing on the goal line just to the right of the Vancouver net. Berenson's weak shot angled into the net off Wilson. Berenson's goal was on the St. Louis power play while Pat Quinn sat in the penalty box with a double minor penalty.

2- POINT LEAD

The Blues have taken a two-point lead in the Western Division with Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia tied for second place. The Canucks were playing their first road game after beating Toronto and losing to Los Angeles at home.

Jim Hargreaves, a 20-year-old Vancouver defenseman, was playing in his first NHL game.

PREP FOOTBALL NOTES

Strong Defense In Marin League

By DAVID EINSTEIN

All deodorant jokes aside, the Marin County Athletic League football teams have not been very offensive in the first two weeks of the 1970 league season.

The San Rafael High School Bulldogs rolled up 265 yards in their only game but the six other teams are each averaging less than 200 yards per game. And the most points scored by one team in a game so far is a paltry 23, by Tamalpais in its season-opener against Redwood.

Since the Marin County teams, especially Drake and San Rafael, racked up some huge preseason scores against non-league opposition, it must be that the MCAL is strong defensively. And the strongest, to the surprise of no one, is defending champion Terra Linda, which has held two powerful opponents, Drake and Tam, to 80 and 153 yards respectively.

THIS WEEK should be one for the offenses, as Terra Linda and Novato collide at San Rafael Friday night, while on Saturday Drake goes against San Marin at Novato in an afternoon game and San Rafael hosts Tam under the lights.

That last-mentioned game could really be a display of fireworks as the league's two fastest running backs, Scott Duncan of San Rafael and Tam's Clifford Hall, face each other.

In games outside the MCAL involving Marin and Sonoma county teams, Redwood travels to Burlingame High Saturday afternoon, San Rafael Military Academy entertains John O'Connell of San Francisco Friday afternoon, and Petaluma plays at Napa and Rancho Cotate (Rohnert Park) hosts Analy (Sebastopol) that night.

Saturday afternoon Marin Catholic entertains St. Elizabeth's in Oakland.

IF THE FIRST two weeks are any indication, the MCAL may be one of the best leagues in Northern California for placekicking. In six games so far, four field goals have been kicked, including a 43-yarder by Tam's Terry Rutledge against Redwood to set a league record.

Not only that, but Novato's Bob Cooper has kicked two field goals, one in each league game, and those points plus three extra points place him among the top five in scoring.

Ironically, neither Drake's John Loane nor Urbano Boucsiequez of San Marin, considered prior to the season to be the two best placekickers in the league, has a field goal yet. Rutledge, on the other hand, is a tackle by trade whose talent at kicking has just recently been discovered.

MUCH OF the credit for the MCAL's suddenproficiency in the art of place kicking must go to San Rafael businessman Gordon Tovani, a one-time kicker for the Oakland Raiders who bills himself as "the world's greatest barefoot place kicker."

That may be a trifle eccentric, (although he's unchallenged in his claim to fame), but there is no doubting that Tovani has taken a great part in promoting and improving placekicking in the county His annual clinic for the art, held in the early summer, has paid off handsomely with a marked increase in field goal production last year in the MCAL and what will obviously be an even greater increase this season.

TOVANI HAS established a "place kicking unit award" which he is giving weekly to the kicker, holder and center in the MCAL who have the best game, placekickingwise. The first such award for 1970 goes, of course, to Rutledge, and his holder, Pat Dawson, and center Bill Rudolph.

Last week's award belongs to Cooper of Novato, holder Rex Rolle and center Mike Corder.

FORMER RAM, BEAR

Larry Brink Still Follows The Game Of Pro Football

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Larry Brink, Mill Valley automobile dealer, is an avid football follower, and when he's arguing the sport, he always gets in strong words of praise for the defense.

Brink, you see, is a former defensive end for the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears, so he has earned himself the right to be "for" the defense and "agin' " the offense.

Although he has been out of the violent game of pro football for 16 years, Brink, 47, weighs only four pounds more than when he wound up his professional football career with the Chicago Bears. The 6-foot-5 Brink is a solid 244 pounds.

LARRY BRINK
Gridion to cars

15TH PICK

He was drafted by the Los Angeles Rams as a 15th pick in 1948 after graduation from Northern Illinois State College in DeKalb, Ill. He played six years for the Rams as a defensive end and then was traded to the Bears where he played one season before stepping out of the football picture.

A native of Milaca, Minn., and a farm boy in his youth, Brink came to Mill Valley in 1956 to start a Lincoln-Mercury dealership and has been there since.

To keep in shape, he does a lot of tennis playing, at least three times a week, he says. "And," he adds, "you do a lot of moving around being in the automobile business and that helps keep you skinny."

This very big man and wife Leatha have three sons, and like chips off the old block, all are big guys. Barry, a senior tackle for the Dartmouth football team, is 6-foot-3 and weighs 240; Jan, now attending post graduate high school at Phillips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H., is 6-3 and 195, and Kevin, junior at Tamalpais High School, is pushing 6-4 and weighs about 170.

MED SCHOOL

Jan, like his older brother, is planning to play college football, but he hasn't selected a school yet, while Kevin is pointing his efforts to baseball rather than football. Barry, a pre-med student, is applying for medical school this year.

The senior Brink has been active as a coach in Little League and Babe Ruth baseball for the past 12 years and also has coached in the Pop Warner football program in Mill Valley.

He follows professional football very closely and when there's a game on television you had better shut the door because he's gonna be indoors for awhile watching it. Especially if the Rams are playing.

"Deep loyalty is hard to give up," he said about his former team. "Although my sons are more for the 49ers and Raiders." After Sunday's game in L.A. his sons should be much happier than their dad.

One of the gridiron moments he remembers most came in his last year, when he was playing for the Bears.

"It was on Nov. 27, 1954," Brink said. "My son, Kevin, was born at 2 a.m. and at 10 a.m. I had to be at the field for the game against the Rams, my old team. It was after 3 o'clock before I left the hospital.

LATERAL

"Well, the Rams got off to a 7-0 lead and were on our 13-yard line trying to score again. I intercepted a lateral and ran 87 yards for a touchdown and we went on to win the game. The team voted me the game ball and I took it with me when I returned to the hospital after the game." So his son had his first football before he was even a day old.

Brink, who enjoys watching a good baseball game now and then, feels football is now the No. 1 sport in America. "There is definitely a swing toward football now, and frankly, I think baseball people are worried about it," he said.

Meanwhile, he's going to keep watching football — and cheering for the defense, of course.

Baseballers To Visit Servicemen

NEW YORK (UPI)—Major League baseball greats of the past and present will visit U.S. troops in Vietnam and the wounded in hospitals in Japan, Guam and the Phillipines, it was announced jointly Monday by baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn and USO President General Emmett O'Donnell Jr.

Hall of Famer Bob Feller will head the first group scheduled to leave for Vietnam Oct. 27. Also making the trip will be Jim Nash of the Atlanta Braves, Chuck Dobson of the Oakland Athletics, Danny Cater of the New York Yankees and coach Joe Schultz of the Kansas City Royals.

Twenty-game winner Sam McDowell of the Cleveland Indians, along with Bud Harrelson of the New York Mets, Jim Rooker of the Kansas City Royals, coach Cot Deal of the Cleveland Indians and promotions director Arthur Richman of the Mets, will depart Nov. 1.

Willie Stargell and Jim Grant of the Pittsburgh Pirates, Merv Rettenmund and Eddie Watt of the Baltimore Orioles and Phil Niekro of the Braves will comprise the third group leaving Nov. 21.

Waite Hoyt, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, will head the final group, scheduled to leave Dec. 3. Accompanying Hoyt will be Richie Hebner of the Pirates, Ron Taylor of the Mets and Ed Kirkpatrick of the Royals.

Cal's Penhall, Stanford's Plunkett Both Win Honors

OAKLAND (UPI)—Too bad for Cal's Dave Penhall he had to have his best day of the season the same day that Stanford beat USC for the first time in more than a decade.

The Cal quarterback hit 15 of 25 passes for 276 yards and a touchdown in a 31-28 squeaker over Washington.

Stanford's Plunkett hit 19 for 275 yards in a comparable day against USC as the Indians upset Troy 24-14 and was named Pacific Eight player of the week for his efforts.

But the Northern California sports scribes named the two tossers as co-players of the week on the offense. Linebacker Jeff Siemon of Stanford won defensive honors.

Stanford calls on Washington State this weekend and it may take an adding machine to figure out the score. The Cougars have averaged 429 yards per game this year or nine more a contest than the nationally ninth-ranked Indians. But Washington State has given up 450 per contest.

California meets UCLA next Saturday and both teams leaked three touchdowns in the closing minutes last weekend. The Bears still beat the Huskies while the Bruins lost 41-40 to Oregon.

As Vic Kelley, UCLA publicist put it, "We may not know what we're going to do but we're entertaining."

UOP publicist George Thomas said that "they take their football seriously down there." Down there was in Louisiana where the Tigers from UOP battled the Bengals from LSU and lost 34-0. Thomas said it was only 13-0 at halftime and the defense played well all game.

San Jose State has the opposite problem. The Spartans rolled for 357 yards at New Mexico while the defense ad a rough night in the 48-25 loss. The Spartans call on unbeaten San Diego State this weekend in an even tougher test.

FISH AND GAME

Not Duck Weather, But We Found Birds

By AL GIDDINGS

Hot, cloudless,windless weather greeted duck hunters at Honey Lake in Lassen County for the opening of the season over the weekend. Ducks? They were mighty scarce on both the Fleming and Daken areas of the Fish and Game Department public shooting areas adjacent to Honey Lake.

Our little crew consisting of my wife, Mary, my daughter and Ken Walker and me arrived at Honeylake on Thursday about noon expecting to shoot the Fleming area. Ha! This was not to be. As we drove on to the area the big sign, "Full Quota" was already up. The area holds about 100 people and, imagine, they were already there by Thursday morning.

WE HURRIEDLY drove down to the Daken area and luckily made the line before it was too full.

We put up a tent, made preparations for the night, and readied the hunting gear for the next morning.

Dusty? You can't imagine how really dusty it was. If you could see me now — dust from head to foot. I'm waiting in line for a shower.

We got a fair night's sleep, getting up at 4 a.m. to check in. The shooting fee is $3.50 per person. We were out on the parking lot ready to go at 5 a.m., though shooting time was approximately 6:36 a.m.

WE EXPECTED to meet my old friend, Howard Leach, the hunting biologist from Sacramento who knows the area to some extent. He was going to guide us to a hot spot. Well, in the dark we couldn't find him, so we just took off in a hopeful direction. We walked about a mile, never seeing another hunter. Boy, we were out of it, but we came to a pond and decided to stay there. We put out decoys, and believe it or not, we had a good shoot; most of it in the first three hours of the morning. We didn't limit out, but we managed to get 13 birds for the four of us.

The average take per person was about two birds. I think all the other ponds were crowded, so we were just blind lucky to get where we did.

HOWARD and his son Ray got three birds between them, so you can see that things were slow. There was hardly a shot fired in the p.m., so if you're planning the long trip, wait for some rough weather. It'll help on the birds and also on the dusty conditions. Generally there is no waiting line after the first weekend except for the pheasant opener. It's a great place, but you have to rough it.

102-Mile Trip On Water Skis

OAKLAND (UPI)—Just to "try something different," an Alameda tugboat worker went for a 102-mile water ski trip Monday—from Oakland's Pier 29 to and around the Farallon Islands and back.

Gordon V. Price, 27, also said of the three-hour trip on a single 72-inch mahogany ski: "A few people have tried to do it . . . I thought 'why not?' It's my turn."

He wore a wet suit and traveled an average of 23 miles an hour while being towed by a boat driven by Harry Schilling, a restaurant owner.

Utilities Firm Has Rate Hike Problem

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have shares of General Public Utilities. What is the outlook for this firm? What about rate relief? C.K.

A. Nearly all electric utility companies are now faced with financing and rate problems. General Public Utilities is no exception. The company has requested rate increases amounting to over $60 million. To date, only $18 million has been collected on an interim basis. In view of General Public's low rate of invested capital return, its massive construction program with the resultant huge capital requirements, it is expected that favorable rulings will be forthcoming. However, while approval of all pending rate increases would bolster after-tax earnings by about $1.05 per share, mounting expenses, particularly interest charges, would probably halve this amount. For the first half of 1970, revenues increased 12 per cent while net income lost 12 per cent due to a 23 per cent increase in fixed charges and a doubling of corporate expenses. Dividend coverage is slim, for in the first two quarters, per share net, at 40 cents, just covered the quarterly payment. Carrying an above-average yield, 8 per cent, this issue is not without risks; greater income security may be found elsewhere.

Q. I have some stock in American Medical Enterprises, bought at 35. Should I average down in this issue? S.C.

A. Yes. American Medical Enterprises represents an attractive buy for appreciation. Moreover, AMI is a prime example of how a stock's price can be beaten down despite a solid earnings uptrend. The company reported substantial gains for the 9 months ended May, 1970, with per share net rising to 66 cents from 51 cents in the year-earlier interim. Full year results are expected to score at least a 20 per cent increase to 85 cents-90 cents a share. American Medical is well positioned as the only company exclusively engaged in the acute care general hospital field, with acquisitions being a major factor in company's expansion. Now up 130 per cent from its 1970 low of 10½, stock is still selling below its normal P/E of 30/1.

Rails To Invest In Coal Hoppers

CLEVELAND, (UPI) — Chesapeake & Ohio-Baltimore & Ohio railroads has announced plans to invest $24 million in an unspecified number of additional coal hopper cars to help meet the continued heavy demand for coal.

The order is the first under the line's capital improvement program for next year, according to Gregory S. DeVine, President. This year the line is acquiring a total of 3,600 coal cars at a cost of $42 million.

Sells Hi-Fi

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sterling Electronics Corp has sold its subsidiary, Hi-Fi Associates, Inc., and has arranged to sell Henry Products Co. and Mikado Electronics, Inc.

Prices Dip Fourth Day On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices declined for the fourth day in a row on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday in an extension of the profit taking that began last Thursday.

Near the final bell, the Dow Jones industrial average was off about 4 points at 760.13, while declines outscored advances, 744 to 484.

Turnover of around 9,000,000 shares compared with 8,570,000 shares traded in Monday's semi-holiday session.

Closing prices included American Telephone 44 Bethlehem Steel 21 1-2, Chrysler 24 7-8, DuPont 115 1-2, Ford 50 7-8, General Electric 82 5-8, General Motors 72 1-4, IBM 292 and Southern Pacific 31 3-4.

One analyst said the setback reflected general profit taking coming on the heels of big gains early last week, and a prediction Monday by Congressman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of a fiscal 1971 burget deficit of between $12 billion and $20 billion.

Mills also said he saw no signs of an upturn in the economy or an end to inflation.

Another analyst said "basically, third quarter corporate earnings are disappointing to investors." He noted that in some cases year-to-year declines were larger than expected.

Among the companies to report lower quarterly earnings were Westinghouse, Robertshaw Controls, St. Regis Paper, International Paper, A. O. Smith, Kimberly-Clark Corp., Monsanto, and Crowell-Collier. Most of these stocks, however, traded over narrow ranges.

Walter Kidde, delayed in opening as a result of an influx of trading orders, attracted selling pressure. The company received unfavorable comment in a Wall Street Journal article.

Among the stocks on the most active list were Westinghouse, Great Western Financial, Sterling Drug, and Carrier Corp. The last traded an early block of 67,800 shares at 33 1-2, down 3-4.

Prices declined in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange.

Additional Bay Docks Approved

By WAT TAKESHITA

New docks and berths for 307 houseboats in Richardson Bay won the approval of the Marin County Planning Commission yesterday after a five-hour hearing with Commissioner John F. West fighting the majority all the way. (Other planning commission stories, page 11.)

Miriam Tellis, George Kappas and Donlon J. Arques asked for a resort-commercial use permit for new berths to accommodate existing houseboats at Waldo Point.

All three won approval, except that Arques's request for 265 berths was chopped to 200 by a split vote.

Arques, who owns 25 acres at Gate 5, where the old ferryboat San Rafael is mired, asked for 265 new berths on four long docks that would jut out into the bay just north of Sausalito city limits. He also wants the ferryboat Charles Van Damme used as a restaurant, and a marine repair facility to be operated by T. J. Nelson.

County Planner Raymond Smith said the new berths would take care of 200 houseboats that already exist in Arques's harbor or are anchored outside, plus 65 additional houseboats.

The extra 65 berths asked by Arques ran into trouble, as the planning commissioners cut it down to 200. Margaret B. Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, Jack G. Nixon and Eugene R. Trombley voted to permit 200 new berths, with several conditions to be met by Arques, including a bicycle-pedestrian access along the entire waterfront.

Walter F. Freitas, John Hageman, and West dissented. Freitas said he saw no reason why the number of berths should be cut to an arbitrary 200, just because that happens to be the number of boats anchored there now.

West dissented on the Arques proposal, as well as on the other two, for a different reason. He charged that permtting a mass of houseboats in Richardson Bay is allowing residential subdivision in the name of resort-commercial zoning.

"I sit here and watch the county presiding over the de-

SECURITY TIGHTENS

Evelyn Gosser, a Marin deputy sheriff, searched the purse of Karen Tobin of Fairfax, a visitor at the Hall of Justice, as tougher security measures went into effect today at the Civic Center. This included search of all persons entering either the Hall of Justice or adjoining Administration Building, triggered by last week's courtroom bombing. County Administrator Alan Bruce said the Hall of Justice will be closed from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m., except for employees with proper identification who will be admitted after 7:15 a.m., and that only essential night meetings, such as those of governmental agencies, will be permitted. Moscow Denies Sub Base Claim

Says Lie Is War Scare

By HENRY SHAPIRO

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet government officially denied today it was building a nuclear submarine base in Cuba and accused the Nixon administration of deliberately or irresponsibly spreading "falsifications."

A government statement distributed by Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said the U.S. reports the Russians were engaged in building naval installations in Cuba "play into the hands only of those who are interested in fanning the war psychosis and complicating the situation in that region of the world."

"Those who deliberately or irresponsibly are taking up and spreading such falsifications play into the hands of the foes of peace," it said.

"The Soviet Union has not built and is not building a military base on Cuba and is not doing anything that would contradict the understanding reached between the governments of the USSR and the United States in 1962," the statement said.

The year 1962 marked the Cuban missile crisis when President John F. Kennedy ordered their removal in a tense confrontation that appeared at the time to be on the verge of breaking into direct conflict.

The Nixon administration first raised the submarine base issue Sept. 25 at a regular Defense Department briefing. A Pentagon spokesman said activity had been detected at Cienfuegos, on Cuba's southern coast, that could be the start of a base for serving nuclear Polaris-type submarines.

Later the same day a top White House official also expressed serious concern about the base—if that was what was being built. The official, who did not permit use of his name in accounts by reporters, said the United States would regard a base for missile submarines in Cuba "with the utmost seriousness."

The Russian newspapers dismissed the allegations within a

Orioles Win 9-3; Lead Series 3-0

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Southpaw Dave McNally clouted a grand-slam home run to help the Baltimore Orioles to a 9-3 victory in the third game of the World Series today.

McNally, who also hit a home run in last year's Series against the Mets, connected for his homer today off Reds' relief pitcher Wayne Granger.

The victory gave the Orioles a commanding 3-0 lead in the series.

Earlier, the Orioles had taken a 4-1 lead against Reds' starter Tony Cloninger on bases-empty homers by Frank Robinson and Don Buford and a two-run double by Brooks Robinson.

The Orioles knocked out Cloninger when Paul Blair singled with one out in the sixth. Brooks Robinson greeted Granger with a first-pitch double that sent Blair to third. Dave Johnson was purposely walked to load the bases. Granger then fanned Andy Etchebarren for the second out but McNally, a righthanded batter but a lefthanded thrower, slammed a 2-and-2 pitch into the left field stands.

He was the first pitcher ever to hit a grand-slam homer in a Series.

McNally gave up two hits in each of the first two innings, and then none during the next four, retiring 10 straight batters during that span.

Possibly wearied by his slugging feat, McNally gave up two more runs in the seventh, cutting the Orioles' lead to 8-3.

In that seventh, Lee May walked, moved to second on Hal McRae's single, to third as Tommy Helms forced McRae at second, and scored on Dave Concepcion's sacrifice fly to right. Helms went to third when pinch-hitter Woody Woodward singled and scored the Reds' third run on Pete Rose's single. McNally retired Bobby Tolan on a pop fly to end the rally.

The Orioles scored once more off Reds' reliever Don Gullett in the seventh to increase their lead to 9-3. With one out, Boog Powell walked, went to third as Frank Robinson singled to left and was thrown out at second trying to stretch it to a double, and scored on Paul Blair's double, Blair's third hit.

Canada Establishes Ties With Red China

OTTAWA (UPI)—Canada today announced establishment of diplomatic relations with Red China.

In announcing the diplomatic ties, Canada acknowledged the Peking regime as "the sole legal government of China."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp announced the move in the House of Commons and released a joint communique, distributed simultaneously in Peking and Ottawa.

"The government of Canada and the government of the People's Republic of China, in accordance with the principles of mutual respect for sovereignty and territorial integrity, noninterference in each other's internal affairs and equality and mutual benefit, have decided upon mutual recognition and establishment of diplomatic relations, effective October 13, 1970," the joint communique said.

"The Chinese government reaffirms that Taiwan is an inalienable part of the territory of the People's Republic of China. The Canadian government takes note of this position of the Chinese government.

"The Canadian government recognizes the government of the People's Republic of China as the sole legal government of China.

"The Canadian and Chinese governments have agreed to exchange ambassadors within six months, and to provide all necessary assistance for the establishment and the performance of the functions of diplomatic missions in their respective capitals, on the basis of equality and mutual benefit and in accordance with international practice."

He said Taiwan had been a major consideration in the negotiations in Stockholm, which began on Feb. 6, 1969.

"From the very beginning of our discussions, the Chinese

Arson Probe At Gnoss Field; Gas Lock Gone

While firemen and sheriff's inspectors probed the burned wreckage of the Blue Yonder Cafe and Spectrum Air offices at Gnoss Field today for the cause of the fire early yesterday morning, it was business as usual for Spectrum Air.

Novato Fire Chief Jack Kidder said that his department has not discovered the cause of the fire or whether it was arson.

President Harold Lipska of Spectrum Air confirmed the report that the lock on one of the gasoline pumps had been broken, and the lock not found.

This led to conjecture that the fire might have been started by a burglar, but Kidder would not comment on the possibility of a fire bomb or work of an arsonist until his department had made a thorough investigation.

Lipska said that Spectrum Air is operating as usual today. It moved into a temporary mobile office and would continue business. The hangar itself was not damaged in the fire.

The firm will completely rebuild its offices and the restaurant, he said. He expects the rebuilding to be completed in two to three months.

The firm lost some of its records, but the bulk are salvageable, Lipska said. It would be some time before the employees had sorted them to determine the exact documentary loss, he said.

The main loss to the building

Chinese Nationals Sever Canadian Ties Over Peking

TAIPEI (UPI)—The Nationalist Chinese government today severed relations with Canada because of Canada's recognition of Peking. It said Communist China was "the greatest single threat to world peace and security."

A statement issued by the Foreign Ministry said Nationalist China regards the recognition of Peking "as a most unfriendly act and has lodged a vigorous protest with the Canadian government" in addition to breaking diplomatic relations.

It said it would close its embassy in Ottawa as well as its consulate-general in Vancouver.

The statement noted that the United Nations in 1951 condemned Communist China as an aggressor for its armed intervention in the Korean War and said the rule of Mao Tse-tung on the mainland has uprooted traditional Chinese culture and led to the current turmoil there.

"It is a matter of utmost regret that the Canadian government should have finally announced the establishment of diplomatic relations with the Chinese Communist regime, which poses the greatest single threat to world peace and security," the statement said.

PRE-BOMBING INFORMATION BEING ASKED

Lt. Guido Battaglia of the Marin Sheriff's Department today appealed to persons who might have seen "anything that aroused their suspicions" before last Thursday's bombing of the Hall of Justice to call his department.

Information that "might seem trivial or unrelated" might still be of help to his inspectors, he explained, and he urged anyone who noticed anything unusual either last Wednesday or early Thursday morning to call.

Those with information may call Inspectors Kenneth Irving or Ronald Retana.

Acceptance Of Mental Chief—The Big Factor

By ERIK M. INGRAM

(Second of two articles)

Whether Marin's community mental health program is to be again torn by dissension appears to depend on community and professional acceptance of the next director of the Marin Community Mental Health Center, whoever he may be.

That director, one of the more than 20 applicants now being screened by a nine-member committee, will find himself directly responsible to two official agencies as well as indirectly responsible to myrial private lay and professional mental health groups.

Besides overseeing operation of the center, for which he will be answerable to the Marin Hospital District board, he will also be charged with planning the county's entire mental health program, for which he will be answerable to the county board of supervisors.

To be successful, he will not only need approval by the supervisors and the hospital district board, but also the endorsement of other mental health agencies and their lay and professional supporters.

Some observers of the mental health scene say divided opinion as to the center's program played almost as great a part

Terrorists' Lawyer Out Of Jail To Negotiate Ransom

MONTREAL (UPI) — The lawyer for two groups of separatist kidnapers was released from jail today, clearing one obstacle in the negotiations with the government to release two political hostages.

Robert Lemieux told newsmen he would meet government negotiator Robert Demers later today to continue talks aimed at gaining freedom for British Trade Commissioner James R. Cross, and Quebec Labor and Immigration Minister Pierre Laporte, hostages of terrorist cells of the Front de Liberation du Quebec (FLQ).

Lemieux said his initial talks with Demers, held into the early morning hours in the city jail where Lemieux has been held since Sunday, were "very elementary."

Lemieux entered no plea—formally listed in the records as a not guilty plea—to charges of obstructing justice and interfering with the work of police by statements made Oct. 9.

Judge Maurice Allard released Lemieux on his own recognizance pending setting of a trial date Friday.

$855,000 In Bonds Sold For Corte Madera Library

The newly created Marin County-Corte Madera Library Authority today sold $855,000 in bonds to finance a new regional library in Corte Madera at an interest rate of 5.991104 per cent to stock brokers Merrill, Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell, who had estimated the interest rate at 6.75 per cent, said the lower interest means a total interest cost of $495,015 over the 15-year life of the bonds. At 6.75 per cent interest, total interest would have been $557,720.

Two other bidders on the bonds were Kirchner, Moore and Co. of San Francisco, which offered an interest rate of 6.599605 per cent, and Bank of America, 6.2061 per cent.

The action came on a 4-to-0 vote of the authority board, composed of Mayor Edward W. Colthurst of Corte Madera and Supervisors Louis H. Baar, William A. Gnoss and Michael Wornum. It ordered the sale of the bonds and purchase of 2.6 acres off of property on Meadowsweet Drive, over the strong objection of the Marin County Taxpayers Association.

Donald M. Van Dyke of Novato, director of the taxpayers group, charged that the bonds are "gimmick bonds" which will open the door to unlimited

Weather Balloons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The space agency said today its Nimbus-4 weather satellite has been quizzing a flock of world-girdling balloons in a program aimed at improving global weather forecasts.

Last spring and summer 13 instrument-carrying balloons were launched from Ascension Island in the South Atlantic to float around the world at altitudes of 68,000 to 79,000 feet.

Four are still reporting their location and temperature and air pressure information to Nimbus some 700 miles above in polar orbit. Said NASA:

"Scientists believe a system of balloons electronically linked to weather satellites can provide extensive knowledge on global wind circulation and could be used in research to improve worldwide forecasting techniques."

TV Curbs Vetoed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congressional Democrats said today President Nixon's veto of a proposed limit on political broadcast campaign spending probably kills the issue for this year. The House and Senate have only a slim chance of overturning Nixon's action.

About the most the Democrats hoped to salvage from Monday's veto was the chance to make a political issue out of campaign spending. They leaped at the chance, accusing Nixon of opting for politics over reform and allowing bankrolled candidates to buy an election.

The bill would have sharply limited how much major candidates could spend on radio and TV campaign advertising.

Rail Line Bombed

BELFAST (UPI) — Two bomb explosions damaged tracks on the main railway line between Belfast and Dublin today, an army spokesman said.

The spokesman said "five pounds of explosive appears to have been placed under each of the two tracks " to cause the blasts about one mile south of Lorgan, 20 miles from the border of the Irish Republic.

A railway spokesman said damage to tracks had been slight and that trains were running normally.

British troops fired nausea gas at crowds in Londonderry where about 60 demonstrators hurled Molotov cocktails and rocks at soldiers and policemen Monday night and early today.

Stresses On Society

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) —A noted anthropologist said today human society is undergoing its greatest stress in 10,000 years, and the whole concept of government under law is being "tested to its uttermost limits."

Professor E. Adamson Hoebel of the Unicersity of Minnesota told the 1970 UPI editors and publishers conference that law is "the major tool of social control developed and used by the 30,000 generations of men who preceded us" and must be preserved "if we are to survive."

He said that even "erstwhile civil libertarians" would have to approve such harsh measures as preventive detention and limitations on free speech "if the chips were down on a choice between the terror of militant anarchy and the order of bare-bones societal survival."

Soviet-French Pact

MOSCOW (UPI)—President Georges Pompiduo of France today signed a Soviet-French declaration establishing regular bilateral political consultations between foreign ministers of two nations.

Pompidou and President Nikolai V. Podgorny signed their names to the document and to a Soviet-French protocol in a special noontime ceremony in the Kremlin.

Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko were among those who watched the signing ceremony.

Afterward, all stood and drank champagne toasts around the white-clothed table.

In Fifth Week

DETROIT (UPI) —The United Auto Workers' strike against General Motors drifted into its fifth week today with little chance the two sides would agree on a new three-year contract in the near future.

At the end of Monday's negotiations, Earl Bramblett, G.M.'s chief negotiator, said the company and union had tentatively settled one-quarter of the 400 outstanding national issues. But none of the items agreed to included the wage, pension and cost-of-living improvements which make up the guts of the union's demands.

Soviet Consul General Arrives

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Russia's consul-general designate to San Francisco arrived Monday on a house-hunting trip for the USSR's first consulate here since the depths of the Cold War in 1948.

Russian diplomat Alexander Zinchuk said he hopes the consulate will open its doors by the end of this year or early 1971.

Zinchuk, 50, met with both Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel and Mayor Joseph Alioto on his arrival at San Francisco International Airport where Hickel was waiting for a return flight to Washington.

Alioto told Zinchuk about his suggestion that the Soviets send craftsmen to help restore the old Czarist chapel at Fort Ross on the Sonoma County coast. The church was destroyed by fire a week ago.

NIXON LAUNCHES POLITICAL CAMPAIGNING

As if to signal his entrance into the fall campaign trail, President Nixon checks his watch as his wife greets an onlooker at Stamford, Conn., as they arrive for dedication of an Italian community center. The talk yesterday — part of Stamford's Columbus Day festivities — was viewed as the President's kickoff of three week's campaigning on behalf of Republican candidates. The White House said Nixon plans a marathon campaign trip Saturday in four states — Vermont, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin.

Red Action In Neutral Zone Climbs

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. Command today reported the highest level of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong activity in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) in more than a year. U.S. Marines apparently bombarded friendly forces by mistake, killing two Allied troops and wounding five.

Communiques from Phnom Penh said it was the quietest day on Cambodian battlefronts in a month.

The U.S. military command issued figures showing there were 175 instances of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong presence inside the 46-mile-long, six-mile-wide DMZ last week compared with 120 the previous week.

The command said the violations were the most in a single week since Sept. 26, 1969, when Allied reconnaissance recorded 225.

One of the conditions under which the United States halted the bombing of North Vietnam on Nov. 1, 1968 was that there would be no troop movements or buildups in the DMZ.

Meanwhile, U.S. troops killed 38 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong along South Vietnam's northern coast in fighting reported today. American Marines apparently shelled friendly forces in the same area by mistake, killing two Allied troops and wounding five.

American army ground units working with helicopter gunships killed 38 Communist troops at a cost of three dead and eight wounded, the U.S. Command said.

40,000 Troop Cuts Ordered By Holidays

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has announced there will be 205,500 fewer American soldiers in Vietnam this Christmas than when he took office 19 months ago.

Nixon revealed the new troop figures Monday, saying the total level Dec. 31 will be 334,000 soldiers, a reduction he said was made possible by progress in turning the war over to the Vietnamese.

The overall troop ceiling — the level beyond which total additions and subtractions of troop strength in Vietnam cannot go — will be cut by 40,000 between now and Christmas to reach the new level, Nixon said. He said this ceiling reduction is 30,000 more than originally planned.

The Army chief of Staff, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, said today, however, that men will continue being sent to Vietnam as Army replacements at the rate of 20,000 a month at least through uly 1.

The replacements fill vacancies left by men whose tours of duty have expired, or who have become casualties of the conflict.

Westmoreland, in a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Association of the United States Army, said the Army will still have about 200,000 men in Vietnam next summer.

Westmoreland also said the armed services will have to double or triple their enlistment and re-enlistment figures to achieve an all-volunteer force.

"I am announcing today that the Army is committed to an all-out effort in working toward a zero draft — a volunteer force," he said. "But we need support and understanding from the administration, the congress and our citizenry."

Westmoreland's statement came one day after Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird ordered the services to take necessary steps toward the goal of ending the draft in 1973.

"We need to increase pay," Westmoreland said. "And we will probably find that we must put our money primarily in those jobs which are most arduous and have the least applications to civilian pursuits —the infantry, artillery and armor."

Westmoreland said few volunteers elect to serve in the infantry in Vietnam. He said "for the near future we will continue to depend on the draft for most of our replacements."

Westmoreland said the draft must be extended beyond its scheduled expiration date July 1, and must be kept on the books for emergency use even after the "zero draft" condition is attained.

Blasts Lead To Tightening Of Security

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The government announced today it was tightening security at all federal buildings because of the recent outbreak of explosions and the threat of further violence by militants.

General Services Administrator Robert L. Kunzig, the overseer of all federal buildings, said open access to most federal buildings has been restricted and guards placed on patrol.

Security patrols have been ordered around the clock instead of the customary 6 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The move came after a day of eight bomb blasts — five in Rochester, N.Y., two in New York City and one in Orlando, Fla.

The explosions, which injured three persons, followed, coincidentally perhaps, warnings by the revolutionary "Weatherman" group that it would mount an offensive of terror.

Egypt Will Ask Major U.N. Debate

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad flew to New York today to ask the U.N. General Assembly for a major debate on the Middle East.

Official Egyptian sources said Riad's objective "is to get a strongly worded resolution that would condemn Israeli aggression."

In Tel Aviv, Prime Minister Golda Meir made it clear Israel was ready to resume the war if Egypt starts shooting after the end of the cease-fire Nov. 5.

"It takes two sides to make a cease-fire or achieve peace, but one is enough to start shooting," she told a meeting of the executive committee of her Labor Party. "Our defense forces will be ready for them if the shooting resumes but our deep and profound prayer is that it will not."

Israel, she said, is ready to continue the cease-fire but cannot stand by indefinitely while Egypt builds up its supply of Soviet-made missiles in the Suez Canal standstill zone.

"We are not ready to accept (a situation) where an agreement is no agreement, a promise is no promise and only we have to bear all the responsibilities and abide by all the committments while the other side is free to despise promises and do what it pleases."

While Riad is expected to try to get the United Nations to take up the overall Middle East question for the first time since the June, 1967 war, acting President Anwar Sadat said Egypt still was ready for indirect peace talks urged by the United States.

Parents Of Wayward Children To Be Cited

DETROIT (UPI) — Finding that punishing the children alone did not work, two suburbs Monday night passed laws to punish parents for the crimes of their sons and daughters.

The governing bodies of West Bloomfield Township and Troy —both havens of the well endowed—unanimously passed virtually identical ordinances to extract a maximum $500 fine and-or a 90 day jail stint from the parents of wayward children.

Both ordinances will go into effect 30 days after they are published, which should be within the next few days.

The seven-man West Bloomfield Township board acted first at a meeting attended by about 20 parents. After a few changes in the language, and a few words in praise of the new law, the board quickly adopted the ordinance, which read: "The township board finds that offenses against the laws of the United States, the statues of Michigan and the ordinances of West Bloomfield Township by minors under the age of 17 are increasing at an alarming rate and in a great many cases a lack of supervision and proper control by the parents or guardian is evidenced.

"The increasing problems of criminal offenses by children will not be solved by sanctions imposed upon the children alone. Therefore, it is necessary that sanctions be imposed upon parents whose neglect of their duty to properly supervise and control their children is a proximate cause of the delinquency of their children."

Troy's seven-man city commission soon afterwards adopted the ordinance in identical language at a meeting attended by about 200 persons, most of them drawn there by other local matters. Not a dissenting voice was raised.

PLIGHT OF CHICANOS

By JACK V. FOX

(Second of three articles)

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — There were 700 brown-skinned young people in a windowless room meant to hold 100 and the temperature rose to 120 degrees as the Chicanos stomped, clapped hands in accelerating tempo and shouted slogans of "brown Power." "Viva la Raza" ("long live the race") they shouted. One man drew an ovation by screaming "Viva la Revolucion."

It was an uncomfortable moment for the "Anglo" reporters and cameramen covering a "news conference" two days after the first real riot in the Mexican-American community in late August. It was a portent of uncomfortable days to come.

A coroner's inquest Oct. 5 ruled that the death of newsman Ruben Salazar, one of three killed in the riot, was not accidental.

Dist Atty. Evelle J. Younger said if any crime was involved it would be involuntary manslaughter. "I still have to determine if there will be criminal prosecution," he added. The verdict was only advisory, but Mexican-American leaders see it as a moral victory.

There are more than 1.5 million Mexican-Americans in California (800,000 in Los Angeles alone) and, after years of passivity, it is obvious the younger ones are following the lead of the Negro in demands which may or may not be backed by violence.

They have before them the manifestly successful campaign of Cesar Chavez to organize the grape workers in his drive to unionize agriculture which is now extending throughout the state and into other crops.

The generation gap is nowhere more marked than among the Mexican-American people of Southern California.

Two days before the outburst in East Los Angeles where three were killed, dozens injured and more than 100 persons arrested at a Chicano Moratorium rally Aug. 29, one of the city's top Mexican-American officials was talking about unrest in the community.

Alerico D. Ortega, a rotund, affable man in his 50s, is Mayor Sam Yorty's director of Latin American affairs and he is an example of the opder generation's comfortable enjoyment of living the way they have been for decades.

"We are as American as silver dollars," says Ortega. "If you came in here and called me a Chicano I'd throw you out. You know, actually, the word "Chicano" in Spanish means "fraud."

Rosalio Munoz, a handsome man in his early 20s, a former student body president at UCALA, is a perfect example of the younger generation's determination to change the old ways.

Munoz has defied his armed forces induction notice and was one of the organizers of the moratorium. He says Chicanos are dying at a rate of 3 to 1 over Anglo in Vietnam and urges his people to resist armed forces service.

CESAR CHAVEZ

In their more expansive moments, Munoz and his followers talk about taking back the "land unjustly taken from us" in the Sapnish American War.

Munoz and Ortega do have a number of things in common. Neither wants the Spanish community to be integrated — to give up their culture, language or ties of heritage and pride to become dissolved in a land they first settled in 1781.

Ortega does not make any pretense that all is rosy in the Mexican-American community and is particularly critical of the educational system.

"Schools are failing in my opinion in not recognizing the unusual sensitivity of Mexican-Americans and the need to instill confidence in them when they go out into the jungle we call the national economy," he says.

Ortega also points out there are 200,000 Mexican aliens and 70,000 Mexicans who have entered the country illegally who are at the base of much trouble.

But statistics demonstrate there is much more wrong.

—Mexican-Americans represent about 7.5 per cent of the population of California and about 15 per cent of the Los Angeles metropolitan area but they have only one Spanish-surnamed member among California's 39 congressmen and two U.S. senators.

—There is only one Mexican-American assemblyman in the state Legislature. There is not one on either the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors or the City Council.

—The dropout rate at the overwhelmingly Mexican-American Lincoln High School is 44.8 per cent compared with 11 per cent in virtually all "Anglo" Pacific Palisades.

—A recent study showed the average Mexican-American family income at $5,106 per year and Negro at $4,736. The average for the Los Angeles area was over $7,000. In a study of 500 families, only one Chicano made more than $10,000.

Drug addiction and juvenile crime are higher in the Chicano sections than anywhere else in Los Angeles.

There was shock after the violence along Whittier Avenue where scores of stores were broken into by looters, glass windows shattered and several establishments burned in a miniature scene of "Watts' "Charcoal Alley" of 1965.

Says Abe Tapia, president of the Mexican-American Political Association.

"There are a lot of prominent Anglos who are talking about looting and rioting but aren't saying anything about housing, unemployment, education or the drug problem."

It is difficult to get a breakdown of unemployment among Mexican-Americans because such statistics are not kept on a Spanish surname basis. But the best estimate is not as high as Negro unemployment although well above the area average.

Mexican extraction is far less prejudicial than Negro in finding jobs, but most Chicanos are limited to employment in factories, the construction industry, restaurants and bars, civil service and manual work. Mexican women have a good representation in clerical jobs.

The "barrios" of east Los Angeles scarcely live up to the connotation. The six-square-mile "separate belt" to the casual observer bears little difference from other vast flashy and shabby stretches of the vast city except for the language.

There are row after row of one story wooden frame houses, most of them built in the 1920s. One study of 500 families showed 52 per cent owned their own homes. It was estimated that in three quarters of the families, Spanish was the principal language.

Television has been an important factor in bringing a working knowledge of English to the younger people and the public schools are pushing a program of blingual instruction in the first three grades until students feel at home with English.

Chavez, of course, is the example of Chicano success.

There are about 235,000 farm workers in the state of whom more than half are of Mexican descent.

After five bitter years of strive and struggle, Chavez brought the state's table grape growers to their knees with a nationwide boycott of table grapes. It is safe to say that Chavez has organized more than 90 per cent of the table grape crop.

Chavez is now moving into the Salinas Valley, "salad bowl of the nation," and it is no secret he aspires to unionize agricultural workers throughout the United States.

The essence of the affair is that Mexican-Americans are being heard for the first time.

Rep. Edward Roybal, the state's only Mexican-American congressman, admits frankly that Chicanos are irritated about the grants and programs devoted to the Negro community while his larger community is virtually ignored.

The signs are they won't be much longer.

A Gunpoint Beginning For A City

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The legend is that Spanish grandees and caballeros founded the city of Los Angeles on Sept. 4, 1781, marching under the banner of Spain.

Franciscan priest Zephyrin Engelhardt, in his treatise "San Gabriel Mission and the Beginnings of Los Angeles" says that is not true.

Actually, says Father Engelhardt, they were a "sorry crowd of settlers" led virtually at gunpoint by a Spanish corporal and three soldiers.

Of the original settlers, there were two Spaniards, one Spanish-Indian halfbreed, two Negroes, eight mullatoes and nine Indians. Their children were five Spanish, four Spanish-Indian, eight Negro-Indian, three Spanish Negro Indian and two Indian.

AIP Candidate Hits Tahoe Plan

Thomas M. Goodloe Jr., American Independent Party candidate for California secretary of state, criticized proposals for Lake Tahoe regional government as a prime example of interference with local government, in his speech to a Marin County audience Sunday.

Goodloe, an El Dorado County supervisor, spoke in the Raymond C. Kesner home, Larkspur. He said that as chairman of his county's local agency formation commission and as member of several regional advisory bodies, he was familiar with state and federal bureaucratic pressures that threatened to "completely destroy" concepts of local government.

The candidate spoke briefly, presented a 45-minute tape recording of his views, and answered questions from the 20 person audience.

Census Expected To Estimate 6 Million Mexican-Americans

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1970 census is expected to show United States Mexican-Americans total more than 6 million.

The number will not be precise — the census count of Mexican-Americans will be based on a 5 per cent sampling in states of high concentration of Mexican-Americans. National estimates will be made from the sampling.

A census sampling released in March estimated 9.2 million Americans of Spanish descent, or about 5 per cent of the population. The total included 5.07 million of Mexican descent, 1.45 million of Puerto Rican descent, 565,000 Cuban, 556,000 Central and South Americans, and 1.5 million other Spanish-American descent.

The 1960 census showed Arizona's 194,356 Mexican-Americans were nearly 15 per cent of that state's population; California's 1.43 million, 9 per cent; Colorado's 157,173, nearly 9 per cent; New Mexico's 269,122, more than 28 per cent, and Texas' 1.42 million were 14.7 per cent of the total Texas population.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights said government statistics show these things about the southwest's Mexican-Americans their unemployment was 8.5 per cent in 1960 when Anglo-Americans' was 4.5 per cent, their median school years completed was 8.1 compared with more than 12 for Anglos and 9.7 for blacks. Among Mexican-American families living in urban areas of the southwest in 1960, nearly one third made below the $3,000 "poverty line," and in rural areas the figure was 52 per cent.

Teamsters Pickets In Marin For Fourth Day

Teamsters pickets, seeking to halt delivery of goods to Independent-Journal advertisers, returned to Central Marin for the fourth day today.

In a departure from previous strategy, pickets halted trucks entering San Rafael from Highway 101 in an effort to persuade drivers to turn back with their morning deliveries. It was unknown whether they succeeded in keeping any out of the city.

Lt. Jay Fletcher of the San Rafael police said pickets gathered at Heatherton Street and Mission Avenue, adjacent to the freeway, about 7:30 a.m. He said the halting of trucks delayed commuter traffic.

The pickets, some from Teamsters Union Local 70 in Oakland, also continued hit-run picketing at various Central Marin stores. Teamsters were known to have appeared at the Lucky market in Fairfax and at Safeway on B Street in San Rafael.

An unknown number of trucks was turned away from the Safeway store, said manager Sam Miller.

Unlike yesterday, no violence was reported this morning. Yesterday, a tire was punctured on a delivery truck at a San Rafael bakery and the windshield of a Safeway truck broken in San Anselmo.

Four teamsters were arrested in the tire incident, which occurred outside Langendorf United Bakeries, 629 Lindaro Street. However, only one picket, Martin Lewis Frates, 28, of Oakland, was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

Frates was accused of a misdemeanor count of vandalism and his case continued to next Tuesday for entry of plea. Judge Alvin H. Goldstein released Frates on his own recognizance.

The other three — Leroy David Nunes, 36, of Castro Valley; Albind John Vierra, 47, and John Alvin Bromstead Jr., 36, both of Union City — were released from Marin County Jail, although the district attorney's office was said not to have ruled out the possibility of charges against them as well.

The four were said by the bakery manager to have speared a truck tire with an ice pick.

The hit-run picketing, announced last month at a meeting of the Joint Council 7 of the Bay Area Labor Councils, is reportedly in support of International Typographical Union 21, which struck the I-J last Jan. 7.

Printer's Union Official Unclear On Flyer Delivery

A printer's union official testified today that San Francisco Typographical Union 21 ordered thousands of flyers printed in support of a mass rally Feb. 14 that erupted into violence around the Independent-Journal plant.

But Gregor Bachich, secretary-treasurer to the local, said he couldn't recall whether the flyers were brought to the union offices and distributed from there. Nor could he recall how many sheets the union ordered and paid for without checking records he did not have in court.

Bachich returned to Judge Thomas F. Keating's Superior Courtroom today in the fourth day of a hearing in which the I-J is seeking to prove that the International Typographical Union Local and Periodical and Newspaper Drivers Local 921, the Marin and San Francisco labor councils and union and council officials acted in contempt Feb. 14 and earlier, of the preliminary injunction Judge Keating signed Jan. 23, limiting union action against the I-J.

Friday, when Bachich's testimony was interrupted by a bomb scare, he had repeatedly said he could not recall whether the union discussed the rally plans late in January and early in February. Today he brought along the minutes he kept of the meetings at which the rally was discussed.

struction of Richardson Bay, trying to compromise all the efforts of the past," snapped West. "We are abusing the resort-commercial zoning in an attempt to make compromises. I feel this is bad planning."

Attorney Hugh G. Lawrence, representing Arques, declared he would appeal to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for the full 265 berths.

Lawrence argued that 265 berths are allowed under the county's marina ordinance and the Richardson Bay specific plan. He said the planned fingers of the new docks will be far shorter than existing docks.

The other two owners got by with less opposition.

Kappas will be allowed 84 new berths on 5.5 acres at Gate 6, with the main entrance on Yuba Street, almost exactly in line with the Marin City underpass road. He too will provide a landscaped pedestrian-bicycle path along his waterfront. Approval came on a 5 to 1 vote, with West opposing and Dougherty abstaining because he had missed previous discussions on Kappas' application.

Mrs. Tellis won a use permit for 23 houseboats on 2.2 acres of underwater land behind Kappas' property. She will use the same entrance as Kappas on Yuba Street. West was the lone dissenter on the Tellis application.

Houseboat berths approved yesterday all lie between Sausalito city limits to the south and Kappas' Gate 6. Previously approved were 35 berths at Kappas' Gate 6½.

This brings the total number of approved berths to 342, which is almost identical with the 343 houseboats which Planning Director Werner von Gundell estimated are sitting in Richardson Bay now.

If Arques wins his fight for the 65 berths that were lopped off yesterday, the total approved berths would be 407, or 64 more than the total now tied up in Richardson Bay.

Injuries Minor In Auto Crash

A San Rafael woman was treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday for a bruised forehead suffered in a one-car accident at 8:20 p.m. near 244 Coleman Drive in San Rafael.

San Rafael police said Kathy N. Brown, 19, of 9 Laurel Place was a passenger in a car driven by Annette L. Crawley, 19, of 125 Edward Street, San Rafael.

The right wheels of the car went into a drainage ditch, and hit a pipe causing the vehicle to lurch across Coleman where it hit a mailbox and railing of a car deck and finally stopped against a tree.

Two Arrested In Pot Probe

A San Francisco man and a Redwood City man were booked into Marin County Jail Sunday on suspicion of possessing marijuana after they were arrested about 4:15 p.m. in Princess Park in Sausalito.

Officers said they observed William Anthony Fries, 22, of San Francisco and Anthony Fred Cavallie, 23, passing a cigarette believed to contain the drug — between them in the park. Police confiscated the cigarette and arrested both men.

Each was free on $500 bail and both are to appear Thursday in Marin Municipal Court.

Theft Of Two Cars Reported

Two cars have been reported stolen in San Rafael, police said.

A vehicle owned by Brenda Grayson of 248 Union Street, Apt. 5, was taken from a carport at her residence sometime before 9:15 p.m. Friday, she told police. The car was described as a 1968 white Volkswagen with California license WDD 373.

Woman Injured In 101 Crash

A Novato woman was treated today at Hamilton Air Force Base Hospital for chest bruises suffered in an accident on Highway 101 at Lucky Drive in Corte Madera at 2:05 a.m.

The California Highway Patrol reported Michiko Meier, 38, of 1082 Acme Street, was a passenger in a southbound auto driven by her husband, Henry D. Meier.

Meier told officers his car had a blowout, causing it to swerve into the center divider.

Tree-Saving Pitch In Subdivision

Residents of Marin Highlands and the North Marin unit of the Marin Conservation League last night prevailed on the Novato Planning Commission to try to save trees in the hills of a proposed subdivision.

Approximately 80 persons objected to the plan submitted by Sono-Marin Builders Inc. for the Oaks Unit 2 in the Marin Highland area south of Vineyard Road and west of Sutro Avenue, according to Planning Director Brian W. Mattson. The plan called for cutting the tops of hills, filling in valleys and having pads for 80 houses on 37.5 acres, Mattson said.

The developer and commission agreed to continue the item indefinitely to see if some solution such as cluster housing, could be made to save more of the trees, said Mattson.

The Novato Planning Commission also:

REZONING — Approved prezoning of land outside the city limits from agriculture to single or multiple family for land north of Novato Boulevard, south of Novato Creek and west of the city limits.

USE PERMITS — Approved the application of McPhail's Inc. for a use permit for an asphalt plant at the northeast corner of Highway 101 and 37, and for Nick Morf for a beer parlor at the Sundown shopping Center east of Highway 101, south of Hamilton Air Force Base.

WAREHOUSE — Approved the City of Novato building a warehouse and offices at its corporation yard at the end of Davidson Street.

SOVIET

few days, accusing the United States of trying to sour relations with Moscow.

These were said to be partly the reason why Premier Alexei I. Kosygin decided not to attend the United Nations 25th anniversary meeting which starts Wednesday. This ruled out a possible summit conference with President Nixon.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow interpreted Washington's repeated references to the alleged missile base as possibly being based on broader policy considerations, including the Middle East crisis. Throughout, the U.S. officials acknowledged that only dubious and dated information was available to indicate missile sites might be being built.

As recently as Monday, U.S. Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird referred to the alleged bases. He told a Pentagon news conference:

"We would look upon the use of Cuba for this purpose as a very serious challenge, and one which does not follow the understandings I believe were comprehended by both sides in 1962." But he stressed the United States had no firm evidence in the case.

The official Soviet government newspaper Izvestia had described such speculation as groundless and said the reports were being circulated by the Nixon administration to seek from Congress "huge allocations for buying the latest type of armaments."

This was followed by today's official statement.

The Soviet government statement said Moscow always adhered to the 1962 Soviet-American agreement and "will adhere to it in the future, too, proceeding from the assumption that the American side will also strictly fulfil this understanding.

"Any assertions on a possible violation by the Soviet Union of the above mentioned understanding through the construction of a naval base in Cuba are a concoction," the statement said.

"It is well known that the Soviet Union, in general, condemns the building of military bases by some states on the territory of other states. More, the Soviet government has repeatedly made specific proposals at relevant UNO agencies and the disarmament committee for the dismantling of foreign military bases on alien territories.

"As for the use of the world ocean, the Soviet Union strictly adheres to operating principles and rules of contemporary international law. If Soviet ships and vessels enter ports of foreign states, including ports of the Republic of Cuba, on official visits and business calls, they do so with the permission of the governments of the states concerned. It is obvious that such calls are an inalienable right of sovereign states, universally recognized and confirmed by many centuries of international practice."

CANADA

side made clear to us their position that Taiwan was an inalienable part of Chinese territory and that this was a principle to which the Chinese government attached the utmost importance.

"Our position, which I have stated publicly and which we made clear to the Chinese from the start of our negotiations, is that the Canadian government does not consider it appropriate either to endorse or to challenge the Chinese government's position on the status of Taiwan.

"This has been our position and it continues to be our position.

"As the communique says, we have taken note of the Chinese government's statement about Taiwan. We are aware that this is the Chinese view and we know the importance they attach to it, but we have no comment to make one way or the other," he told Parliament.

Shortly before the formal announcement, the Nationalist Chinese ambassador to Canada, Yu-Chi Hseuh said he had tried unsuccessfully to persuade Canada not to recognize Red China.

"I have been doing my best to persuade the Canadian government to take good account of a friendship of long standing," he told an airport news conference as he prepared to leave Canada for good.

"Somehow I have failed in this mission.

"I think this will have an adverse effect on the international situation in the East and the Pacific, and will encourage the oppressors of the Chinese people."

Hsueh, who sold his house here several months ago in anticipation of the move, was leaving for New York to join the Nationalist Chinese Mission at the United Nations before returning to Taiwan.

Center Seeking Volunteers To Run Telephones

Both men and women volunteers are needed to train as operators of the Marin Suicide Prevention Center telephone service.

The suicide prevention center directors, headed by president Kathleen (Kay) Lyons, met yesterday at the Civic Center and issued a call for volunteers. About 100 volunteers are needed to run a 24-hour telephone service.

Training will start in November, and target date for opening is Jan. 1. Director Rae S. Taub said if training can be completed in time, the service may open before Christmas. She said volunteers should call the Marin Association for Mental Health at 1368 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Next meeting of the group is set for 4 p.m. Monday at Civic Center.

Driver Reported In Good Shape

An 18-year-old San Rafael youth was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with face and elbow scrapes suffered in an accident at 11 p.m. Saturday on South San Pedro oRad, a mile east of San Rafael High School.

The California Highway Patrol said Richard G. Hennig, of 1720 Grand Aenue, and a companion, Fernando A. Pinto, 21, of 1607 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Fairfax, were riding east on motorcycles when their machines bumped, causing them to go out of control.

Pinto was treated for cuts on the right leg, the hospital said.

Burglars Back For New Haul

Burglars who robbed a Fairfax residence last Friday apparently weren't satisfied and returned again yesterday.

Fairfax police said $225 worth of personal possessions were taken from the residence of Donn L. Hupp of 365 Scenic Road between 8:45 a.m. and 11:45 p.m. Friday.

Yesterday between 7:35 a.m. and 5:45 p.m., personal possessions valued at $1,121 were taken from the residence.

Police said it appeared to be the same person or persons responsible in both cases.

Hearing Set

indebtedness not approved by voters.

"You are exposing the taxpayers to a bonding method which permits this county to go into debt without limit," declared Van Dyke. He charged that "gimmick bonds" are not only outside the control of voters but also far more expensive than general obligation bonds. He appealed unsuccessfully for a halt of the bond sale. "You are opening a Pandora's box out of which can only come bigger and bigger tax bills to Marin County taxpayers.

and contents was covered by insurance, but the big question was insurance on the $150,000 Cessna 421 destroyed in the fire, Lipska said.

"The plane was owned by Capital Funding Co., but there is a question of the responsibility of the hangar and tie down on the plane," said Lipska.

The plane has been leased for Senator George Murphy in his campaign and had returned to Gnoss Field from flying the Senator to Sacramento just about an hour before the fire.

The fire did damage estimated at $250,000 to the plane, building and contents, Kidder estimated.

Trustees Take Land Off Market

Trustees of the Bolinas-Stinson School District agreed last night to take the Stinson School property off the market for the time being, in the hope the district can obtain a better price for the nine-tenths acre in the future.

Supt. Lester M. Horning said the board acted after two bids on the land, received in September, fell far short of the $12,000 appraised value.

The school board also authorized the superintendent to sell 60 excess desks the district has at a price to be determined by Horning.

Rockefeller Party Given For Goodell

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller has strengthened his demand that Vice President Spiro T. Agnew stay out of New York Republican politics by again boosting the election bid of Sen. Charles E. Goodell.

The Senate GOP leadership pitched in too.

Goodell, who has been labeled a "radical liberal" by the vice president in an effort to purge him from the party, circulated smiling among the $25-a-head crowd Monday night, showing off his Agnew wristwatch.

The cocktail party raised $10,000 to help Goodell, who is running third behind Conservative Party candidate James Buckley and Democratic Rep. Richard L. Ottinger in the polls. The fund-raising event was held at Rockefeller's 37-acre Washington estate.

Last week Rockefeller asked President Nixon to cool down Agnew's rhetoric and to keep him out of New York plitics.

Rockefeller could not attend Monday night's function. Agnew was campaigning in Texas.

In New York, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Arthur J. Goldberg fired two campaign workers Monday who were in a crowd of hecklers who threw eggs at Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller during a rally.

Goldberg met Rockefeller at a parade three hours later and personally apologized.

The Goldberg aides were identified as Peter Smith, a former campaign aide to Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, and Arnold Seggara, a former aide to Mayor John V. Lindsay.

Goldberg, who was described as "distressed" over the incident, also sent a telegram to the governor which said: "I knew nothing about this until after the event. I do not condone and I apologize for it. I deplore any interference in free speech."

The "event" occurred in the Lower East Side where Rockefeller had hopped atop an abandoned car to speak to some 100 persons who had been questioning and heckling him.

The governor, seeking an unprecedented fourth term, was not hit by the eggs.

Childhood Isolation Held Key To Drug Use

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Youngsters who felt isolated from age five or six until puberty are most likely to take to mind-bending drugs, a researcher reports after a five-year study in the Haight-Ashbury Distirct.

Dr. Stephen M. Pittel, whose Haight - Ashbury Research Project is funded by the National Institute of Mental Health, made his observations Monday after a close study of 200 regular psychedelic drug users.

"A common factor in all of them is a very, very early impoverishment in their relations with other people," the psychologist declared. "And so they have difficulty later in forming enduring lasting relations with other people."

"There is an early deprivation in mother-child relations and in family relations," he continued. "There are many variations on this theme, but it is always present."

During the period before adolescence, many youngsters have what psychologists call a "latent period" when they move away from the clutches of their family and develop peer relations, interests in athletics and certain skills, he continued.

Not having that respite, he said, often leads to drugs and continued isolation from children their own age.

One drug-using youngster interviewed had been forced to take piano lessons as a way of escaping a ghetto and consequently had no close friends among his schoolmates.

Others Dr. Pittel said "are too bright, too aware, too sensitive."

Those "can't find anyone they can share their world with. They have an embarrassment of riches," he added.

Former Deputy Testifies On Why He Shot Protester

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A former sheriff's deputy contends it would not have been practical to arrest a man he shot during Berkeley's "Peoples' Park" riot.

Lawrence Riche, now a truck driver, testified Monday that Allan Francke, 26, had a rock in his hand during the rioting and "I was lerry of him . . . I thought he had plans to throw the rock."

It would not have been practical to make an arrest, he continued, because there was "no place to put him in custody."

"So, you shot him," prosecutor Jerry Cimmet asked.

"Yes, sir."

"You could have walked toward him and moved him down the street," Cimmet asserted.

"That was not a good idea," the onetime Alameda County deputy replied.

"It was a better idea to shoot him," Cimmet asked.

"Yes, sir."

Riche also said he fired when it became "obvious" Francke was not going to leave the scene where the deputy was protecting another deputy who had been struck by rocks while operating a "pepper-fogger" gas-spewing machine.

"I aimed low, at his buttock area," Riche said. "He grabbed his buttocks and ran."

Francke was also hit on a hand and two men in the area were wounded by the firing. They are Clarence Edson, 44, a painting contractor, and Richard Ehrenberger, 35, an architect.

Riche is on trial in Federal Court, charged with viclating the civil rights of the men he fired on.

Arnie Bingham, the deputy who operated the "pepper-fogger," said he had been hit by two or three missiles.

The "Peoples' Park" riot started when the University of California tried to bar street people from a volunteer park they had built on a school-owned vacant lot.

No Charge Is Filed In Hitchhiker Case

No charge was filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against Stuart Henry Greene, 22-year-old San Francisco hitchhiker arrested Sunday on suspicion of possessing dangerous drugs.

The case is still under investigation by the district attorney's office, who plan to have the 14 homemade tablets taken from Greene analyzed.

U.N. Under Tight Ring For Birthday

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)— An undeclared strike by U.N. security guards and telephone operators ended today and the world body returned to work setting up massive security measures for the 50 or more heads of state arriving for the 25th anniversary session.

The Assembly begins work Wednesday and the heads of state will speak during the next 11 days. One of the speakers will be President Nixon, but Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin decided not to come, ruling out a summit meeting with Nixon.

SECURITY NEEDS

The need for strict security measures was pointed up by remarks in a prepared speech by William C. Sullivan, top assistant to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, that the radical Weatherman organization and "other anarchistic groups" might try to kidnap visiting government leaders.

The statement was in his prepared text but he omitted it when he delivered the speech Monday to the annual UPI editors and publishers conference at Williamsburg, Va.

In addition to the speeches there will be private discussions on matters such as the Middle East problem. The Big Four foreign ministers will be here— Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left Moscow today for New York.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers arrives Thursday night and will remain through Oct. 23, the day Nixon speaks. Rogers will meet privately with many of the foreign ministers present including Gromyko.

CALL IN SICK

Nearly one-third of the U.N. guards and more than one half of the U.N. telephone operators called in sick Monday to dramatize demands for more money and better promotion policies. The guard walkout temporarily jeopardized the security arrangements.

A spokesman said the men returned although their grievances have not yet been satisfied and are still being discussed. He said "only a couple" of telephone operators were still out sick.

Women Voted Draft Exempt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted, 36 to 33, today to exempt women from the draft in any constitutional amendment to extend to them equality with men.

The amendment to the proposed constitutional amendment on women's rights was proposed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., a leading opponent of the entire rights proposal. The vote brought from Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., the principal sponsor, a prediction that adoption of the antidraft provision "will be a major step toward killing the amendment."

Bayh and other backers said any change in the amendment from the form in which it passed the House would doom chances of final congressional approval this year.

P-TA Board Upset Over Program Cuts

The Mill Valley School District board last night received a letter from the Mill Valley Council of Parent-Teacher Associations complaining about program cuts made necessary by a budget pinch.

"We feel that the reassignment of personnel, the cuts in instructional expenses and supplies, and the reduction of maintenance and repair seriously hamper the fine educational program we wish for the children of the Mill Valley district," the P-TA said in its letter.

It called for complaining to the state about the elimination of the reading specialist program. Joyce Ladar of 30 Keats Drive said this was "the thing that was lamented most."

It also suggested reinstating the county audio-visual contract and the volunteer-aide coordinator although it did not say how to accomplish these goals.

The P-TA did have a method of retaining the outdoor education program, summer school and bussing: make the users pay.

However, Trustee Joseph E. Bodovitz wondered if such a set-up wouldn't signal the demise of free education.

"I'm reluctant to push for the frame of mind where we expect parents to pick up the tab," he said.

A letter complaining of state cutbacks was authorized, but no other action was taken on the letter.

Trustees Stop Short In Naming Student To Board

The Mill Valley School board last night extended open arms to district students, but stopped short of embracing a youth as an ex-oficio trustee.

Tempering a suggestion by Paul M. Cohen, a member of the Marin County Youth Commission, who called for student representation on the board, the trustees decided instead to invite the student council of Edna Maguire Middle School to a meeting and to solicit comment from them on how best to represent student wishes.

"Let them know that what Paul has done tonight doesn't take some kind of Congressional action," said trustee John H. Cutler.

Cohen pointed out that the Marin County oBard of Supervisors has passed a resolution calling for youth representation on boards dealing with youth.

"The youth commission feels that it is necessary for students to be represented so they don't feel oppressed and put down and they don't have any say about what is going on," Cohen said.

Trustee John G. Eliot said, "Kids should have as much access to this board as they want," but stopped short of suggesting one become a board member.

He and Cutler suggested opening channels of communication before considering adding a member if students want one.

Trustee Joseph E. Bodovitz said allowing one ex-oficio member would set a precedent for allowing others.

The Mill Valley School District Board Also:

Marinwood Firemen Reject Juvenile Hall

The Marinwood Fire Commission last night rejected a request from Marin County that the Juvenile Hall and its property on Lucas Valley Road be annexed to the fire district.

According to Fire Chief Gaylord E. Bonfield, the request was the second received from the county. The hall is currently in Marin County Fire Department jurisdiction.

Bonfield said he was directed to draft a letter explaining the district's refusal and listing improvements needed before the district will accept fire protection responsibility.

Bonfield said the county first requested the annexation in June 1969 but was turned down because Juvenile Hall has an inadequate water supply system and the Marinwood Fire Department is understaffed to accept the new area.

In a letter addressed to the county administrator's office following the first request, Bonfield said he listed the need for an additional man for his force, at a cost of $11,200; county installation of an adequate water system at the hall, at a cost of about $44,000; improvements to buildings; fire district approval of future buildings at the site and adequate access to all buildings.

Bonfield said today the county has not complied with any of his earlier suggestions in its second request submitted in September.

He said he was directed by the commisssion last night to draft a second letter reiterating the points made in his first.

The commission also agreed to budget for an additional firefighter next year.

Innocent Pleas Entered In San Diego Bribery Scandal

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Eight public officials, including Mayor Frank Curran and Assemblyman Tom Hom, pleaded innocent today to felony charges of bribery and conspiracy relating to fare increases for Yellow Cab Inc., of San Diego.

Superior Court Judge Leland C. Neilsen set trial dates of Dec. 7 for seven of the officials and Nov. 30 for the eighth, County Supervisor Jack Walsh. A ninth defendant, businessman Robert Covell, refused to waive receipt of a transcript of the indictment and will be arraigned next Monday.

All were released on their own recognizance.

Neilsen agreed to set Hom's trial date to a period prior to the Nov. 3 election, but his attorney said he did not think he could prepare in time. The judge said he would leave open the right to make a motion for a speedier trial.

Hom Monday complained that the charges came just before election time and he would not have a chance to defend himself before then.

Curran's attorney asked that his trial be delayed because of lack of time to prepare.

"It would be best to get these matters disposed of as soon as possible," Neilsen said, but he also left open the right to make a later motion.

Walsh was granted a different trial date because his attorney said his case is unreleated to the others. Walsh and Covell are charged only with not listing Pratt or Yellow Cab company as campaign contributors. Covell was campaign treasurer for County Supervisor Harry Scheidle.

All 70 seats in the courtroom were filled, and the aisles were jammed with onlookers.

Curran; Hom, R-San Diego; Councilman Allen Hitch, Mike Schaefer and Floyd Morrow; and Scheidle are accused of accepting bribes from Charles Pratt, president of Yellow Cab Inc., of San Diego, in return for favorable votes on a rate increase that hiked taxi fares 22 per cent in 1967.

All six, as well as Councilman Helen Cobb, also are charged with conspiring to "pervert and obstruct" justice and with allegedly agreeing not to report campaign contributions from Pratt.

Co-Chairmen For Bonds Named

Supervisor-elect Arnold Baptiste and Rev. Lloyd Gebhart will be cochairmen of the citizens bond committee for the $5.5 million sewer bond, Mgr.-Engineer Charles A. Joseph reported last night to the Novato Sanitary District board.

Other subcommittee chairmen are John Stuber, finance; Edward W. Adams, speakers; Ross Tankersley, business community; Evelyn Johnson endorsement, and Dr. Robert M. Dougherty, treasurer.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the conference room of the Bank of Marin at Grant Avenue and Fifth Street.

The board approved a land exchange with the city of Novato to square the boundary of the district land and that of the city's corporation yard at the end of Davidson Street. The district gave 9,600 square feet to the city and the city gave 5,200 square feet of land to the district in the exchange.

Lucas Valley Hit By Cable Break; Terra Linda, Too

Trouble in an underground power cable yesterday blacked out more than 1,900 homes in Lucas Valley and Terra Linda and delayed a lot of suppers.

The cable in Lucas Valley failed at 4:45 p.m. Most homes had power again an hour later, but it was 8:45 before the last lights went on again, according to Leonard O. Robertson, district electrical superintendent for Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

The blackout had a freak aftermath in the kitchen of the Holiday Inn in Terra Linda, at 6:37 p.m. Ventilator fans over the stoves failed to come on again when power was restored. As heat increased in the hoods above the stoves, fire protection devices triggered themselves and sprayed dry chemicals all over the kitchen, according to San Rafael firemen.

Electrical Implant Device Curbing Pain

CLEVELAND (UPI)—Development of a device that reportedly brings relief from chronic, disabling pain by sending electrical impulses along the spinal cord has been announced by researchers at Case Western Reserve University.

In making the announcement Monday, the university said the device in tests has usefully replaced drugs in the treatment of terminal lung cancer, disabling backache, and multiple sclerosis.

It consists of a pocket-sized radio transmitter and a receiver, about the size of a half-dollar, which is implanted under the skin in the upper back near the spine.

The electrodes send a series of impulses along the spinal cord, stimulating the large nerve endings and masking the pain carried by the nervous system.

The university said some 23 neurosurgeons are studying the effectiveness of the device in curbing chronic disabling pain in their patients.

Chief developers of the device are J. Thomas Mortimer, assistant professor of biomedical engineering; and Dr. C. Norman Shealy, formerly on the staff of the school of medicine and now with the Dunderson Clinic in La Crosse, Wis.

Calley Defense In Direct Westmoreland Accusation

FORT BENNING, Ga. (UPI) —A defense attorney charged today that Gen. William C. Westmoreland permitted the court-martial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. to save himself from possibly being brought to trial in the alleged My Lai massacre case.

Defense attorney George W. Latimer said there was sufficient legal precedent so that Westmoreland could have known he himself could be charged with the alleged massacre, since he was commander of U. S. forces in Vietnam at the time it is said to have occurred.

Latimer said if he were Westmoreland, "I would think, 'I'm going to do everything in my power to keep them from hanging me.' I think Gen. Westmoreland did just that, and I think he is still doing it."

". . . Gen. Westmoreland is under a cloud," Latimer said. "His actions give an appearance of evil."

Latimer further contended that since Westmoreland had a personal interest in the matter, he acted illegally in ordering Calley's court-martial.

The developments came during a preliminary hearing for Calley, accused of the murder of 102 South Vietnamese civilians at the hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968.

Westmoreland ordered Calley charged Nov. 24, 1969, after he had returned from Vietnam and been named Army chief of staff.

"I would think I would have many sleepless nights if I had the sword of Yamashita hanging over my head," Latimer said. He referred to Japanese General Tomoyuki Yamashita, who was put to death for crimes committed by his troops during World War II.

Westmoreland last month was accused by another My Lai defendant, Spec. 4 Esequiel Torres, of having the overall responsibility for everyone under his command and their actions.

Latimer said it was common knowledge that a large number of atrocities had been committed in Vietnam by friendly forces, including Americans, prior to the My Lai incident and Westmoreland should have made himself apprised of this and taken corrective measures.

"It was his responsibility to get out and find out what was going on," Latimer said.

Latimer said an inspection team went out in the field in Vietnam and discovered that approximately 50 per cent of the U. S. forces in combat areas were not versed in rules of warfare and had not been briefed on how to handle prisoners of war.

"I'm not here to execute Gen. Westmoreland," Latimer said, adding that he did not agree with the ruling in the Yamashita case.

But he said the knowledge of this case might well have influenced Westmoreland's decision in bringing the My Lai charges.

Earlier the defense charged that potential defense witnesses were refusing to talk with defense attorneys and asked access to testimony given before the House Armed Services Committee.

THE PUBLIC PAYROLL

Breakdown Of Salaries For College Of Marin

Salaries of public employees have been the subject of strong debate this year in budget sessions throughout Marin, at meetings of the board of supervisors, at meetings of city councils and of school district and special district boards.

Employees and their representatives, pleading for large pay increases, cited the rising cost of living and often argued that more money was paid in other counties, cities or districts for similar work.

Few employees got as much as they requested. Most local agencies granted more than they were willing at the outset.

The 1970-71 payrolls of all local agencies in Marin as of the start of the new fiscal year, July 1, are being published by the Independent-Journal during the next few weeks as a complete accounting of what is now paid public employees and as a basis of comparison from agency to agency.

No Mailing For Old Eyeglasses

Persons wishing to donate old eyeglasses to the Marin County Optometric Society's "Share Old Spectacles" campaign should not mail them, as asked in Thursday's Independent-Journal.

Rather, the glasses should be taken to the office of any California Optometric Association member. There a tax deductable receipt will be given for the donation, according to optometrist James C. Earnest, public information chairman.

The donated glasses will be professionally checked and rated, then shipped overseas for distribution to the needy.

Good things come in little oak barrels.

What makes a brandy smooth?
Mostly, it's the wood the brandy is aged in. That's why the best barrels are small ones which allow close contact between wood and liquor.
Almadén Brandy is aged in little oak barrels.
The result is a drink that goes down so smooth, you hardly know you're swallowing.
Give it a try.

as the division of authority (reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal) in the dispute a year ago between Dr. Clyde G. Miller, former head of the county's mental health services, and Dr. Donald P. Wilson, former director of the mental health center. Both lost their jobs in the fight.

How they differed as to their respective roles and — equally important — as to the kinds of programs at the center is evident in their comments made the other day.

Dr. Miller: There is a common misconception among many people that a community mental health center is a building. It's not. It is a group of five services — inpatient, outpatient, partial care emergency care and mental health education. By this standard Marin County had a mental health center in operation four years in advance of the construction of the building now commonly referred to as the mental health center.

In 1968, Dr. Wilson thought he was coming to Marin to organize a mental health center, or services. Actually he was coming to operate an existing program housed in a new facility. Those services had previously been dispersed at various locations.

Wilson was led by people discontented with the existing program — to believe he was organizing mental health center services.

His only responsibility in this area was to design inpatient and partial care service, previously on a very small scale, and to supervise operation of the center's other services.

He didn't see the center's role as part of a larger, countywide program which included services not offered by the center. Neither the supervisors nor the Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board ever clarified what the role was to be.

Dr. Wilson: There are those in the mental health community who assume that there are standard ways of running mental health programs.. And there are, but they have been done for a good many years and they are not being very effective.

So as a community psychiatrist, I feel I'm dead if there is not room to experiment. Nobody is doing anything today in a way that is more than promising.

One of the first problems encountered was inheriting Dr. Miller staff in children's services. They were not coping with patients' problems in a way that made any sense at all. They were not practicing a brand of psychiatry that made sense and yet they were a homogenous group of people who were determined they had one of the best children's services in the country. That service could not be changed without getting rid of the entire staff.

The place that reflected me and my methods were the inpatient and day treatment services. They were brand new and were part of the center I was responsible for developing from scratch as far as starting and creating a style of delivering services.

These delivery methods were opposed by those in psychiatry who cling to a professional image. To maintain that image, they have to keep assumptions going that there are ways of doing things that only they as professionals, know how to do.

Wilson, interviewed the other day, said the children's staff had been running its program, developed by Miller, according to what he termed a "classical model." Such a program, he said dispensed psychiatric treatment for a child much in the manner of medical treatment.

This involved, he said, examining a child, watching him in a playroom, performing some psychological testing, talking to his parents, getting a history of his growth pattern and putting this information together and arriving at a diagnosis and treatment plan.

Wilson said he had eight years experience with this treatment method before coming to Marin and had "discovered not a hell of a lot ever occurred." He said his experience showed parents didn't get the help they wanted for their children and the children never seemed to change much under such an approach.

"It's a medical model and I don't buy it," said Wilson adding that mental health programs had to facilitate growth in an individual not simply treat for disease.

He suggested instead that the entire family be diagnosed and dealt with, not just the chil.dIn this way, he said, the program can help the family "find more effective ways of getting what they want from one another."

To this end, according to observers, Wilson tried last October to integrate the center's adult and child service staffs.

The childen's staff objected. Miller claimed Wilson was trying to reprogram the two functions which under the county contract was the county's prerogative. Wilson countered he was simply initiating staff changes which was within the scope of his position as head of the mental health center.

The staffs remained separate and continue so today since the supervisors and hospital district board overruled Wilson at the height of the controversy.

Dr. James D. Green, president of the Marin Psychiatric Society, said the other day he felt children's services "was performing extremely well" under Miller's set up.

"Some modifications could have been made," he said, "but the favored treatment in handling children is the one-to-one (doctor-patient) relationahip." Limitations on manpower and money, however, have made impractical emphasizing the child and providing each child a pyschiatrist, he conceded.

Other areas of disagreement, Green said, centered around the staff structuring of the center's inpatient and partial care services.

He pointed to admission of patients under private care (as opposed to county patients) as an example.

"The conventional role of a medical staff, that is, doctors telling nurses and nurses telling technicians was eliminated (by Wilson) in inpatient and day care services," he said. "Everything was on a first-name basis. There was an effort to blur the lines of authority and identity. This was the basis of professional objection."

Green said that with this equality of positions within the center, it was not unlikely to have a nurse tell a doctor his (private) patient was not suitable for admission.

"Doctors are used to saying when their patients will be admitted," he said, "not having a nurse tell them."

Wilson said he established the services in that manner to facilitate operation by doing away with the usual preoccupation among staffs with the proverbial "pecking-order." First names were used, dress was casual and staff members had the responsibility of saying what they thought. This approach was superimposed on the psychiatric treatment of patients. It was a move, Wilson said, to set up a community of equals, and improve patient treatment through improving staff working conditions. He deemed it successful.

His informal approach remains in effect.

Dr. Miller said contrary to rumor he didn't object to Wilson's program, per se. "I could never find out what was going on," he said, blaming Wilson for failing to forward program description information.

Dr. John R. Guerrant, interim center director, and a candidate for the permanent post, said yesterday the programs established by Miller and Wilson at the center have not been changed substantially.

"We are initating just as few changes as possible to keep the program running until the (director's position is filled," he said.

While none of the selection committee members would give any indication of the type of director they are seeking — one with Wilson's philosophy or one with Miller's — it appears his success will depend on his ability to develop programs agreeable to a large segment of the mental health community.

Without complete program restructuring this may prove to be the only means of averting another mental health struggle like last year's. And it may prove to be the only means of overcoming the pitfalls created by division of responsibilities between supervisors and hospital board.

Study Asks Ban On Lagoon Development

A moratorium should be imposed on development in the Bolinas Lagoon Watershed, except within Bolinas and Stinson Beach communities, the Conservation Foundation recommended today in a 32-page report to the Marin County Board of Supervisors.

Conservation Foundation is a private, nonprofit corporation interested in saving environment. It had offered to make the Bolinas study without-charge, and the county accepted.

Arthur A. Davis of Washington, D. C., vice president of the foundation, and a team of consultants headed by David W. Walker submitted a series of recommendations to "protect beautiful Bolinas Lagoon from overdevelopment and environmental decay."

Other recommendations made by the foundation include:

1. An interim environmental zoning ordinance should be adopted to regulate development while planning is under way.

2. The lagoon should be protected as a wildlife refuge.

3. Fishing, canoeing, hiking, sailing, nature education and picnicking would be compatible with environmental protection. Hunting should be banned and so should motor boating, except in the passage from the berthing area in Bolinas to the channel mouth.

4. An ocean outfall line should be built for the area's sewerage system to control pollution .

5. No logging under current practices should be allowed. A sedimentation control program should be set up for residential development.

County supervisors accepted the report to be included in the county's current study of Bolinas Lagoon and its future.

Paternity Suit Against Sinatra

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Frank Sinatra Jr. has been named as the father of a 6-month-old boy in a paternity suit filed by a Las Vegas woman in U.S. District Court.

Carol Sue Edmondston claimed in the suit Sinatra was the father of her son, Victor, born in Chicago in April.

The suit asked Sinatra be declared the father and that he pay all expenses of the birth and support until the child reaches the age of 21.

Sinatra, reached at a Las Vegas hotel where he is appearing, said "this is impossible. There are no grounds for such an allegation."

TELEVISION AND CHILDREN: A HANDICAP?

ASHLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The amount of time a youngster spends watching television may limit his ability to communicate later in life, a psychiatrist and author suggested Monday.

Dr. Albert Glasser, author of the best-selling "Schools Without Failure" and "Reality Therapy," was keynote speaker to the Oregon elementary Principals Association convention.

"Young people have learned to value themselves excessively and television has had a profound effect on them," he said.

He said when children sit and watch TV there is a loss of "human interaction" which limits their ability to handle "the social skills of living."

Pickers Protest Picking Machines

HOLLISTER (UPI) — Pinot Chardonnay and Pinot Blanc grapes hung from their vines today at the 4,000-acre Almaden Vineyards—unpicked because of a labor dispute.

Some 300 pickers, all members of Cesar Chavez' AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, walked off their jobs protesting the use of three picking machines.

Woman, 85, Discovered Dead In Mill Valley Home

An elderly widow, grief-stricken by the death of her sister in a fire last week, died yesterday at her Mill Valley home.

Miriam A. Steimer, 85, apparently had taken an overdose of barbiturates, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. Her body was found by a neighbor at 8:30 a.m. in her apartment at 14 Evergreen Avenue.

A note found in Mrs. Steimer's apartment indicated, according to Madigan, that she had taken her life because of despondency over ill health and the death of her sister, Edna McGriff, 84, who perished Friday in a fire at her Homestead Valley home.

Mrs. Steimer was born in Latvia and came to California 75 years ago. She lived in various parts of the state and at one time operated a restaurant in Santa Barbara. She moved to Marin 30 months ago.

Air Pollution Panel To View Its Public Image

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area Air Pollution Control District directors will take a look at how the district looks to the public in a "workshop" meeting at 10 a.m. on Friday in district offices, 939 Ellis Street.

The discussion of the district's image, and its attitude toward the public, was set in the wake of reports by two Stanford University groups critical of the district's performance.

Also on the agenda is discussion of how to improve relations between the directors and the staff, and between the directors and the advisory council.

Other discussion items include possible new regulations on emissions of lead, odors and carbon monoxide, and a review of new state laws that may give the district broader power to control emissions from motor vehicles.

Sun Valley Park Smeared With Paint

Vandals took paint from a caretaker's building and smeared three large areas of Sun Valley Park on Solano Street Saturday night, San Rafael police reported yesterday.

A passer-by reported seeing three girls and a boy in their early teens in the park shortly after 10 p.m.; it was too dark to obtain any description. Police said the door to the men's restroom also was kicked in.

Computer Health Information Plan On Drawing Board

A computerized health information and referral service for Marin County is now on the drawing boards of California Regional Medical Programs Area I, a local planning committee has announced.

Although it might not be open for a year, the planning committee headed by Vivian Malmstrom of Novato is looking for public participation. Informing health-related agencies is also necessary, according to the planners.

The center will provide a computerized referral service for those seeking medical care of any sort and information on all facets of health.

Those interested in further information or in participating in planning should contact Sandra Halldorson, planning officer for the Area I programs, University of California Medical Center, 745 Parnassus Street, San Francisco.

Homeowners Help To Halt Mobile Homes Near Base

Air Force and North Marin homeowners ganged up yesterday to shoot down a new mobile home park planned just to the north of the Hamilton Air Force Base runway.

They convinced the Marin County Planning Commission that noise and danger from the Hamilton jets would make life miserable and unsafe for residents of a new mobile home park planned by Marvin Soiland and Associates of Bel Marin Keys.

Soiland planned 215 mobile homes on 32 acres of his 250-acre Novato Industrial Park, located to the south and east of Bel Marin Keys Boulevard.

Hugh Dougherty, John Hageman, Eugene R. Trombley, Margaret Azevedo and John F. West rejected the mobile home rezoning. Walter F. Freitas and Jack G. Nixon favored it. They declared the new mobile home park, which would be adjacent to the existing Las Robles Mobile Home Park, would be no worse off than residents of Bel Marin Keys or those living alongside freeway noises.

With the mobile home park deleted from the Novato Industrial Park, planning commissioners put off action on the industrial park itself until Nov. 9 so that Soiland can present a revised master plan.

Soiland's attorney, Albert Bianchi, brought in two accoustical experts to refute the Air Force charge that a mobile home under the flight path would be untenable.

Acoustical consultans Dariel Fitzroy and Billy D. Dobbs said they took a series of sound tests and found the noise at the mobile home site to be less than 100 decibels.

"The statement that this would result in hearing damage is utterly without foundation," declared Fitzroy.

Dobbs said the hill between the runway and the mobile home site muffles much of the sound, and trucks along Highway 101 would create as much noise as a jet takeoff.

Their findings were backed by four residents of Las Robles Mobile Home Park, who reported the aircraft have not disturbed them at all during their more than a year of residence near the flight path.

But the Air Force stuck to its guns. Capt. Reford Reid, acoustical specialist, reported he found sound intensities of 101 decibels at Las Robles Mobile Home Park and 119 decibels along Bel Marin Keys Boulevard. He said 90 to 95 decibels are enough to start causing hearing damage.

Clarence M. Ogle, real property officer at Hamilton Field, announced that 5,200 aircraft fly in and out of Hamilton each month. This means 173 flights per day, or one each eight minutes.

The officers said the Novato Industrial Park would be fine, but they would object strongly to mobile homes.

Several spokesmen from North Marin also opposed the mobile homes while approving the industrial park concept.

High Speed Train Project Reprieved

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Transportation Department has agreed to a temporary extension of the high-speed turbo train project between New York and Boston.

The agreement under which the project operates was to expire Oct. 22, but there was no indication how long the extension would last. Secretary John Volpe said the extra time would allow the government and the Penn Central Railroad to work out a new agreement.

Five Days Given In Battery Case

Judge Alvin H. Goldstein Jr. of Marin Municipal Court has placed Kenneth Vernon Ross, 25, of San Francisco, on probation for two years and sentenced him to five days in jail for a charge of battery upon a police officer.

Ross, who had first been charged with a felony charge of battery, later pleaded guilty to a reduced misdemeanor count of the same offense.

Ross tried to hit a California Highway Patrol officer while being taken into custody July 15 in Lagunitas after he was seen walking on Sir Francis Drake Boulevard clad only in a jacket.

Ross told a probation officer that he had unknowingly ingested something like LSD before the incident.

Novato Church To Collect Clothes

Clothing and nonperishable food will be collected Sunday by the Novato Presbyterian Church for the needy people of Novato, sponsored by the board of directors and the mission committee of the church.

The major portion of the food will be distributed through project help eleviate low-income people at the neighborhood service center at 875 Grant Avenue and the remainder will be used in the church's own relief work according to cochairmen Mary Cramer and Robert Lossman.

Humphreys Will Chair Red Cross

Col. Robert L. Humphreys of Tiburon has been elected chairman of the Marin Chapter of American Red Cross.

At the chapter's annual meeting in its San Rafael offices Thursday, other new officers chosen were Mrs. Edward Bingham of Greenbrae, first vice chairman; Charles Convis of San Rafael, second vice chairman; Donald Johnson of San Rafael, third vice chairman; Mrs. Susan Hossfeld of Kentfield, secretary, and Donald W. Chapman Jr .of San Anselmo, treasurer.

Elected to serve as at-large members of the chapter executive board were Col. J. H. Boling, Mill Valley; Mrs. Joseph Cooper, Kentfield; Rev. Henry Kent, San Rafael; W. Robert Lomax ,San Anselmo; Mrs. Harry Rothrock, San Anselmo, and Ross Tankersley, Novato.

The chapter's Henri Dunant Award was presented to the outgoing chairman, Rev. Henry Kent. Boling was named man volunteer of the year and Mrs. William Eckhoff of Novato was honored as woman volunteer of the year.

Court Approves 'In God We Trust'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The United States is legally warranted to inscribe its coins and currency with "In God We Trust," a federal appellate court ruled Monday.

The decision in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth District upheld Judge Lloyd H. Burke in U.S. District Court, who refused in 1968 to call a three-judge court to test the phrase's constitutionality.

Stefan Ray Aronow, of Woodland, Calif., brought the suit, contending the phrase on coins violates the Constitution's First Amendment, which says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof . . ."

Beinhorn Exhibit At Bell Savings

Black-and-white photographs by Courtenay Beinhorn are on exhibit in the lobby of Bell Savings and Loan Association headquarters, formerly Marin County Savings and Loan, at 909 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael.

Pub-Inn Hangs On In 4-3 Vote Victory

An English pub and wayside inn, planned at the entrance to Muir Beach, squeaked by the Marin County Planning Commission last night over widespread protest from residents of the beach community. (Another planning commission story, page 1)

Planning commissioners voted 4-3 to rezone 20,000 square feet of property at the corner of Shoreline Highway and Pacific Way from residential to resort-commercial.

The owner, Charles Felix, wants to put in a Tudor-style county inn with a tavern on the first floor and six hotel rooms upstairs.

Walter F. Freitas, Eugene R. Trombley, John Hageman and Jack G. Nixon voted for the rezoning. Margaret Azevedo, Hugh Dougherty, and John F. West dissented.

The decision must go to the Marin County Board of Supervisors for final action. A delegation of Muir Beach residents said they would fight the rezoning before the supervisors because they fear the rezoning would open the door for other commercial enterprises.

Felix and two supporters, plus a half a dozen opponents represented by attorney Gil Medeiros sat through a marathon hearing until 9 p.m. to get the decision.

Felix presented a map showing the bulk of the landowners in Muir Beach supporting his English pub. He said 27 old-time landowners are in favor, whereas the oppoents are "renters and transients."

But Medeiros and Leslie Smith, Muir Beach engineer, countered with another map and figures showing that 52 of the 68 homes in Muir Beach are "opposed to any kind of commercial zoning."

Among other speakers opposing the rezoning were Kathryn Bakhtiar, a director of the Muir Beach Community Services District; Sonja Thompson, representing the Sierra Club; Katherine Arnold of Mill Valley, representing the Marin chapter of Zero Population Growth; and two individual residents of Muir Beach.

Opponents argued that if Felix won a rezoning, adjacent landowners would also apply for commercial, and the natural atmosphere of the beach community would be destroyed.

Two backers of Felix said the community needs a place where residents can socialize, enjoy beer or wine, and perhaps pick up small grocery items.

The planning commissioners wound up a 12-hour day at 9:15 p.m. by approving plans for a new administration building at the Guide Dogs for the Blind Incorporated at 350 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael.

Indians Buy Boat, It Stops, Sinks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A 63-foot boat that sank in San Francisco Bay while en route to the Lummi Indian Tribe in the State of Washington is up for sale today "as is."

Tribesmen had acquired the Miss Behavior as surplus from the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries in San Diego and were sailing her north when she developed electrical trouble.

Its crew of five left the vessel here, expecting the Navy to move her north and unaware that she had a small leak around the propeller shaft.

When she was raised, it was determined that water damage repairs would cost $35,000, well above the insurance carried by the Indians.

Hearing Slated For Three In Cocaine Case

A preliminary hearing has been set for Nov. 3 in Marin Municiapl Court for four men arrested Sept. 15 in connection with an alleged $6,200 sale of cocaine.

Charles Noell, Hess, 27, of Forest Knolls, is charged with selling cocaine; Robert Barton Pemberton, Jr., 21, of Palo Alto, with possesing cocaine for sale and transporting the drug; Ronald Joseph Wishart of Mill Valley, possessing cocaine, and Anthony Guillory of Tamalpais Valley, possessing cocaine and mairjuana for sale.

Hess was also charged recently in Santa Clara County with three felony drug offenses.

THE FORMER HOME of the McNear family at 121 Knight Drive in Glenwood is the reason that a group of members of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer parish will have a house tour in the Peacock Gap, Bayside Acres and Glenwood area on Thursday. Proceeds from the 1 to 4 p.m. tour will be used to aid in restoration of the old home, which is now the church parish house. It also provides low-cost housing San Francisco Theological Seminary students and their families, who serve as caretakers. Downstairs church activities and community groups' meetings keep the house busy.

A House Tour To Restore An Old Home

"It really began with a phone call from Jolly Rogers Chapter of the Children's Home Society asking if they could use our parish house for their Haunted House this year, "Mrs. Angus Dun Jr. says.

"We thought we'd better take a second look at the old place."

That's when Mrs. Dun, the wife of the vicar of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer, and members of the parish decided they'd better do something to restore the parish house, formerly the McNear family home, at 121 Knight Drive in Glenwood.

The home, built earlier but rebuilt as "earthquake proof" in 1906, now houses the church Sunday school classes, some San Francisco Theological Seminary students and their families, and activities given by the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Glenwood School Parent-Teacher Association, Smoke Watchers and the YWCA day camps. The basement is the church's salvage shop.

"It's the only community center we really have in Glenwood," Mrs. Dun says. She figures that it will take some $7,000 to really refurnish the four-story brick and wood home, which also has unheated serv-

A BLENDING OF modern style and the natural setting is a trademark the late Frank Lloyd Wright's architecture, and the Bayside Acres home of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adams faithfully reflects the influence of Wright on its architect, Gary L. Tucker. The house, built in 1961, is set on the brow of a hill overlooking the north bay and McNear's Point. Redwood glass and brick is carried from exterior to the interior of the house. A freeform pool is set below the house, and on the hilltop a sitting area is located in the oak trees.

ANTIQUES AND family heirlooms dating the from early American history are among the possessions of Mrs. Fred Vogel of Peacock Gap, whose home will be on the tour Thursday. Here she displays a silver service that was a gift to her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Cornell, in 1868. Among the other interesting articles in a hall cabinet is Faith Vogel's silver pitcher made by John Myer of Philadelphia in 1773 and passed through her family from Dennis Cornell. Framed near the cabinet is a ship's certificate signed by George Washington for one of her family's fleet of ships.

Indian Women To Form Action Corps Oct. 31

Prominent Indian women from the United States, Canada and Alaska's reservation and urban areas will meet in San Francisco on Oct. 32 to form a native American Indian women's organization designed to strengthen the Indian family. The temporary name will be the National Indian Women's Action Group of NIWAC.

NIWAC's first general assembly, including approval of interim officers and the constituion, workshop and discussiions about objectives and procedures, will be held at the San Francisco American Indian Center, 225 Valencia Street, rom 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Any Indian woman may become a member of NIWAC if she is of duly recognized native American descent and is willing to take an active part.

The purpose of the organization is to promote the health, education, and welfare, to preserve the culture and heritage. to ensure the religious and civil rights of the american indian. An important objective is to preserve the beauty and protect the ecology of Indian lands.

The women plan to cooperate with existing Indian organizations in order to foster unity. This is to be a self-help organization geared toward encouraging Indian women to take a more active role in their communities.

NIWAC was started informally at the San Francisco Hilton Hotel on Aug 21 when a handful of concerned Indian women met to discuss the need for such organization as a way to find solu-

Older Women Feel Younger In The Mini, Says Balmain

"The main reaction against the midi length is from older women who are afraid of aging themselves wearing longer skirts," noted French coutourier Pierre Balmain states.

"With the mini, older women felt they looked younger. It was completely psychological. They were not looking younger, they were looking silly," M. Balmain said at a showing of his men's and coutoure collections celebrating the opening of Boutique Pierre Balmain for men in New York.

The French designer says "the younger generation is much less reluctant to try the midi, or the maxi which incidentally, I do not like because it doesn't go with our times. It catches on escalators," he said, "it doesn't fit into the life we live."

M. Balmain feels the midi will be accepted in America because it is "a very happy proportion. Of course American women will accept it. They always resist new fashion proportions at the

Senator Borah's Widow Will Be 100

BEAVERTON, Ore. (UPI)—The widow of the "Lion of Idaho" will be 100 years old Saturday and she still thinks her husband was right when he successfully fought to keep the United States out of the League of Nations half a lifetime ago.

Mrs. William E. Borah's political judgments come from keeping in touch with current events. "I have nothing else to do," she said.

So she listens to the radio in her room in the Maryville Nursing Home in this Portland suburb, keeps up an active correspondence with 20 or so relatives, old friends and children of friends, and looks forward to a visit each evening with her younger and seriously ill sister, who also is a patient in the home.

ASKED DURING an interview if the United States would have been better off to have avoided the world involvement which her husband fought for 33 years as a Republican leader in the senate, Mrs. Borah said, "Oh my, yes. He was right." She did not elaborate.

Borah was a leader of the "irreconcilables" in the Senate at the time the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations were being debated in 1919. When Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge began compromise negotiations with the Democrats, Borah threatened to move to replace Lodge as GOP leader in the Senate. Lodge dropped the negotiations and the Senate defeated the treaty.

As Europe moved again toward war in the 1930's, Borah opposed measures which might involve the United States. He died in 1949.

HE IS BEST remembered in his home state of Idaho as a champion of the income tax and labor legislation. Despite his deep fight with Presidents Wilson and Roosevelt over foreign affairs, he supported much New Deal legislation.

Mrs. Borah still thinks her husband was the greatest man she has known in American politics. "I've known the very top ones," she said. "But there was none like Billy."

She met Borah in her home town of Moscow, Idaho, when the young man was campaigning for her father, William J. McConnell, who was Idaho's second U.S. senator.

After their marriage Borah was named to the Senate in 1907 and they went to Washington.

MRS. BORAH RECALLS her friendships with many of the nation's leaders even after her husband's death.

"Whoever was in the White House would call up and say, 'Why don't you come over and have Sunday night supper with my wife and me?'" She did, of course, with Presidents Roosevelt, Truman, Eisenhower, Kennedy and Johnson.

She has been here since 1966. Now Mrs. Borah discusses politics with few people. She said she and Sister Kathleen St. Martin, who writes Mrs. Borah's letters and reads to her, "are on opposite sides of the fence--so we don't talk about politics."

MRS. BORAH KNOWS a big party is being planned for her birthday. "I guess it's a surprise for me," she said with a twinkle.

She remains not only alert but immaculate. Her hair was freshly done for the interview and her light pink nail polish was unchipped.

Her opinions remain strong. She described Vice President Spiro T. Agnew as "a man with the courage of his convictions."

Mrs. Borah has had only one serious illness — a long ago bout with parrot fever in Washington, D.C. Her eyesight is almost gone and she is somewhat hard of hearing. She walks but little.

"It's not too bad to be 100," she said with a slight smile. "I have a soft bed to sleep in and a nice easy chair to sit in. If only my sister would get well . . ."

'Necessary' Informers On Campus Help Cut Off The Drug Supply

DEAR HELEN:

At our high school the word is that there are 150 narcs on campus. That's probably exaggerated, but look. Two guys selling "mes" (mescaline — the big thing in drugs around here this year) got busted yesterday. About five grassers aren't in class this week. Everybody knew they sold, but they always figured they were safe. Somebody had to fink or they'd still be here.

Don't get me wrong. I don't hold, use or sell — not even grass. But when you can't trust other students because they might be junior Mod Squad types, who can you trust? Like the no knock law, I think this is unfair police tactics. — JIM

DEAR JIM:

Paid narcs (narcotics agents) on high school campuses? Possibly a few in larger schools, but not disguised as students, and not that many.

However, it's true there are more informers than formerly, as young people become more concerned about the drug problem. To help shut off the supply is sometimes considered necessary finking.

Read on . . .

DEAR HELEN:

I have never been prompted to write a letter to a newspaper colunm until I read "Live and Let Die Not Proper Stand" in Helen Help Us.

Last month a friend of mine died from an overdose of heroin. I knew Billy was using drugs, but all I said was, "He better stop!" I didn't even say it to him. After all, it was his bag.

Well, Billy stopped all right — in the cemetery. If only I and all the others who knew he was shooting up had opened our mouths, he would still be here. He wanted our help, but the only help he got was from the needle. He wasn't a hood. He was an ordinary, sensitive, intelligent human being. Nobody really knows why he chose drugs, but I know one thing: We shrugged it off with "live and let live" (just as your correspondent said people should do) — and we let Billy die.

How many more Billys will there be before we change our attitude? The police aren't our enemies here. They're mainly looking for the pusher. When we protect a known seller, we're maybe giving our friends a death sentence. —SOMEONE WHO CARES

DEAR HELEN:

Look around any classroom and you can spot the heavy dopers. But everyone closes his eyes because who wants to get anyone in trouble? If we could be sure these kids would be helped instead of busted, maybe we wouldn't go by the policy of "live and let die."

Until they change the system, so that drug addicts (or heavy users on pills or the spike) won't be treated like criminals, but rather like sick people, we'll keep on protecting them out of their minds. — NO FINK

DEAR NO:

I couldn't agree more: an addict or heavy user needs help, not punishment. And he can get help at free drug-abuse clinics to be found in almost every large town nowadays.

It isn't finking when you direct a friend to one of these centers . . . and keep after him, with every means available, until he gets there. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

You said the mild high you get from pot isn't worth the risk of being busted. High grade stuff produces considerably more than a mild trip. A tree a block away may look like it is right next to the driver. Stationary objects become animated. A highway intersection looks like a scale model of one. And the euphoria makes you feel immune to harm. To drive while smoking is the ultimate mistake. High quality grass is not mild. (But you can't often find it in the U.S.) — STUDENT ants quarters in the right wing and high ceilings with peeling paint.

House Tour To Be Held Thursday

From a small, 70 to 80 family parish, with no rental allowed by law from the house's use by the community, that amount seemed too much.

So they have organized a house tour of various homes and interesting decorative pieces to be held Thursday from 1 to 4 p.m. in the east San Rafael area from Glenwood to Peacock Gap. And from 2:30 to 5 p.m. a wine tasting will be held at the parish house, where the refurbishing will be done.

Lending their homes for the tour are Mr. and Mrs. James D. Adams, 125 Bayview Drive, Bayside Acres; the John Taylors, 110 Peacock Drive, whose home will have a formal dinner setting on the table and contains many antiques; the Mastyn Lloyd home, 124 Peacock Drive, where a formal English dinner party settiing will feature old English pieces from Mr. Lloyd's family; the Fred Vogel home, 249 Rivieria Drive at Peacock Gap, with a variety of family antique pieces and historic letters and documents such as a minutely-written sermon delivered by Mrs. Vogel's ancestor, Dr. William Cooper, who was pastor of the Brattle Street Church in Boston in 1717, and an Army Register from the War of 1812 which belonged to her great, great grandfather.

Also on the tour will be the David Kamp home at 412 Riviera Drive at Peacock Gap, featuring antique Chinese prints and a special table setting for a luncheon; and the home of Mrs. Marguerite Bates, 12 Driftwood Court in Glenwood, with its attractive waterfall, pool and gardens.

Tour tickets will be available at each of the homes during the tour hours, and tour guests will gather at the parish house for wine and cheese tasting. All proceeds will go toward restoration of the house.

Committee members are Mrs. Dun, chairman; Mrs. L.J. Howard, tickets; Mrs. Ron Magers, publicity; Mrs. Philip Judson, decorations; Mrs Mastyn Lloyd, hostesses; and Mrs. James Kennedy, wine tasting.

Germans Disagree About Mini Demise

By JOSEPH B. FLEMING

BERLIN (UPI) — Top West German fashion houses decreed yesterday the end of the mini, but German women disagreed and said they would continue to show their legs.

Leading designers opened the 11-day annual West Berlin spring and summer fashion shows by proclaiming "the knee is dead."

But a public opinion poll showed not only is the mini not dead but is growing in popularity among West German women.

The poll published in the newspaper Die Welt said only two per cent of women questioned favor the midi, and eight per cent the maxi.

TWENTY-FOUR per cent supported the mini, compared to 14 per cent two years ago.

The remaining 66 per cent represented women who basically wear the same dress length year in and year out no matter what fashion houses say.

Ulli Richter, a leading West Berlin fahion designer, at his show said, "The elegant woman does not show her knee any more. This is not a dictate but is a question of good taste, of a feeling for style, of fashion."

His shortened dress ended three fingers below the knee.

ANOTHER TOP West German fashion house, Staebe-Seger, said, "The long discussion about the length of dresses is over. The new dress length ranges from the covered knee to mid-calf."

But at the fashion shows elegant women sat in short dresses showing their knees and much more as the the models paraded by in their long dresses.

Similarly on the streets most girls wore minis, and a midi and a maxi were rare sights.

Portable Playgrounds

DUSSELDORF, GERMANY (GF) — A former West German policeman turned architect and outdoor furniture designer believes he has found the ideal way for young and old to get rid of aggressions.

Klaus Goehling of Duesseldorf, West Germany, has fashioned giant outdoor toys out of inflatable plastic sheeting.

The toys, resembling huge pillows up to 60 feet long and 12 feet high, are suitable objects to climb up, slide down, crawl on, run on, ride on and jump on without getting hurt, he says.

Goehling asserts his "pillows" are great for getting children together in group games and for teaching "mutual tolerance and understanding."

Since introducing his invention in Dusseldorf, he has displayed his "portable playgrounds" throughout Europe, always, he says, with good results.

Mrs. Philip Bass Of Tiburon Is President Of Reed District P-TC

Mrs. Philip Bass of Tiburon will head Reed District Parent-Teacher Club during the 20th year of unification of Tiburon and Belvedere into the Reed Union School District.

The attorney's wife was president of Bel Aire P-TC last year and library chairman two years previously. She has been a member for five years.

To promote the students' welfare in the Reed Union School District, Sharon Bass' committee plans several programs to encourage community support. Planned is updating of "Shark Point, High Point," a history of Tiburon Peninsula written by Del Mar School eighth graders in 1958. The collector's item is being updated by Mrs. Louis Teather, Tiburon Peninsula historian; Joyce Wilson, Del Mar teacher; and Mrs. Artelle Farley, Dominican College teacher. Mrs. Richard Goff, director-at-large of R D P-T C is in charge. The history will be introduced at a 20th anniversary celebration planned by Mrs. Robert Scarth.

Mrs. Bass has planned four special evening meetings to give parents and teachers an opportunity to share ideas about what is being taught in Reed District schools. On Oct. 22 a teachers' panel will discuss the reading program. Mrs. Charles Bassett, vice president of R D P-T C, is co-ordinator.

The new president appointed Mrs. Arthur Gensler to head a Council of Supplementary Programs. Her aim is to present cultural and special activities not ordinarily available. The council will make a survey of student's needs and requests, the available talent and programs. It will maintain a file on local talent and encourage ongoing programs by arranging for students to attend performances and offering appreciation classes. The council will invite volunteer talent to the schools.

Mrs. Bass' club will sponsor a bicycle registration, individual and group pictures and a monthly news digest. Her other officers are Mmes. Charles Bassett, vice president; Thomas Price, treasurer; Frederick Manley, secretary; and James Shepard, Reed Review editor.

Any parent or teacher in the seven schools of Reed Union School District may join.

A cum laude graduate of Smith College, Sharon taught secondary school from 1958 to 1964. She taught English and modern, European, English and American history to grades seven through 12 in California, Oklahoma and Michigan.

Sharon has lived in Marin six years. She is the mother of Timothy, 10, and Ellen, 4 years old.

Her enjoyment is reading "especially poetry, biography, autobiography and cookbooks." Beaching, "especially tide pools," tennis and skiing are also interests of the new president.

beginning. The acceptance comes afterwards," he told his audience at Hippopotamus.

M. Balmain, whose men's ready-to-wear is being sold in America for the first time this month, credits the current men's fashion renaissance to the Hippie revolution . . . the complete freedom in dress and the appeal of the Indian costume. There is always a reaction to any extravagance. In men's clothes there was a reaction against the sloppiness and the freedom, used in the worst sense of the word. "Also the Hippie Revolution stirred the men's fashion industry that was really falling asleep in a sort of routine of suits that were just basic and just useful.

"Now," said M. Balmain, "instead of just buying clothes to cover themselves, men are buying clothes to better their appearance, enhance their personality and make themselves more dashing. The idea that giving care to one's clothes makes a man a sissy has died.

"I don't believe in clothes as such," said M. Balmain. "I believe in clothes as part of a total appearance for both women and men. Clothes must be forgotten when worn. They must blend so completely with the personality of the wearer that he or she doesn't realize he's wearing the clothes."

$11.5 Million Bond Issue Is On Ballot

The financing of the first three years of a 10-year Marin Municipal Water District improvement program as well as the first stage of a project to bring Russian River water to Marin is at stake in an $11.5 million bond issue on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The bond proposal seeks $7.5 million for district improvements and $4 million for water supply, and both figures include small contingency reserves.

If the bonds are approved by voters, it will mark the beginning of a proposed $21,553,600 district improvement program and an initial commitment of the district's share of the Russian River water project.

Four more bond elections are tentatively planned in the next 10 years to finance the rest of both projects.

The bonds will be repaid through future district revenue without a tax levy and without an additional increase in water rates — which were hiked 25 per cent last month — according to a study by San Francisco financial consultants Stone & Youngberg.

The $7.5 million improvement program will replace and enlarge facilities, many constructed before 1900, to meet modern water supply demands.

The bond issue, if approved, will not finance water for new subdivisions or undeveloped property nor the proposed Southern Marin Sewer system, according to the district's general manager, William R. Seeger.

The system improvementts, to be completed by 1974, include:

Four transmission lines, totaling approximately six miles, to increase water supply from the district's watershed reservoirs at a cost of $1,280,500.

Installation of 42 miles of pipeline throughout the district to replace older and smaller distribution mains which carry water from storage tanks or transmission lines to the consumer, at a cost of $2,789,880.

Six redwood storage tanks with 100,000 — gallon capacity and 10 steel storage tanks, ranging from 500,000 gallon to five-million-gallon capacity, at a total cost of $1,520,000. The tanks will increase the district's storage capacity by nearly 17 million gallons to approximately 67 million hallons.

Increasing pumping plant facilities at a cost of $292,400. The work will include replacement of 12 obsolete standby pumps; installation of a pressure pump system to alleviate low water pressure in four areas and installation of two new pumping stations and relocation of two others.

Expansion of the district centralized control system which will provide a computerized monitor system for tanks, pumps and lines at a cost of $195,000.

Enlargement of the San Gernoimo Treatment Plant from a capacity of 16 million gallons a day to 30 million gallons, at a cost of $1,300,000.

The other $4 million in bond monies, if approved, will provide pipeline, four pumping plants and a 20 million gallon underground reservoir near Corte Madera which will connect the Marin municipal district to North Marin County Water District facilities.

The connection of the districts between Hamilton Air Force Base and Novato, as well as the ultimate Sonoma-Marin aqueduct to bring Russian River water into both districts, is needed, according to Seeger, to guarantee a future adequate water supply to Marin County.

Historically the district has obtained its water supply from rainfall collected in its 17,000-acre watershed and stored in six lakes — Alpine, Bon Tempe, Kent, Nicasio, Lagunitas and Phoenix — with a 17 billion-gallon capcity.

Consumption has now passed what Seeger called the "Safe Yeild" level of 10 billion gallons a year. At that rate of consumption, he said, two abnormal years of rainfall could put the district in trouble.

With the completion of Nicasio Dam in 1961, all economically feasible water supply sites in Marin were exhausted, according to the district.

The Russian River water plan, to be financed jointly by the two Marin water districts and the Sonoma County water agency, will provide an adequate water supply into the 1990s.

The connecting pipeline which next month's bond issue is intended to finance will allow the Marin municipal district to purchase additional water from the North Marin district for an estimated three to five years until the Russian river water project becomes operational.

Also included in the $4 million portion of the bond issue is $250,000 for improvement of watershed lands. The funds will be used for maintenance, maintaining trails, improving picnic areas, fire protection and control and water and sanitary facilities.

A group called Marin Citizens for Yes on Water Bonds, with Rex T. Silvernale of San Rafael serving as chairman, has formed to work for the two-thirds majority needed for passage of the bond issue. No formal argument against the issue appears on the ballot.

Festival Protesters Call Art Committee Hypocritical

The Mill Valley Fall Arts Festival committee has been criticized for "hypocritical audacity" by a group of war protestors who ran into trouble with both the committee and Mill Valley police at the festival Sautrday.

The protesters, who call themselves the American Playground, set up a booth Saturday selling burned meat as "napalmed flesh" and models of human genitalia labled "government subsidized imports."

The group also distributed posters reading "Too political (signed by) Festival Committee" to artists participating in the festival.

About 25 artists covered their art work with the posters protesting the committee's rejection of a student protest are exhibit for inclusion in the festival.

Committee members ripped the posters down despite the protests of the artists, said Mark Estrin of the American Playground.

In a letter to the committee, the Playground said that Saturday "by posing as war profiteers peddling such gruesome memorabilia of the Indochina war as My Lai souvenir remnants and napalmed Vietnamese flesh, we tried to counter the hypocritical audacity which would dare censor political art."

"There can be no haven — even in Mill Valley — until the war is over and American racist imperialism lies deal in its cave," the letter said.

Estrin said the American Playground is a "street theater group" of about 15 members who live in Mill Valley.

The letter was mailed to the committee yesterday, he said.

Bry's Display

Marin County photographer Michael Bry's works — mostly black and white prints — are on display this month in the Larkspur Library, according to Patricia Kaiser of the Larkspur Friends of the Library.

Trash Bash In Novato For 2 Days

The Fall Trash Bash, in which residents of Novato will have free pickup of prunings and clippings, will be from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Oct. 25, it has been announced.

The central collection spot will be at Rowland and South Novato Boulevards.

This campaign differs from the Spring Trash Bash in that work will be by volunteer help. During the Spring cleanup, the city paid for hauling away the debris. Bresnan-Dalecio Inc., Ghilotti Brothers, Fernando Clementino and Marvin Soiland have volunteered trucks and drivers for the campaign.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce will have a cold drink station for the volunteer workers.

Tax, Bond Measures Endorsed

One tax and two bond measures have been endorsed by the Novoto Congress for Community Progress Committee said chairman Gordon L. Lee.

The committee, following up the proposals made in the May Congress for Community Progress, endorsed the tax override for the College of Marin, the bond issue for the college and the Novato Street bond issue, Lee said.

The tax override, measure B on the November general election ballot in the county, calls for killing an existing 35 cent tax override due to expire on July 1, 1972 and substitutes a 25 cent tax override for an unspecified period.

Measure C is for a $17 million bond issue to construct the Novato campus of the college. It was favored by the committee.

The Novato $3.25 million street bond issue was also given committee support, Lee said. It is measure D on the ballot.

The committee will also support the Novato Boy's Club, the Marin County Human Rights Commission, the development of a Novato human rights commission, enacting of an anti-litter ordinance in Novato, development of park facilities and the preservation of Novato Creek.

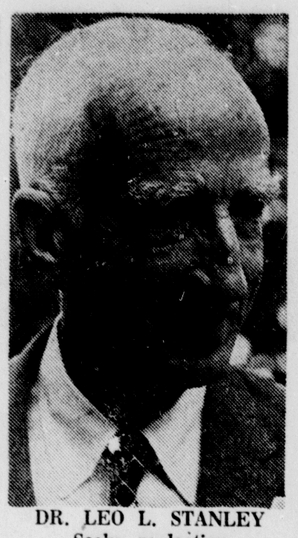
Group Named To Push College Ballot Measures

The Marin Community College District board has named a committee of citizens from throughout Marin under the chairmanship of Kent O. Seymour of Mill Valley to push its ballot measures.

Edwin Johnson of San Rafael was selected treasurer of the group to plump for propositions B and C which are on the Nov. 3 ballot.

The committee is to meet tomorrow at 8 p.m. at the county schools office to discuss its campaign.

The propositions would replace a 35-cent override tax for capital outlays with a 25-cent override for operations and provide $16.9 million in bonds for new construction.



DR. LEO L. STANLEY

RAY W. FOREAKER JR.
Runs for water board

Stanley, Foreaker Vie For Water Post

A challenge for the seat of a 24-year veteran member of the Marin Municipal Water District board will be decided by voters in the district's first Division Nov. 3.

Dr. Leo L. Stanely, 84 year-old incumbent opposed by engineer Ray W. Foreaker Jr., 43.

Two other candidates for the seat were eliminated in the June primary election in which Stanley received 4,708 votes and Foreaker 3,385.

District 1 encompasses Lagunitas, Forest Forest Knolls, San Gernoimo, Woodacre, Fairfax, Seeepy Hollow, Terra Linda, Marinwood, Hamilton Air Force Base, Santa Venetia, Los Ranchitos, all of the district's watershed lands northwest of Alpine Lake and North San Pedro Road northwest of McNear's Beach.

Stanley was chief surgeon at San Quentin Prison from 1913 until retiring to private practice in 1951. A native of Oregon, he has lived in California since 1895 and was graduated from Stanford University and Cooper Medical College in San Francisco.

In his bid for reelection, Stanley stresses his long experience on the board and his familiarity with the district.

He said he thinks it is important to have a doctor on the board because of sanitation issues and he described himself as a "common sense conservationist" who knows the "ecology of the district watershed as well as anyone."

Stanley and his wife, Bernice, live at Crest Farm in Fairfax.

Foreaker, a San Rafael Civil Engineer, has served as a consultant to water districts on planning and designing water systems. He is Tiburon city engineer on a consulting basis and a partner in the firm of Copple & Foreaker.

He is a native of Oakland and a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley and Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, N.Y.

Foreaker is chairman of the Marin County Aviation Commission and the Marin County Board of Appeals.

If elected to the water district board, he said, he would like to get involved particularly with the Southern Marin sanitation situation.

He said the board needs a "younger, more aggressive" membership to meet current, modern problems.

Foreaker lives with his wife, Jeanne, and their four sons at 42 Edward Avenue, Santa Venetia.

Royal Mint Plans To Scuttle Penny

LONDON (UPI)—The Royal Mint said Monday it no longer will issue pennies to banks, effectively ending the 1,000-year era of the British coin.

The mint, which last month halted all production of the copper pennies, said the step was taken in anticipation of the conversion of the nation's currency Feb. 15 to the decimal system.

The penny, which will remain legal tender until the changeover is complete, will be replaced by bronze one-half pence, one pence and two pence coins.

Civic Ballet Will Open 1970 Season

Marin Civic Ballet will open its 1970 season Saturday with performances of two new works that won cheers at the regional ballet festival in Fresno last May, and also brought the company national honors.

The ballets have never been performed in Marin County, according to Leona Norman, civic ballet director.

The concert will begin at 4 p.m. on the stage of the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross. Tickets are available from the center's box office.

The new works are "One Fine Day," choreographed by Charles Perrier to music by Aaron Copland, and "Motherless Child," created by the company as a whole to music sung by Odetta.

"Love in Bath," another new ballet by Perrier to Handel's music will be danced by guest artist Cindy Lucas of the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, formerly of the Marin company. A classic ballet, "Paquita," to music by Minkus, will be danced by the entire company, which has been named an honor company by the National Association for Regional Ballet.

Lead dancers for the concert will include Perrier, Jane Thelen, Becky Jones, Lori Crichton, Laurie Berryman and Rocky White. Other members of the ballet include Carol Brannan, Kathi McCormick and Cynthia Harvey, plus newcomers Debbie Farb, Jody Marvin, Laura Przetak, Doreen Singer, Nancy Jones and Kerry Burcham.

Guitar Courses To Be Offered

A 10-week session of guitar courses will be offered by the Petaluma Park and Recreation Department Oct. 19 through Dec. 23 at La Tercera School.

Courses include beginner and intermediate folk guitar for persons 12 years and older. Students must furnish their own guitars.

Registration must be made before the start of class at the park and recreation office at Walnut Park.

DRAMA REVIEW

British Play Looks Into Military Honor

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—The suspense drama within the framework of a trial has been a theater staple for many decades, and the good ones always get a warm reception.

These don't show up much any more, but "Conduct Unbecoming," which opened Monday night at the Ethel Barrymore Theater, has enough on the ball to make it appealing.

It gets off to a tedious beginning, but playwright Barry England begins to get down to business near the end of the first of the three acts, and the drama is suspenseful the rest of the way.

England's London hit has a point to make about the tradition of officer honor in the British army of the old days in India. Set toward the end of the 19th century at a regimental post, it has some scathing things to say about this tradition without exactly destroying it.

Trouble arrives with two new subalterns. One is the son of a general, formerly colonel commanding this post, and he couldn't care less about the military life. He plans to cause so much trouble that he will be cashiered back home as soon as possible.

The other second lieutenant has realized the dream of his life by being assigned to this famous regiment.

After considerable social horseplay at the post, matters get rolling when the malcontent officer makes a drunken pass at the window of a major. She rushes in from outdoors screaming hysterically that she has been assaulted and accuses the young man.

A regular court martial is not in order, but there is a tradition about a subalterns' court that has no official standing yet serves to clear up certain matters without arousing public attention or getting the top officers involved.

The ambitious lieutenant is assigned to defend the troublemaker, and he takes the job with great reluctance. As the trial proceeds, testimony seems cut and dried as to the guilt of the accused, but gradually little things come to light that cause the defense "lawyer" to become curious enough to probe deeply.

Some astonishing things are unearthed, and the lieutenant who is so keen on the military becomes disillusioned about the honor business. And as a proper solution finally emerges, the defendans begins to think the military may be for him after all.

The writing is of a meat-and-potatoes type, hewing to the business of creating and maintaining suspense. The acting is excellent all around. Many of the players are from England and not well known here.

The two young subalterns are played skillfully by Paul Jones and Jeremy Clyde, both former British rock singing stars, by the way.

Donald Pickering is outstanding as the captain adjutant who runs the court hearings, and Michael Barrington is exactly right as the commanding colonel.

Elizabeth Shepherd has a couple of fine scenes as the woman who accuses the young officer. Others in the large cast with good roles and abilities include Michael Bradshaw, Paul Harding, Robert Hewitt, Richard Lupino, Ronald Drake, Madhur Jaffray and Richard Clarke.

The officers' mess setting has been admirably designed by Finlay James for producers Donald Albery and Roger L. Stevens.

Student Films

A three-part collection of prize-winning student films will begin at 7 p.m. Friday and be completed following two Fridays at the Little Theater at Redwood High School, the sponsoring Redwood High School Film Club has announced.

SAN RAFAEL HIGH

New Student Operation

By LARRY MOWELL

When it takes three hours to decide how to elect a homecoming queen, it is time for a change of government, according to two student body officers at San Rafael High School.

Disgusted by such lengthy wrangles, school president Parker Lee, 17, a junior, and vice president Larry French, 16, — aided last year by the then president Tony Salin and a school administrator — streamlined the student government.

Last year the system was a miniature federal system with executive, legislative and judicial branches that seemed to function as slowly on picayune matters as the U.S. Senate during a filibuster.

PARKER LEE
Reorganizing president

LARRY FRENCH
Appointed vice president

"The inefficiency of the old government had shown it necessary for a change," French said.

After the 40-man student senate abolished itself by voting out the constitution on the last day of school in June, Lee and French said their government setup was established.

The student Congress eliminated itself because "they all agreed that the system they were in was not efficient enough and it just had too many people to get things done and a lot of people who got in were just doing it to get out of class," Lee maintained.

Elections in the past were popularity contests and those elected were often more interested in avoiding class than running a government, the pair asserted.

Under the new system, instead of electing 40 senators and 20 officials twice a year, the student body now elects a president and each class chooses a president once a year.

The five make up the executive board which makes all of the final decisions. They choose their own vice presidents and jointly select the chairmen of the school committees for the next year.

The chairmen of the committees — finance, spirit, minicourse, student interclub and student action — then select their own committees subject to approval of the student president.

"Hopefully, the people who enroll on the committees will want to do it," French said. "It used to be that Congress was a great popularity contest."

While people in Congress weren't interested in all the issues they were called upon to decide, committeemen only make recommendations in one area in which they are interested, the pair said.

"I think in a school government this is an ideal system because of the nature of decisions involved," French said.

Both Lee and French said students are allowed to make only trivial decisions. To them, protecting the system of checks and balances is not as important as maintaining efficiency.

They said decisions have been made as reasonably and much more quickly under the new system this year.

The only incomplete part of the changeover is legitimizing a constitution, they said. It is expected to be completed within a month and voted on in a general student election.

The constitution will include an impeachment process to oust incompetent officers, but the officers should be much more effective than in previous years since they serve for a year instead of a semester, the two said.

"The reason why is the president and the new officers would come in and they couldn't get all their goals in and the new people were coming in and they were just getting used to the office when they were out," French said.

Is it more efficient? "It seems to be running a lot better than the other one," French said.

Teacher's Departing Criticism

A fifth grade teacher at Martin Luther King school, last night submitted her resignation to the Sausalito School District board, saying that district efforts "to develop a creative humanistic experience for children" have turned "into an almost Orwellian nightmare world for children."

Mary R. Davis of Stinson Beach, a teacher with the district for three years, said recent election "of a reactionary board which is now in control of the district" is evidence of the trend she sees in the schools.

RESIGNATION

"I do not feel that I can in good conscience continue to be a part of the Sausalito School District in light of what I have experienced, Mrs. Davis said in her letter of resignation.

She continued: "I know, after great consideration, that I would not be allowed to teach creatively in such a system. The administration has lapsed into a backlash reactionary posture of so-called professionalism, which belies the real problems of children by perpetuating an educational system unrelated to the existing educational reality."

Mrs. Davis said she sees Sausalito schools "rapidly turning into punitive institutions. I wish I had the energy to remain . . . to fight."

The teacher, who taught reading for two years in the district, suggested the board "take a good look at the texts being used in the classrooms.

DULL TEXTS

"They are incredibly dull, and even those children who can read them do so under great protest," she wrote, adding the district should bring in qualified personnel to set up an effective reading program.

She warned the district and community against "camouflaging the problem behind paper progress which in fact the child has not obtained," and suggested the schools measure progress on the basis of ability to perform.

In conclusion, Mrs. Davis said the most frightening aspect of the situation in which the district now finds itself "is that the supposed enlightened element of the Sausalito community has sat idly by and allowed this situation to take place."

OVERRULES JOHNSON

On a motion by Trustee Robert A. Thompson, the board (by a 3-2 vote) overruled chairman Nathaniel Johnson who had started to read Mrs. Davis's letter, and voted to read no more letters of resignation.

"These letters are on file in the district office for public perusal," Thompson said, adding that persons resigning may not want their letters read. Trustee Jerry L. Whitcomb abstained in the vote, but moved to accept Mrs. Davis's resignation and send her a letter of appreciation for her service. The board agreed to do so.

On a similar note, a Marin City parent, Mrs. Royce McLemore, appeared before the board to protest conditions at Martin Luther King School where she said she had been observing classes for the past two weeks.

Mrs. McLemore said she visited classrooms "where all the children have been out of their seats playing. One class was supposed to be a reading class, but no kind of teaching was going on," she said.

In the fourth week of school, she said, her daughter "had not yet been placed in any kind of a math program. I was told the tests had not yet been graded," Mrs. McLemore added.

She said discipline is a problem, too. "One student was in the school office from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. because she was afraid to go to class because she had had an argument with another child," Mrs. McLemore told the board. "She missed four hours of school for no reason." Another child, she said, was sent home by the principal without the mother being notified.

At that point Johnson interrupted Mrs. McLemore, asking if she had brought the problems to the teacher, principal and superintendent before coming to the board. She said she had, but interim Supt. Robert E. Spain said she had not come to him.

Johnson asked Mrs. McLemore to talk to the superintendent before the next board meeting, then ask for a closed session to bring charges against specific staff members if she felt the problems had not been solved.

Sausalito Board, Audience In Heated Verbal Exchange

By PAT ANGLE

Trustees of the Sausalito School District last night exchanged hostile words with members of the audience and disagreed with each other on a variety of topics — from audience participation at board meetings to board correspondence.

And throughout the five hour meeting, approximately 80 persons attending assumed the role of a disgruntled Greek chorus, cheering trustees with whom they agreed and making angry remarks to other trustees.

The controversy began shortly after the start of the meeting when Eleanor Dizon, a black parent, rose to propose 10 curriculum changes which she said would improve education for black children in the district.

Mrs. Dixon prefaced her plan by reading a two-page statement which charged that "any attempt to raise academic standards in the Sausalito district has always been in terms of what would benefit the white student and perpetuate the institutionalized racism rampant in the schools."

She accused the district administration of "pretending that black and white children enter the race on equal terms" and "stacking the deck so white Johnny thinks he is superior."

Mrs. Dixon added that while children are given confidence at the expense of black children "who are therefore brainwashed into lack of confidence and inferiority."

Before Mrs. Dixon had finished, she was interrupted by Trustee Robert A. Thompson who asked why the board "must simply sit here and listen to a political treatise . . . that has no bearing on present school problems?"

Board chairman Nathaniel Johnson said he felt "all visitors have the right to speak."

Mrs. Dixon proposed the school board take the following actions: 1. get a program started to rewrite the texts; 2. supply supplementary materials to make up for misinformation in the texts; 3. bring in teachers with broader perspectives "instead of the safe teachers who lack creativity and individuality."

She also asked the board to "teach true history" and "give a gold star to the student who finds the lies and distortions in our society" and "tell why wars are really fought, for money and because of greed." In addition, she asked the district "to work on the self-concept of the black child" and "help him develop pride," "teach community realities, make social studies multi-ethnic and focus on preventive rather than remedial education."

"Who are you speaking for?" Trustee Delta Christ asked Mrs. Dixon, who replied: "the black community." "Who specifically in the black community do you represent — except yourself? Can you give me the names of some of the people you represent?" asked Thompson.

At that point about 20 members of the audience stood up. "She's speaking for me," many of them called out. "I think we would have a hard time getting the responsible Marin City community to register support for Mrs. Dixon's statement," Thompson retorted, adding he felt it was important the board find out whether Mrs. Dixon "was speaking for the black community or for herself and a small group."

Trustee Jerry L. Whitcomb objected to Thompson's remarks. "I would hate to see the day when every visitor asking to address the board is subjected to the question 'Who do you represent?' " he said. "I think we have to take a statement for what it's worth, not for how many people support it," Whitcomb added.

The conflict, which was evident all through the meeting, flared briefly into open hostility when the board came to the part of the agenda termed "correspondence."

Thompson moved that the board not read any letters aloud — either at last night's session or in the future. The audience disagreed and protested, as did Johnson and Whitcomb.

"I think (in doing this) we are taking away from our constituents one method of getting to and talking to the board," Whitcomb said. "We are cutting off an avenue of communication for people who can't get down here and we can't afford to do that."

He continued: "The more open we can be in trying to let the public know we are moving in a new direction to try and educate their children, the better off we will be."

Thompson stood firm and Mrs. Christ and Trustee Robert R. Lyon concurred. "One of our functions is to gather information and we get very little information from inflammatory or self-serving letters," he said.

After the board voted 3-2 (Johnson and Whitcomb opposed) to read no future letters to the board aloud, Mrs. Christ asked the superintendent to reinstate a bulletin board on which all the information normally contained in the board packet would be posted.

Bargaining Agent Is Recognized

The Lagunitas School District board last night recognized a teachers' organization as exclusive bargaining agent for district instructors.

The Lagunitas Chapter of the California Teachers Association was approved as the sole agent for the 25 Lagunitas teachers during salary negotiations according to Supt. Joseph Amato.

The Lagunitas School District board also:

SINGERS — Granted permission for the San Geronimo Valley Singers to use a classroom each Tuesday from 8 to 10 p.m. for practices.

PRE-SCHOOL — Asked Amato to see if a proposed Valley Family Pre-School Center would interfere with other classes and to check on the feasibility of a nonrectangular play area. He is to report back at the Oct. 26 meeting.

RURAL LEAGUE — Authorized a $300 stipend for teacher Fred Brown for running the Marin Rural Sports League this year.

IN SERVICE TRAINING — Authorized a leave for sixth grade teacher Muriel Dillard to take a two-week study trip to Mexico under the auspices of Dominican College at her own expense from Dec. 28 to Jan. 14.

PRINCIPAL SALARY — Put over to Oct. 26 the question of tying principals' salaries to teachers wages by setting them one and one-quarter times what they would make as teachers.

GIFT — Accepted a gift of $25 from Mr. and Mrs. M. Dickson in memory of Katherine R. Dickson for purchase of library books.

OPEN HOUSE — Authorized a casual roundtable meeting between teachers and parents Oct. 27 instead of the traditional open house.

DRUG PROGRAM — Authorized Amato to begin the Lockheed drug abuse program for seventh and eighth graders at a cost of about $500.

Office Equipment Stolen From School

Burglars took office equipment of undetermined value from Coleman School, 140 Rafael Drive, San Rafael, sometime during the weekend, police reported today.

The equipment was taken from an office between 5 p.m. Friday and 7:30 a.m. yesterday, police said.

Friese's Reed School Contract Is Canceled

Virgil S. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, today cancelled the contract for his deputy superintendent, Stanley Friese, to serve as interim superintendent of the Reed School District.

Hollis took the action because of Reed district trustees criticism of Friese's report on his stewardship to the county board of education last week.

In a letter to Gordon C. Wright, Reed board president, Hollis wrote:

"Since the Reed board has felt it necessary to object so strenuously in this instance, there seems little need to continue with the contract upon which Mr. Friese's services, and other related resources of this office, are now being provided. The Reed board is therefore notified that Mr. Friese's services to the Reed district will terminate as of Oct. 31, 1970, and we will expect Mr. Friese to return to his regular duties in this office on Nov. 2."

Noting that the Reed board has resumed efforts to recruit a permanent superintendent, Hollis suggested that it assign one of its school principals as acting head of the district until a permanent appointment is made. "Perhaps Mr. Irwin Karp, who has had recent administrative experience at the district level, could handle this assignment," he wrote.

The Reed district obtained Friese on loan from the county schools office as interim superintendent on the departure of Robert B. Gaw last June 30. Gaw took a two-year job directing a school in Malaysia, and said that, while he would like to return to the Reed district, he would not expect to do so as superintendent.

He had notified the board of his intention early in April, and initially some trustees hoped to have a replacement by the time of his departure. A screening process continued into the fall, however.

County board of education members questioned Friese at their Oct. 5 meeting as to how long he expected to remain on loan to the district. His reply was that the initial screening had failed to result in selection of a permanent superintendent, and the district was starting the screening process over again. He shrugged his shoulders as to how long it might take.

In his report to thecounty board, he said he had to "step on a lot of toes" in the Reed district schools because of "very loose programs" and "innovation for innovation's sake." He stressed that he was following the direction of the district board in doing so.

He was taken to task for the reporet at the Reed board meeting the following Thursday. The public board meeting started a half-hour late after trustees had been closeted with Friese.

Hollis wrote that the reprimand of Friese "comes as a shock and a disappointment." He recited that county schools personnel on loan to districts have customarily been asked to make periodic reports to the county board. Robert E. Spain, county schools director of administrative services who is on loan as interim superintendent of the Sausalito district, made such a report at the same meeting at which Friese gave the account that drew the Reed trustees' displeasure.

Suspect In Stolen Car Sale Hunted

San Rafael police were looking today for a man wanted for embezzlement by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in two states, and suspected of selling a stolen car to a San Rafael man.

Police said the man, Gilbert E. Selmos, who stayed at the Villa Rafael Motel in San Rafael, sold a car stolen in Colorado to an unidentified San Rafael man who paid Selmos with an $800 check.

The check turned up in the hands of a Fairfax woman who told police she met Selmos, who also uses the name G. L. Perry, last Friday.

Mary E. Ahola of 303 Cascade Drive told police she had dinner with Selmos Saturday and Sunday. Yesterday morning he went to her residence and told her he had an appointment and didn't have time to go to the bank and asked her to give him $600 for the $800 check, which she did.

Police said Selmos had left the motel without paying and was last known to be driving a rented 1970 Lincoln Continental with California license plates 739AIK.

Kent School Architect Fee Delayed

The Kentfield School District board last night delayed payment to the district's architect for drafting landscape and drainage plans for Adaline E. Kent School.

Supt. Anthony G. Bacich said today the board wants a clarification on an item in the architect's bill listed as "slow drainage."

Bacich said the board's action withholds payment of 80 per cent or $3,294 of the total bill submitted by the architect, Royston, Hanamoto, Beck and Abey of San Francisco.

The firm was hired earlier this year to design work expected to cost about $44,000. Among other items the work includes landscaping of school grounds adjacent Corte Madera Creek. The district has received $18,000 from the Ross Valley Flood Control District for the landscaping, according to Bacich.

The trustees coupled creek landscaping with a $26,000 drainage and landscaping project of their own for the school, he said, and the architect was hired.

Work started during the second week of September, Bacich said, and is expected to be complete in two weeks.

The Kentfield School District board also:

REPAIRS — Approved minor repairs totaling about $50 for the multi-purpose room at Adaline E. Kent School.

SOUND SYSTEM — Approved expenditure of $900 of district funds for a sound system at Adaline E. Kent School. About $700 had been donated for the $1,600 system from the school's Parent-teacher association.

GROUNDS — Approved a request from Marin Catholic High School for after-school use of the Wolfe Grade School playground. The high school will use the grounds as baseball and soccer practice fields.

TESTING — Approved spending $1,600 to test for academically talented students. The district also approved hiring another psychologist on a part time basis to do the testing. The state will reimburse the district $40 for every student identified as academically talented.

LANDSCAPING — Authorized payment of $19,000 to contractor Cagwin and Dorward for landscaping and drainage work at Adaline E. Kent School.

Sterilization Figures Given

More than 130 Marin men have had themselves sterilized since the Planned Parenthood Association of Marin began its vasectomy clinics in April, the association has reported.

The clinics each Wednesday at 8 p.m. at 710 C Street in San Rafael offer information on the nature of ths sterilizing operation, its cost, and how it can be obtained.

Further information on the birth control measure can be obtained from Planned Parenthood.

Salary Cuts

BOSTON (UPI) — Teradyne, Inc., announced it has dismissed about 15 per cent of its workers and imposed across the board salary cuts because of the continued depressed market for electronic semi-conductors.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Behr Has Qualifications For State Senate Job

In an editorial last May 21, during the primary campaign, we made this comment on the contest for Republican nomination for state senator:

"Representing what might be called the Warren-Kuchel wing of the GOP is Peter H. Behr of Mill Valley, former Marin County supervisor well known for his efforts on behalf of open space conservation. Behr, when challenged on his standing as a 'real Republican,' has emphasized his efforts on behalf of Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, thereby indicating his adherence to Kuchel's principles."

In that editorial, we endorsed Don Pinkerton of Fairfield for the nomination. Republicans of the Fourth Senatorial District, however, preferred Peter Behr.

We cannot quarrel with their choice.

BEHR, AS WE pointed out in May, has excellent credentials as a conservationist. He has experience through his service on the Mill Valley City Council and Marin County Board of Supervisors. He has been active in many political organizations — mostly conservation-type groups rather than party organizations. He has proved himself a man of ability.

Whether Behr is a "real Republican" becomes of no consequence now. The choice Nov. 3 will be of a man to represent all the residents of the Fourth Senatorial District — Marin, Napa and Solano— in the upper house of the state legislature. The winner should subjugate party interests to the greater public interest. Since Behr has not been a "strict party man," this should not be difficult for him.

Behr's Democratic opponent is Michael R. Peevey of San Rafael.

In many respects, there is not much difference between what Behr professes and what Peevey professes. Both are opposed to continued involvement in the Vietnam war. Both espouse conservation and environment issues with approximately equal fervor.

Peevey, following the lead of his party's hierarchy, downgrades the Bagley-Reagan tax reform plan that failed by one vote in the state Senate this year. Behr says he will vote for the plan if it comes up again next year — as it likely will, with some modifications.

Peevey, as a Democrat, finds little good about Gov. Ronald Reagan. Behr, as a Republican, finds little good about Jesse M. Unruh, the Democratic candidate for governor.

But on most issues, the two candidates are not far apart.

THIS DOES NOT, however, mean there is little to choose between them. While Behr has long experience in government, Peevey has none. While Behr has a long record of public activity in behalf of conservation, Peevey is a newcomer to the field. While Behr has proved his ability, Peevey has yet to do so.

The choice thus becomes simple: Party labels aside, Peter Behr is far the stronger candidate, and should be elected.

"Oh, Yes! My High-Road Tour Was a Magnificent Success, Thank You . . . And What's New With You, Spiro?"

Progress Of Virus Insecticides

As a safe substitute for hard insecticides, the natural virus diseases of insects look more and more promising. Viral insect control is far more precise than chemical control.

Using viruses for insect control has been compared to picking off a criminal in a crowd of people with a high-powered rifle, while using hard pesticides is like spraying the crowd with a machine-gun to get the one man.

About 85 per cent of all hard pesticides are used against 100 insect pests. The U. S. Department of Agriculture expects to have specific biological controls for half of these within the next 10 years.

Ukrainian scientists are working on a virus which kills the coddling moth larva, the nortorious worm in the apple. In university and the department of agriculture laboratories, scores of biological controls are under investigation.

It is too early to make a prediction, but at this time the outlook is very promising.

AFFAIRS OF STATE

Supervisors' Pay, Chiropractors Among Subjects Of Propositions

(This is the fifth of a series on the 20 propositions before the electorate on the Nov. 3 general election ballot.)

By HENRY C. MacARTHUR

SACRAMENTO — (CNS) — Proposition 11 would give the board of chiropractic examiners powers to require additional and continuing education for members of the chiropractic profession.

Chiropractors operate under their own initiative act, adopted in 1922, and amended only three times since adoption. The profession has decided it is time to bring the act up to date.

PROPOSITION 12 is another battle between home rule and state rule. If passed, it would remove some of the work now done by the legislature, and put it in the hands of the counties.

Specifically, the proposition provides that boards of supervisors fix their own compensation, subject to referendum of the people in the counties. At present, the supervisors' pay is fixed by the legislature which usually acts on recommendation of the county grand jury and board of supervisors.

PROPOSITION 13 authorizes the legislature to increase property tax exemption for disabled and blind veterans to $10,000 from the present $5,000, and to extend the veterans' exemption to widows.

Proposition 14 is another attempt to circumvent certain civil service provisions now in the constitution. The measure has been defeated by the voters twice, but comes back in slightly changed form on the recommendation of the Constitutional Revision Commission.

Specifically, the measure would exempt all employees of the lieutenant-governor from the requirements of civil service. Presently, the lieutenant-governor has one exempt employee-like other state officials.

Sen. John L. Harmer, R-Glendale, who opposes the proposition, says the Constitutional Revision Commission has gone beyond its charge of updating the constitution, and is recommending substantive changes.

PROPOSITION 15 is another recommendation of the constitutional Revision Commission. The proposal restates several provisions in the constitution without substantive change, and shortens the language.

Certain sections of the constitution would be eliminated and placed under the jurisdiction of the state legislature, including the obsolete provision against dueling, which was adopted in the early days of the state to prevent the politicians from shooting each other up. Now most of the political dueling is with words.

Some opposition to Proposition 15 results from the fact it removes the constitutional protection of veterans to be reinstated in their jobs when returning from military service.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Follow-Up Needed By 'Rights' Critics

Largely through the efforts of the PTA units and coverage in the I-J, citizens concerned with our San Rafael schools were able to give their reactions to a proposed draft on "Student Rights and Responsibilities." The attendance at this meeting Monday night showed that citizens are concerned and do want a voice in their schools.

Each person who voiced concerns or objections was asked to follow these up with a proposed draft of his own which he considers totally adequate and acceptable and to present it to the committee by Oct. 26. While mere criticism comes easy, a constructive document such as requested takes a little more time, a little more thought and a little more research. It will be interesting to see if these people care enough to follow through in a more positive vein. I hope so!

It will also be interesting to see if the committee, through utilization of these contributions, can come up with a document that will gain community support as well as board approval for adoption. I hope so!

Fortunate To Have Military Academy

Thank you for your excellent article on the San Rafael Military Academy (Oct. 2).

May I add what Col. (Frederick D.) Whiting said in a recent address to the Mothers' Club (of SRMA):

"The academy is placed here to make a boy stand upright, look another person in the eye and be proud of the ground on which he walks."

As new parents at the SRMA, we have already seen this attitude reflected in our son.

We are extremely fortunate to have a school of this caliber in the county.

Bennett Definitely Consumer's Friend

William Bennett is definitely a spokesman for the consumers. His record in the attorney general's office and that of public utilities commissioner proves it. Every single gas and telephone rate payer in the state has benefitted by his sole efforts. Paul Brindel's letter ("Readers Say," Oct. 7) appears to be from uninformed sources. Even though the conservative I-J does not endorse Bennett for the board of equalization it should inform its readers that Mr. Bennett has won every case he has brought before the U.S. Supreme Court on behalf of the California rate payer. If you prefer Mr. Bennett's opponent in the B. of E. race it's OK but let's print the truth, not just the half-truth.

Sad Day For Many In Health Dept.

Oct 13, will be a sad day for many of the Marin County Health Department employees as we will be saying goodbye to our beloved friend and adviser, Dr. Patricia Hallinan, assistant health officer.

We in Crippled Children Services have enjoyed her as our director and "leader" for five years and for sure it would take some doing to find a person like her - she who at any time could be called on for advice. No one could ask for a nicer "boss" and WOW will we miss her.

Board Responding To Public Demand

The recent editorial "Who Makes the Policy for the Public Schools?" seems based on the premise that school boards serve as independent policy-making bodies. Policy is not created in a vacuum. To my knowlege, most, if not all, policy-making boards call upon staff, committees, task forces and other informed groups to provide them with facts, statistics, attitudes and information necessary for arriving at objective decisions.

If one accepts this as the function of a board then the San Rafael Board of Education has responded vigorously to one of the uppermost concerns expressed by the recent Citizens Advisory Committee — that of improved communication among the board, administration, faculty, parents and students to better serve the needs of the community by a reciprocal sharing of attitudes, goals and objectives. The board has created a standing public relations committee of citizens to serve as liason to the community. It has formed task forces to study parental educational concerns. It has given unstintingly of its time to join with the schools and the community in waging school tax election campaigns. It has responded to a community request for "defenitive statements of policy" which included a request for a statement on "Student Rights and Responsibilities" and which has resulted in the formation of a board policy review committee . . .

Is this not a better method to mandate policy?

Rafferty Trick Obvious To Student

I felt that I must write to you in regard to your editorial of Oct 6 on Max Rafferty's old tricks.

I had recently acquired a pamphlet on Rafferty. The same one to which you refer in your article.

I was very much upset by it. It was the first time that that I had ever come in contact with this type of campaigning. I had no idea that propaganda such as this was allowed in a campaign. Even I, as junior in high school, could see what Rafferty is trying to do.

Anyway, thank you for doing what I wanted someone to do (and very neatly, I might add!). You've eased my mind a great deal and I appreciate it.

Cease-Fire's Greatest Value Would Be To End Bombing

WASHINGTON — In offering a cease-fire without preconditions, President Nixon said it should cause all kinds of warfare to end, including bombing. This places in pawn those who have suffered most in the war and whose suffering has been callously ignored.

Already it is being said that while the Communist side will not formally "reject" the cease-fire, they will never agree to it. The people not alone of South Vietnam but Cambodia and Laos will thus continue to be subjected to the hell of bombing that day after day shatters the lives of men, women and children, destroys villages and farms and drives ever-new thousands of refugees into tre cities and pitifully inadequate refugee camps.

TO BE BLIND to the suffering of the people of Indochina is to deliberately ignore one of the most urgent, desperate even, reasons for an end to the shooting. Almost the only agency that has tried to bring this vast and increasing pool of misery to public attention is the Senate subcommittee on refugees of which Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts is chairman.

The committee's latest report, prepared by staff members after on-the-spot inspection in Indochina and largely ignored, shows an official figure for civilian war casualties admitted to hospitals of 59,480. But that figure ignores other casualties treated elsewhere or not related at all.

The report notes that while the U.S. aid mission in Laos was asking for only a few millions for refugees, the military was spending upward of $4,680,000 a day on sorties over Laos. From Udorn Air Base in Thailand each sortie, according to the Defense Department, costs $7,400. At the peak in the dry season up to 800 sorties a day were being flown.

DESPITE REPORTS of progress in pacification, the report states that a vast segment of South Vietnam's 18 million people are not convinced that their villages are secure and they remain as refugees. An additional 500,000 have been added to the official rolls in the first six months of 1970 alone.

Confronted with the statistics of civilian death, misery and fear, those directing the war point to Viet Cong terrorism as a root cause. Terrorism is more pervasive as the strategy of frontal attack recedes. The official figures through September of this year show 9,000 incidents of Viet Cong terrorism, with 4,800 killed and 10,000 wounded. That undoubtedly contributes to the refugee flow, yet it is small when compared with the force of the bombing armadas that take to the air without fail day after day.

The president in his address included "acts of terror" as ending under a cease-fire. An administration source responded to a question on this score that the Viet Cong were believed to have fairly tight control over their cadres. While sporadic acts of terror might occur, they would not disrupt an agreement to stop the shooting.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Czechs Are Sadly Cynical Over Loss Of Freedom

By PERCY ROWE
TORONTO TELEGRAM NEWS SERVICE

PRAUGE — Behind all cynicism there is sadness, and never was that more apparent than in the Czechoslovakia of today, two years after the uprising — and subsequent Russian invasion — of 1968.

The Czechs, a people accustomed to imperial suppression, tend to refer today to the U.S.S.R. as "the Emperor."

It is obvious they know that while emperors may change their clothes, the emperors are all similar underneath in their naked power.

Does this mean the power may be challenged? Not likely.

AS ONE CZECH put it: "Everyone hates this new regime. But those with jobs and families won't make a move. Only the young people, the teen-agers, who hasen't any obligations yet, express their atered."

Even they do it carefully, for when I asked another Czech if there were city police or simply one state police force, I received the answer: "Just one — and just one secret police."

The young, perhaps, have even more reason to hate the new system than their elders. After all, more than any other group they tasted the freedom of expression — especially in the arts — during the three months before August of two years ago.

THERE IS NO doubt that freedom has been crushed. Entrants to Czech universities today must pass two examinations, one academic, one political. The child of an intellectual or a member of the professional classes doesn't stand much chance of passing the latter.

For the young artist, life can be even harder.

Czech film-making is world renowned. But when I asked what the young director of the Oscar-winning "Closely Watched Trains" was now making, I was told nothing. It seems he made a film after that one that the authorities considered too pessimistic. He was "sentenced" not to make any films for a couple of years.

This idling of brains, this restriction of talent, can be more insidious than sending a man to a physical Siberia. It fosters cynicism, and then nihilism.

PRAGUE'S favorite beer halls and wine shops and restaurants are full (in the evenings) with young people. They get there early. They need to. Not since wartime have I encountered so many items struck from the menu so soon after meal-hour starts.

Some Czechs maintain that 80 per cent of a man's income has to be spent on food — an obvious reason why a wife has to work, too.

This subject of food prices is the most bitter I encountered. A man told me it cost him three weeks' pay for his annual car license. But he said it with a shrug.

Czechoslovakia has rich farmland, well able to produce grain, beef, fruit. Yet I traveled through southern and western Bohemia for three days and rarely saw cattle.

Czechoslovakia is a small country, not rich, and in some of its cities distinctly shabby.

It doesn't look like a country that can afford both military arms and butter. The people know this, and are cynical, often tense, and not given to easy laughter.

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

To drink wine is a sin, and so if you must do it, drink gracefully. Let the wine be good, and the music, and if you jest, do it well. If you are going to be punished for it in the next world, at least don't make a fool of yourself. — Fadh'r-ad-Din (seventh century).

It could not be less folly to abolish liberty, which is essential to political life, because it nourishes faction, than it would be to wish the annihilation of air, which is essential to animal life, because it imparts to fire its destructive agency. — James Madison.

City Of Novato Violates Own Ordinances In Street Extension

For years the Novato Public Works Department and city council talked about extending Arthur Street through to Indian Valley Road, a short distance away. For years this was talk, talk about relieving the congestion of Novato High School students having to detour around Center Road and South Novato Boulevard to get to the school from West Novato.

This year the road was finally cut through and Indian Valley Road was improved. In the same project, the Hill Road and Diablo Avenue intersection was straightened.

There is a noticeable improvement in the traffic to and from Novato High School, but the city did not insist on sidewalks on the extension.

This has caused considerable comment, especially among developers and real estate men. Developers are required to install sidewalks on new development, but the city did not put them in on Arthur Street nor along Indian Valley and Hill roads.

To straighten out Hill Road at Diablo Avenue, the city violated its own grade ordinance and made a cut about 60 feet high.

The new convalescent hospital nearby had to redesign its plot plan to avoid high cuts. It also had to install sidewalks.

It would seem that the city ordinances apply to everyone except the city.

ONE PUBLIC agency that deserves some praise is the Novato Creek committee. It organized and carried out a successful cleanup of the creek from Seventh Street to Grant Avenue. It wanted to show how much debris is thrown into the creek, and it succeeded.

Whether it can get enough interest aroused to clean up the creeg from Seventh Street to Highway 101 remains to be seen.

At least, the water from heavy rains will flow faster through the cleaned-out section. And it was done with volunteer labor, not through hired crews.

THE NOVATO CENTER Building has been undergoing some drastic exterior changes. Originally it was called the Talbot Building and later the Key Insurance Building. It went from pastel colors to black. Many people said it was the ugliest building in Novato.

Its new owners have painted it light green and installed a two story-high screen in front of it. With the huge screen it cannot be ignored. Certainly it does not blend in with the other buildings on Grant Avenue.

The city plan review committee has aimed at trying to get some conformity in plans for the city. It missed on that.

One redeeming feature was the group of beautiful sunburst locust trees in front of the building. However, it was claimed that they were pruned wrong and the branches hung too far down, so the trees were removed. This does not conform to a city policy in trying to beautify its business district with trees.

IS THIS the shape of things to come?

Novato City Mgr. Charles A. Brown was sitting among employees of Tankersley Realty at a recent chamber of commerce luncheon. When they introduced themselves, there were so many from Tankersley Realty that Brown said he was also.

Every Time A Bank Goes Up, Something In All Of Us Dies

WASHINGTON — Every time an old building is torn down in this country, and a new building goes up, the ground floor becomes a bank.

The reason for this is that banks are the only ones who can afford the rent for the ground floor of the new buildings going up. Besides, when a bank loans someone money to build a new building, it usually takes an option for the street-floor facilities.

Most people don't think there is anything wrong with this and they accept it as part of the American free enterprise system. But there is a small group of people in this country who are fighting for Bank Birth Control.

THIS IS HOW Huddlestone Hubbard, the BBC's chairman, explained it:

"Whenever you see an old building torn down," Hubbard said, "you usually see a candy store, a dry cleaner, a delicatessen and possibly a florist torn down with it. These shops are all replaced in the new building with a beautiful glass, aluminum, wall-to-wall carpeted money-factory.

"Now from an esthetic viewpoint, a bank looks better than a dry cleaner, a candy store, a delicatessen and a florist. But from a practical point of view, it's a sheer disaster. If you want a newspaper, a candy bar or a chocolate milk shake, you can't get it at a bank. Nor can you run out to a bank for a pound of Swiss cheese and a six-pack of beer when you have guests coming over.

"A bank is great if you want to buy a car, but it's useless if you want to have your dress cleaned.

"And while a bank might buy flowers to give itself a human image, it doesn't sell any when you want to make up with your wife."

"WHAT YOU'RE saying then, Mr. Hubbard, is that every time a bank goes up, something in all of us dies."

"Exactly. One of the reasons kids are getting in so much trouble these days is that there are no candy stores to hang around any more. When they tear down a delicatessen, the tangy smells of potato salad, salamis, corned beef and dill pickles are lost forever. Unless you're trying to make a loan, no one ever salivates in a bank."

"It's true," I said.

"The situation is more crucial than anyone thinks," Hubbard said. "At the rate they're tearing down consumer stores and replacing them with banks, we estimate that in 10 years it will be impossible to buy a loaf of bread in the country. What good is it to get 7 per cent on your money, if you starve to death?"

"THEN WHAT you're saying is that it isn't a question of not taking it with you. It's a question of staying alive while you have it," I said.

"Something like that," Hubbard agreed. "We're trying to get the public to wake up to the fact that it's better to have a store that sells screwdrivers than a bank that gives away alarm clocks."

"What's the solution?"

"A government decree that a bank has to supply the same services of the stores it tore down on the same property. If it's a bakery, they have to sell cake; if it's a photography shop, they have to develop film; and if it's a dry goods store, they have to sell warm underwear. If they provide the services of the stores they tore down, then we'll let them do a little money lending on the side."

Practical tips on how to get more for your money

Presented as a public service by private enterprise — this newspaper and your business-supported Better Business Bureau.

How smart are you in your job as "family purchasing agent"?

One survey found that most high school graduates can do a very competent job of shopping in a supermarket — can buy almost as efficiently as a professional home economist. Another study discovered that most women know exactly what to do when disappointed in a purchase: they complain either to the store, the manufacturer or the Better Business Bureau.

So it's quite possible that you already are the wise, informed shopper our headline talks about. But maybe some of these suggestions will help you be still more knowledgeable and alert.

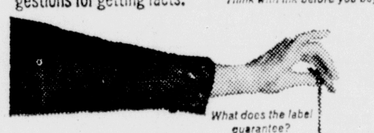
Ask Right Questions

Before you buy anything except routine necessities, first ask: "Should I buy it? Can I afford it? If I buy this, will it deprive me or any of my family of something else we need more?"

Second, "What are my requirements? What specifications — exactly what size, capacity or whatever — do I really need?"

Third, "What does similar merchandise sell for elsewhere? What facts should I know about this item, and how can I get them?" (Suggestions for getting facts:

Think with ink before you buy



What does the label guarantee?

shop around, try different stores; read tags, labels, articles, pamphlets, books, including the new BBB Consumer's Buying Guide; write manufacturers for printed information; talk with friends, neighbors, check their buying experiences; call your Better Business Bureau.)

Rules for Buying

Finally, to get your money's worth, keep in mind these rules for intelligent buying: 1. Buy only from reliable businessmen. If you don't know the firm, see what the experience of others has been. 2. Don't shop for price alone. Quality can be just as important. 3. Read ads carefully. Be cautious when you see such claims as "unbelievable savings!"

4. Learn to recognize an honest salesman: he knows his merchandise, gives a full explanation, does not evade questions. 5. Never sign a blank contract. Always read before you sign. 6. Get all promises in writing. 7. If in doubt about a company or business practice, call your BBB.

Now, consider how these rules work out in practice:

Making Home Improvements

To help people select and work with home improvement firms, recently a survey was made of BBB experiences in 79 cities. It showed that most frequently persons who complain to Bureaus about home improvement contractors were distressed over poor workmanship or unfinished work.

Make him put it in writing

These problems resulted, in part, from itinerant workers and high pressure selling, but also because many people did not seek out a reliable contractor or just decided on price alone. Many accepted verbal promises, did not insist that promises be put in writing. BBBs advise: Know the contractor's reputation. Make sure all work to be done is written into the contract, and read — and understand it — before you sign.

TV and Radio Repair

Manufacturers are working constantly to produce trouble-free radio and TV sets. Still, electronic devices can have occasional operating problems, most of them readily solved by competent servicemen. However, your BBB suggests you know the reputation of a serviceman before you call on him.

Although most radio-TV service firms are honest, there are a few which cause a majority of complaints. When a concern advertises home service at an extremely low price, it may be "bait" to get your set into the shop, where higher charges are added. Reputable firms provide qualified personnel and equipment, a guarantee on work and materials, a work order showing prices of each part.

Deal only with radio-TV repair firms you know to be reliable. When in doubt, contact your BBB.

Facts About Borrowing

To be safe and sensible when you borrow money, borrow only for worthwhile purposes, and only as much as you can repay comfortably. Payments of more than 15% of your total income could spell trouble. There are many ways to borrow — from your insurance, a bank, a savings and loan, a finance company, etc. And there are various types of loans — for example, a loan based solely on your signature vs a loan based on tangible security or collateral.

Read and understand before you sign

Co-makers may be required, and interest rates may be higher, when the lender takes a greater risk. In obtaining money from a lending institution, the new federal lending law requires that you be informed of the total dollar cost of the loan as well as the annual interest rate.

These are just a few things smart consumers must know about buying specific kinds of goods and services. You also must know enough to reject such unscrupulous practices as "bait and switch".

Don't get hooked by bait and switch

No reputable company would stoop to such a practice, but some firms will run an ad offering a product at an extremely low price merely as a come-on. That's the "bait". When customers come in, the salesman tells them the advertised product is inadequate or "sold out" — and tries to sell them something more expensive, and often, over-priced. That's the "switch".

If a product is advertised well below the usual price, be cautious. Check the advertiser's reputation with your BBB. If you come in and the salesman tries to switch you, tell him you're just not interested!

Truth in Advertising

Fortunately, most business is honest; and over the years, advertising and selling have become more truthful and informative.

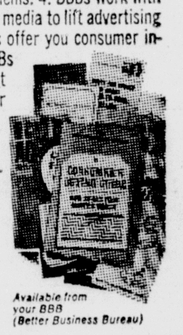
Thirty years ago, most people called the Bureaus to complain — about advertising or selling misrepresentation. Today it's just the opposite. Most people call the Bureaus not to complain but simply to inquire. Of the more than 4½ million calls to the BBBs last year, 9 out of 10 were inquiries — people who simply wanted to check on the reputation of a company or find out about some business practice.

Frequently, today's problems result from unintentional mistakes. In 80-90% of the cases, Bureaus report voluntary solutions. Even so, there's room for improvement. That's why communications media and business work constantly with the Bureaus to make advertising and selling honest and helpful.

BBB 6-Point Program

But that's only part of the BBB activity. To serve and protect you, the consumer, American business spends millions of dollars every year to maintain 147 BBB offices across the country. These Bureaus operate a 6-Point Program in your behalf:

1. BBBs answer your consumer inquiries. 2. BBBs act on your consumer complaints. 3. BBBs handle customer relations problems. 4. BBBs work with advertising and media to lift advertising standards. 5. BBBs offer you consumer information. 6. BBBs make facts about business-customer relations available to government.



Available from your BBB (Better Business Bureau)

How well does this business-supported program serve you personally? To a considerable extent, that's up to you. The more you use it, the more you benefit. Before buying anything, if you have doubts about a company, questions about a business practice, or simply want more information, accept this invitation and call your Better Business Bureau.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Primer For Political Appeal On Television

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Election time is near, and the Taft Broadcasting Co. has issued a "TV-Radio Handbook for Political Candidates." Among its points are these:

—The current trend is toward spot announcements rather than full programs. These spots, says the handbook, afford "the greater audience reach per dollar spent, frequency, and the opportunity to register a strong if limited impression."

"The problem with buying programs," it continues, "is that if you want exposure in high-audience periods, you have to pre-empt already existing popular shows . . . And accept the alienation of a large number of irritated viewers."

—"The longer the program, the more difficult it is to sustain viewer attention. For this reason, the shorter program periods, from five to 15 minutes, are preferable to the 30 or 60-minute programs, unless there is an unusually powerful film or special feature involved."

—Spot announcements are not practical or efficient for discussion of issues in depth, but are "excellent for getting across an impression of a candidate and for associating him with a single, important idea at a time."

—"You do not have to look like a movie idol. But you should be presentable, with modern, clean, pressed suits, collars that do not curl, shoes that are shined and not run down at the heels, socks that are plain, unwrinkled and which cover the calves, hair that is near."

—"It can be costly to dismiss makeup as 'sissy stuff.' For example, some men's beards show up darkly on the screen even when they appear acceptably shaven in person . . . When a candidate who is familiar to the audience appears 'different somehow' on the TV screen his TV image is a distraction. The audience concerns itself more with how bad he looks than with what he is saying."

—"To the lady candidate: Your main concern is to dress and make up conservatively. Extreme hairdos, too much makeup, over-dressing, sequins and sparkling jewelry will all distract the viewers' attention and detract from your own message. Noisy bracelets and necklaces have no place in a studio because microphones frequently amplify the sounds to the point where it is annoying."

—Keep in mind "you are not on a speaking platform or stage, but in the voter's living room . . . Avoid the heavy gestures and dramatic expression, loud tones or formal delivery. Talk directly to your (viewer) host, conversationally, calmly, in even tones.

"Look him in the eye. That means look directly into the camera eye. Occasionally, look away for relief, just as you would do in person. However, try not to look to either side, for that somehow makes you appear anxious or uncertain. Instead, glance downward, as if consulting notes."

—In trying to get news show the mechanical requirements you must meet, the simple fact remains that they mean little unless what you have to say is newsworthy . . . Your news story must compete with everything else that's going on in the world for a place in the news programs on the air."

Arson Fire Hits Mission Building

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A four-alarm arson fire quickly gutted an unoccupied three-story office building in downtown San Francisco Monday night that was hit by a general-alarm blaze a month.

"It's arson, all right," said Fire Chief William Murray as he stood in front of the burning building next to St. Patrick's Church on Mission Street.

Murray said the brick structure was heavily damaged in the earlier fire and several windows had since been bordaed up with wooden slats.

The fire, between Fourth and Third Street, was fought by 185 men backed by 44 pieces of equipment. No injuries were reported.

Firemen sprayed the church and several other buildings with water as cinders flew through the night air and landed on rooftops.

ALMANAC

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 13, the 286th day of 1970.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Venus and Jupiter.

Those born today are under the sign of Libra.

On this day in history:

In 1775 the Continental Congress ordered construction of a naval fleet, thus originating the United States Navy.

In 1792 George Washington laid the cornerstone of the president's house, the first public building erected in Washington D.C.

In 1937 Nazi Germany promised Britain and France it would not violate Belgium neutrality, a promise later broken.

In 1943 Italy declared war on her former Axis partner, Germany.

A thought for today: Scottish novelist Robert Louis Stev-'enson said, "There is no duty we so much underrate as the duty of being happy."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Belgian Expert Charles Monk Knew How To Read Hand At Second Trick

"Did you ever know the entire hand at the second trick?" Belgian expert Charles Monk asked me a few months ago during the world championships in Stockholm. "Many times," I lied. "Well, try this one," Monk continued, paying no attention to my boasting. And he showed me just the North-South cards and the bidding of today's hand.

TOURNAMENT HAND

"I played this hand at the Cannes tournament this year," Monk told me. "The opponents were Jacobi and Catzeflis. The bidding was pretty normal for me. As you know, I like to bid."

This was the understatement of the year, but I just nodded.

"The opening lead is the ace of spades," Monk told me. "Everybody plays low. West then leads the queen of spades, and East discards a low diamond. What do you know about the hand, and how do you play it?"

EASY TO READ

It was easy. East couldn't have all five of the missing hearts since with an ace and a king he would respond to the opening bid of one spade. East surely had four hearts for his double of our hearts, and West's singleton was either the king or the ace.

East surely had only four diamonds since with five diamonds and three clubs he would discard a club at the second trick rather than a diamond. So East started with one spade, four hearts to the A-J-10 or to the K-J-10 and four low cards in both diamonds and clubs. There was a slight possibility that East had five low clubs, but then he would probably discard a club at the second trick.

WINS SECOND TRICK

Monk won the second trick with the king of spades and led a low heart. Then he won the spade continuation, took the diamond finesse and ran the rest of dummy's long suit, discarding three hearts and two clubs from his hand.

At the end, East had to hold the ace of hearts and could therefore hold only two clubs. Monk cashed the top clubs, knowing the queen would fall, to win his doubled contract and an overtrick.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one heart, and the next player passes. You hold:

♥ - A J 10 7
♦ - 6 5 3 2
♣ - 9 8 4 3.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two hearts. You would pass if partner opened with one spade, but your singleton is an asset if partner opens with one heart, and you can well aford to raise.

49ers' Sam Silas Talks About Depth

That word "depth" continues to rear its beautiful head among followers of the San Francisco 49ers and there are those enthusiastic enough to think it can carry the National Football League team to the Super Bowl.

It was depth — the shuttling of fresh men into the game — that beat favored Cleveland last month and it was Coach Dick Nolan's same masterful use of fresh material in the fefensive line that helped crush the Los Angeles Rams Sunday in the Coliseum.

"It was 106 degrees down on that field," said defensive tackle Sam Silas yesterday, "and while the Rams were sticking with their same offensive line, we were shuttling our defensive line. We could tell late in the game they (the Rams) were getting weaker and weaker."

Silas, addressing the 49er Goal Rushers of Marin at the Holiday Inn, San Rafael, was one of the eight defensive lineman who were awarded the game ball, the others being Charley Krueger, Roland Lakes, Earl Edwards, Tommy Hart, Cedrick Hardman, Bill Belk and Stan Hindman. It was the shuttling of those men in waves of four that completely throttled Roman Gabriel and the Rams. Gabe had his worst day of the year.

Nolan Bubbles With Praise

Silas laughed about a post-game incident when he was greeted in the dressing room by the usually stoic Nolan who bubbled: "We shut 'em out, Baby, we shut 'em out!" Those who know the reserved, quiet, almost shy Nolan will share Silas' amazement. Nolan is the Ed Sullivan of football.

Another amusing incident in the Ram thriller, Silas related to the 92 football fans at yesterday's luncheon (high for the two-year history of the club), happened after the rookie Hardman dumped Gabriel for a loss.

"Hardman was playing against Charley Cowan, a 10-year veteran and one of the best offensive tackles in the NFL," Silas said. "But big Cedrick handled him pretty well all day. Then, after he hit Gabriel, he pushed himself up off Roman's chest, then turned to Cowan and said, 'Sorry about that, old boy.' Most rookies have a certain amount of humility, but Cedrick has a certain flair about him."

Eight-Year NFL Veteran

Silas, who has been with the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals in addition to the 49ers in an eight-year pro career, says of the 1970 S.F. club: "Never have I seen so much talent on one ball club. We've got guys who can step in at any position and that position will not drop off in ability. Look at Elmer Collett, for example. Last season he was on the Pro Bowl team; this year Randy Beisler has beaten him out of his (left guard) position. It's like that throughout the squad. Keen competition at every position. No one has his job cinched."

Asked about middle linebacker Frank Nunley's great game against the Rams, Silas laughed: "He was like a wild man — never shut his mouth once all day. When he wasn't screaming and making tackles all over the field he was over on the sidelines yelling at everyone on the bench like a cheer leader."

Great Future For Taylor

Silas, who holds a Master's degree in physical education from Southern Illinois, and has worked toward a doctorate, says rookie c o r n e r b a c k Bruce Taylor ". . . will make it in a big way. Cornerbacks are not made, they're born . . . and he has it."

The 30-year-old defensive lineman from Carbondale, Ill. shared the head table with two Marin County highschool stars and their coaches — Larry Kerr and Coach Don Lucas of Terra Linda, and Bill Washington and Coach Mike Davlin of Tam.

The Goal Rushers announced that Silas replaced defensive tackle Charley Krueger due to a schedule mixup yesterday and that Krueger would appear at a future Marin club meeting. Next week it will be wide receiver Gene Washington at the Goal Rushers' meeting at the Holiday Inn, beginning at noon.

A Day Of Confusion For Official

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Rams officials declined comment Monday on Referee Ben Dreith who made at least one disputed call in a game against the San Francisco 49ers Sunday and also made a telephone call to double check on what down it was during one series.

The disputed call for which the official was booed by the partisan crowd came in the first quarter and involved Roman Gabriel, quarterback of the Rams who were upset 20-6.

Gabriel went back to pass on third down and 13 yards to go on the San Francisco 29. He was rushed and hit by linebacker Jim Sniadecki and as he put his arm up to throw he lost the ball and it flew backwards. It was caught in the air by 49er end Tommy Hart who headed for the end zone but was whistled down by Dreith.

"The referee blew the whistle as soon as I let it go and called it an incomplete pass," Gabriel said. "Then the 49ers got around him and complained and he was about to call it a touchdown. But I rushed up to him to remind him that he blew his whistle and he said, 'That's right, I did.'"

Dreith then ruled it was an interception but said Hart came in contact with Gabriel and fell to the turf and the ball was dead at that point — a first down for the 49ers on their own 43.

This ruling may be made to protect a man from injury when recovering a fumble, for eampxle, or in any situation where he is vulnerable to opposing tacklers.

In the last period, Dreith went to the s i d e l i n e s to telephone the press box and asked official statistician Chuck Weinstock to verify the down.

Dreith is a former American Football League official.

From Ace Pitcher To Shagging Flies

Sports

Independent-Journal, 29
Tuesday, October 13, 1970

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Wayne Simpson says he's accepted it.

He even tried to laugh about it. He and Jim Maloney put on their uniforms in front of cubicles next to each other Monday in the Cincinnati Reds' dressing room before the off-day workout and Maloney joked, "we're in charge of shagging flies."

Simpson laughed. But behind the smiles, there was anxiety.

Simpson, the 6-foot-3, 210-pound righthanded pitcher who was the Reds' rookie sensation during the first half of the year, can't pitch during the World Series. He was 13-1 midway in the season and had a 14-3 mark when he was sidelined.

Neither he nor Maloney are on the Reds' series roster because their arms are ailing. It's nothing new for Maloney, who's had a long history of arm problems. But it's been a tough adjustment for the 21-year-old right hander who isn't used to putting on a uniform without being able to play.

Simpson would have probably been the Reds' opening game starter in the series, but instead he's had to stand around and watch and do things like shag flies.

"It's not so bad when we're winning," said Simpson as the Reds prepared to go into the third game with the Baltimore Orioles holding a 2-0 lead. "But it's really difficult when we lose. You feel so helpless because you can't do anything about it and you feel you're not making a contribution."

It's been frustrating, too, because the Reds have lost both games, blowing leads of 3-0 and 4-0.

One of the reasons why the Reds haven't looked like the team which stormed through the first half of the season is simply that they're not the same club. Simpson isn't on the roster and 20-game winner Jim Merritt is ailing and probably won't pitch.

Jim McGlothlin, who was 11-3 when he was hit twice by line drives in July, is still pitching, but isn't as effective as he was before the injuries. He failed to survive the fifth inning Sunday.

The result is that Simpson, who was the team's ace, can only be a cheerleader instead of a stopper as the team's staff flounders. "It's not over yet," he insists.

But his own season is over, and he can only wonder if his arm is going to be as good as new next year.

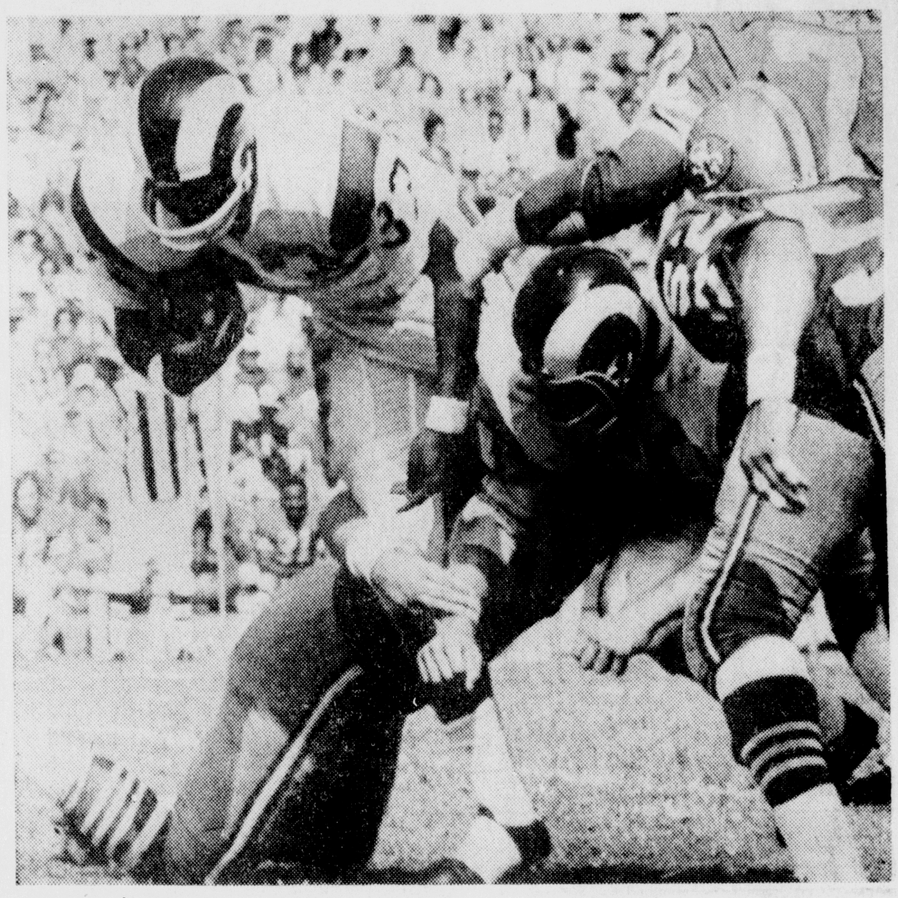
His trouble was that he simply pitched too much too soon. He threw 162 innings at Indianapolis last season, added almost 200 innings in Puerto Rico over the winter, then almost 200 more for the Reds. Almost 550 innings in about 15 months was too much for his young arm.

"Two games after the All-Star game, I threw a fast ball to Billy Williams of the Cubs, an inside fast ball, and I felt something in my shoulder. It just went dead, limp. That cleared up in a couple of weeks and then it happened again," Simpson said.

"Finally, I threw a couple innings in San Diego, but my arm was just tired and I didn't have a thing. A couple of days later it started hemorrhaging and got all black and blue. There was nothing that could be done except complete rest. I'd already had seven or eight shots of cortisone. I'd never felt that type of pain in my arm. I'd wake up in the morning and I couldn't move it."

Simpson hasn't thrown since, but he's hoping that a winter of rest and therapy will enable him to throw with the same zip he had at the start of the season.

While he sits and watches this year Simpson can only think about the future. "This team is going to be back here in the series several times in the next few years," he says.



RAM STOPPER — Somewhere in the m i d d l e of all this action is a red-shirt numbered 57 making a tackle of Los Angeles Ram running back Willie Ellison in first quarter of Sunday's game against San Francisco. Baltimore Orioles' first baseman Boog Powell had his seven-year-old son, J. W. Powell, along with him at yesterday's w o r k o u t for today's third game of the World Series at Baltimore. Powell homered in each of the first two games as the Orioles beat the Reds at Cincinnati twice, 4-3 and 6-5.

Raiders In Need Of Back

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders are expected to pick up an extra reserve defensive back now that all-pro cornerback Willie Brown is sidelined by a shoulder separation.

Brown was examined in Los Angeles by a specialist Monday and may have to undergo surgery today. He is expected to miss four or five weeks of duty after suffering the injury on a diving pass interception during Oakland's 35-23 win over Denver last Sunday.

"The ball was overthrown, I dove for it and landed on my right shoulder. It tore on impact," Brown said.

Nemiah Wilson will move to Brown's right cornerback spot with former all-leaguer Kent McCloughan taking over Wilson's vacated position on the left side. George Atkinson and Dave Grayson remain the starting safeties, but rookie Alvin Wyatt is the lone replacement on the active roster.

Coach John Madden said the Raiders are dickering for the services of a veteran cornerback. However, the new acquisition probably would not be activated for the Raiders' game Monday night against the Washington Redskins.

Madden said he would like to activate middle linebacker and defensive captain Dan Conners, assuming Conners is fully recovered from a broken bone in his forearm. Conners would take Brown's spot on the roster and wide receiver Rod Sherman would fill in as a safety in case further injury problems hit the secondary.

Overconfidence? Nolan Not Worried

REDWOOD CITY (UPI) — Coach Dick Nolan doesn't figure he'll have to guard too strongly against overconfidence as his San Francisco 49ers prepare for Sunday's game against the New Orleans Saints.

The 49ers, exhibiting an abundance of poise to accompany their plentiful talent, are tied for first place with a 3-1 record in the National Conference West after beating the Los Angeles Rams 20-6. New Orleans, losers by seven points last week to St. Louis, has a 1-3 mark.

"All the players have to do is look around the league and see what happens every week," Nolan said. "You have to b e aware that you can lose at any time."

John Brodie, brilliant at quarterback for the fourth straight weekend, hit 13 of 20 passes against Los Angeles to improve his season percentage to a remarkable 66 of 99 for 67 per cent. He has yet to fire an interception.

Brodie got excellent protection from his offensive line while the Rams' Roman Gabriel was rushed continually by San Francisco's front four. The 49ers held Los Angeles to only 205 total yards and hope to do the same against New Orleans.

Defensive end Stan Hindman suffered a knee injury but may be able to play against the Saints. Running back Ken Willard and linebacker Dave Wilcox suffered minor knee injuries but should be in the starting lineup at Kezar Stadium. Wide receiver Dick Witcher, sidelined two weeks by a slight shoulder separation, also may be back in uniform.

Gale Sayers Awaits Decision On Future

CHICAGO (UPI)—Gale Sayers, five time all league running back and holder of 17 Chicago Bears team records, waited today for the decision on his football future.

Dr. Theodore Fox said Monday, it would be "at least 27 hours" before the decision is made on whether to operate on the injured right knee of Sayers.

The fleet footed Sayers was injured during the first half of the game Sunday between the Minnesota Vikings and the Bears.

Fox said he would check the knee "several more times" before making a decision.

Should Sayers require the knee operation, it would be the second such operation in the past three years. He had surgery in the right knee missing part of the 1968 season, and his recovery was so great that last year he won the National Football League's rushing championship with 1,032 yards.

Fox described Sayers' latest injury as "a very rare type."

Packers In Narrow Win Over Chargers

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—"It was a Little League play," young San Diego Chargers' quarterback Marty Domres said after his club lost to the Green Bay Packers 22-20 Monday night.

"I didn't even see that back." Domres had g o o d reason to moan. He was transformed from hero to bum with one shot, a soft lob pass that veteran safetyman Willie Wood intercepted and returned 21 yards to set up a 14-yard winning field goal by Dale Livingston.

YAWNED

A crowd of 53,064 plus a national television audience of 20 million yawned through three quarters of defensive football in which two short third-quarter touchdown passes by Bart Starr gave Green Bay a seemingly insurmountable 19-6 lead.

Then the 15-year veteran suffered a stiff shoulder and coach Phil Bengtson sent in former local hero Don Horn, who used to play at San Diego State.

Horn's fourth pass was picked off by San Diego's Pete Barnes and returned 19 yards to San Diego's 38. Domres replaced Chargers' veteran John Hadl. Hadl completed only six passes for 53 yards while losing 55 attempting to throw. He had three intercepted.

Domres connected on a pass to rookie Dave Smith which gained 42 yards. Two plays later he gave to Willie Frazier on a 24-yard end around and San Diego had its first touchdown.

DISASTER

Disaster struck Horn again after the ensuing kickoff.

He faded to pass, saw Travis Williams was covered, turned around and, as he put it, "the guy (Joe Owens) was in my face. He hit my hand. It happens."

Bob B r u g g e r s recovered Horn's fumble on Green Bay's seven-yard line. Domres carried to the one and then handed off to Jeff Queen for the touchdown that put San Diego ahead 20-19.

Back came Starr and, injured shoulder or not, he hit Carroll Dale for 10 yards, handed to

Nats Baseball Team Is Near Bankruptcy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said today he had been told that the Washington Senators baseball club was near bankruptcy, but that he would do everything in his power to discourage any move to another city.

Kuhn told a House subcommittee that Senators owner Robert E. Short had told him the club's financial plight left him "no alternative but to go bankrupt or to move."

Kuhn said a transfer at this time was very remote, and "I will do everything in my power to keep it here."

Short, accompanied by manager Ted Williams, appealed for a better deal on the rent of Robert F. Kennedy Stadium, a bigger cut of concession receipts and a cut of parking fees which he does not now get.

Short, who recently added controversial pitcher Denny McLain to his club's roster, received a generally sympathetic reception from the subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the stadium owned by the D. C. government.

Discussing the controversial eight-player trade with sent McLain to the Senators, American League President Joe Cronin said Short "made a good deal" in bringing McLain to the last-place ball team.

Hockey: Blues Trip Canucks

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Gary Sabourin scored two goals in the third period Monday night to give the St. Louis Blues a 4-1 win over the Vancouver Canucks in a National Hockey League game.

Sabourin, a 28-goal scorer for the Blues last season, grabbed the puck on the right side of the Vancouver net, carried it behind the net and jammed it between the left post and goalie Dunc Wilson at 6:49 of the third period to break the 1-1 tie. Ab McDonald and Christian Bordeleau were credited with assists. Sabourin then scored the insurance goal on a 50-foot shot at 16:37 of the third period, also on assists by Bordeleau and McDonald.

70 SECONDS

Bob Wall added the final St. Louis tally with 70 seconds remaining in the game.

Captain Orland Kurtenbach had tied the score for Vancouver at :49 of the third period. He was trailing Wayne Maki, skating down the ice on the left side. As Maki reached the crease he dropped a pass to Kurtenbach, who had St. Louis Goalie Ernie Wakely out of position and scored. Murray Hall was also credited with an assist.

Red Berenson scored for St. Louis on an 18-foot shot directly in front of the goal at 12:54 of the first period after a pass from Bordeleau standing on the goal line just to the right of the Vancouver net. Berenson's weak shot angled into the net off Wilson. Berenson's goal was on the St. Louis power play while Pat Quinn sat in the penalty box with a double minor penalty.

2- POINT LEAD

The Blues have taken a two-point lead in the Western Division with Chicago, Los Angeles and Philadelphia tied for second place. The Canucks were playing their first road game after beating Toronto and losing to Los Angeles at home.

Jim Hargreaves, a 20-year-old Vancouver defenseman, was playing in his first NHL game.

PREP FOOTBALL NOTES

Strong Defense In Marin League

By DAVID EINSTEIN

All deodorant jokes aside, the Marin County Athletic League football teams have not been very offensive in the first two weeks of the 1970 league season.

The San Rafael High School Bulldogs rolled up 265 yards in their only game but the six other teams are each averaging less than 200 yards per game. And the most points scored by one team in a game so far is a paltry 23, by Tamalpais in its season-opener against Redwood.

Since the Marin County teams, especially Drake and San Rafael, racked up some huge preseason scores against nonleague opposition, it must be that the MCAL is strong defensively. And the strongest, to the surprise of no one, is defending champion Terra Linda, which has held two powerful opponents, Drake and Tam, to 80 and 153 yards respectively.

THIS WEEK should be one for the offenses, as Terra Linda and Novato collide at San Rafael Friday night, while on Saturday Drake goes against San Marin at Novato in an afternoon game and San Rafael hosts Tam under the lights.

That last-mentioned game could really be a display of fireworks as the league's two fastest running backs, Scott Duncan of San Rafael and Tam's Clifford Hall, face each other.

In games outside the MCAL involving Marin and Sonoma county teams, Redwood travels to Burlingame High Saturday afternoon, San Rafael Military Academy entertains John O'Connell of San Francisco Friday afternoon, and Petaluma plays at Napa and Rancho Cotate (Rohnert Park) hosts Analy (Sebastopol) that night.

Saturday afternoon Marin Catholic entertains St. Elizabeth's in Oakland.

IF THE FIRST two weeks are any indication, the MCAL may be one of the best leagues in Northern California for placekicking. In six games so far, four field goals have been kicked, including a 43-yarder by Tam's Terry Rutledge against Redwood to set a league record.

Not only that, but Novato's Bob Cooper has kicked two field goals, one in each league game, and those points plus three extra points place him among the top five in scoring.

Ironically, neither Drake's John Loane nor Urbano Bouciequez of San Marin, considered prior to the season to be the two best placekickers in the league, has a field goal yet. Rutledge, on the other hand, is a tackle by trade whose talent at kicking has just recently been discovered.

MUCH OF the credit for the MCAL's suddenproficiency in the art of place kicking must go to San Rafael businessman Gordon Tovani, a one-time kicker for the Oakland Raiders who bills himself as "the world's greatest barefoot place kicker."

That may be a trifle eccentric, (although he's unchallenged in his claim to fame), but there is no doubting that Tovani has taken a great part in promoting and improving placekicking in the county His annual clinic for the art, held in the early summer, has paid off handsomely with a marked increase in field goal production last year in the MCAL and what will obviously be an even greater increase this season.

TOVANI HAS established a "place kicking unit award" which he is giving weekly to the kicker, holder and center in the MCAL who have the best game, placekickingwise. The first such award for 1970 goes, of course, to Rutledge, and his holder, Pat Dawson, and center Bill Rudolph.

Last week's award belongs to Cooper of Novato, holder Rex Rolle and center Mike Corder.

UNITAS' OPINION:

Kapp's Bad Advice

HOUSTON, (UPI)—Baltimore Colts quarterback Johnny Unitas believes Joe Kapp will miss the Minnesota Vikings more than the Vikings miss Kapp and predicts the Vikings will go on to win the NFL title with his former understudy at quarterback.

Unitas said Kapp followed some bad advice when he held out on the Vikings this year and wound up playing for the Boston Patriots.

Unitas fielded questions Monday at the touchdown club, one day after his Baltimore Colts defeated the Houston Oilers in the Astrodome. Next week the Colts, playing their first season in what used to be the American Football League, meet a team they've been waiting to play for more than 20 months —the New York Jets.

Unitas predicted the Vikings would win the National Football League title (which this year is comparable to a Super Bowl victory because of realignment) with quarterback Gary Cuozzo replacing Kapp.

"Gary is a good ballplayer," Unitas said of Cuozzo, a former understudy to Unitas himself.

The Baltimore quarterback said the Detroit Lions are the darkhorse candidate for title honors and said Green Bay appeared to be regaining some of the form it displayed during the Lombardi era.

Unitas said the Vikings did everything possible for Kapp while negotiating with him this year. Kapp played out his option with the Viking last season.

"They offered him $100,000," Unitas said. "As far as I'm concerned $100,000 ain't bad. I think he had some bad advice.

"I've been playing 15 years and I never had any problems signing," Unitas said. "I think both sides have to give and take."

MILLION DOLLAR MAN

Making Sport A Business

By SIMON KAVANAUGH
(London Express Service)

LONDON — Mark McCormack was here looking like an overstated advertisement for himself. Six feet four, an electric blue mohair suit failing to conceal muscle, guileless blue eyes in a clean-cut tanned face. McCormack sat by the telephone in his graceful Park Street office as though only a sense of duty kept him from the golf links or the tennis courts.

LAWYER

McCormack lives sport from the moment he starts work at eight in the morning until he packs up near midnight.

But several million dollars and 70 of the hottest properties in international sports stand between him and the changing room. McCormack is the Cleveland lawyer who took hold of sport and made it a business proposition for the players.

Ten years ago McCormack saw a professional golfer's contract for the first time. "I was appalled. Those golfers were right over a barrel with some of the clauses."

MILLIONAIRES

Today, at 39, he has made millionaires of three golfers and has sewn up the careers of top men in sports as contrasting as skiing and cricket by the simple expedient of treating them as marketable commodities.

"He's attractive, humble, says the right things at the right time and has so many years ahead", he enthused over British golfer Tony Jacklin earlier this year. "Being so personable from a business standpoint he has everything a company could want".

Being described as a product might not be flattering to a sportsman, but McCormack's assessment that Jacklin could earn half a million pounds sterling over the next five years was probably adequate compensation.

Gary Player says, "But for Mark I'd have just been peanuts", and if it sounds like a testimonial in a sports magazine it may be because that's the kind of thinking McCormack fosters.

MARK McCORMACK
Sporting lawyer

"We represent professional sportsmen and try to do the best job for them by getting the most out of their careers and talents financially" says McCormack. "People like Joe Louis have been champions in a particular area and wake up one morning unable to be champions and with no money".

When you speak to McCormack of the general decline in sportsmanship he looks like a property tycoon being asked to comment on Monopoly.

"This is not to say I don't believe in sportsmanship, but I think these days the whole world involves competition. You play a game to win. You play fairly, but to win. I think if you get an unjust call you should protest. Just as in business if some one breaches a contract you go to a lawyer. It's nice to be friendly, but at the same time to pretend that inside the people shaking hands there isn't a fierce desire to win is just unrealistic, and there's nothing the matter with showing that fierce desire to win".

ALL SPORTS

McCormack has offices in Johannesburg, Tokyo, Sydney and in Canada and New Zealand, as well as in London and Cleveland. He represents racing driver Jackie Stewart and showjumpers David Broome and Nelson Pessoa, cricketer Geoff Boycott and skier Jean Killy. He even has model Jean Shrimpton on his books. His cut is said to be nearer 25 per cent than the customary 10 per cent, and he's long since a millionaire. But none of his clients complain.

Domres, the apparent miracle worker, tried the clincher, a lob pass over the sure-to-be-rushing Packers' defensive line to Frazier, who sneaked behind the defense.

"I was expecting it," Wood, an 11-year veteran said. "It was my responsibility."

The ball hung, Wood was there, Livingston then kicked his field goal with 3:39 left and the Packers moved into a three-way tie for first in the National Conference's Central Division.

The Packers move to Los Angeles Sunday while San Diego tries to break its winless streak at Chicago.

BOWLING TIPS

Of all the one-pin spares, the 10-pin leave is the most exasperating. Three just isn't as much alley to work with over there. I think the best way to pick up this baby is to aim for an imaginary 6-pin's right side.

FORMER RAM, BEAR

Larry Brink Still Follows The Game Of Pro Football

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Larry Brink, Mill Valley automobile dealer, is an avid football follower, and when he's arguing the sport, he always gets in strong words of praise for the defense.

Brink, you see, is a former defensive end for the Los Angeles Rams and Chicago Bears, so he has earned himself the right to be "for" the defense and "agin' " the offense.

Although he has been out of the violent game of pro football for 16 years, Brink, 47, weighs only four pounds more than when he wound up his professional football career with the Chicago Bears. The 6-foot-5 Brink is a solid 244 pounds.

LARRY BRINK
Gridion to cars

15TH PICK

He was drafted by the Los Angeles Rams as a 15th pick in 1948 after graduation from Northern Illinois State College in DeKalb, Ill. He played six years for the Rams as a defensive end and then was traded to the Bears where he played one season before stepping out of the football picture.

A native of Milaca, Minn., and a farm boy in his youth, Brink came to Mill Valley in 1956 to start a Lincoln-Mercury dealership and has been there since.

To keep in shape, he does a lot of tennis playing, at least three times a week, he says. "And," he adds, "you do a lot of moving around being in the automobile business and that helps keep you skinny."

This very big man and wife Leatha have three sons, and like chips off the old block, all are big guys. Barry, a senior tackle for the Dartmouth football team, is 6-foot-3 and weighs 240; Jan, now attending post graduate high school at Phillips Exeter Academy in Exeter, N.H., is 6-3 and 195, and Kevin, junior at Tamalpais High School, is pushing 6-4 and weighs about 170.

MED SCHOOL

Jan, like his older brother, is planning to play college football, but he hasn't selected a school yet, while Kevin is pointing his efforts to baseball rather than football. Barry, a pre-med student, is applying for medical school this year.

The senior Brink has been active as a coach in Little League and Babe Ruth baseball for the past 12 years and also has coached in the Pop Warner football program in Mill Valley.

He follows professional football very closely and when there's a game on television you had better shut the door because he's gonna be indoors for awhile watching it. Especially if the Rams are playing.

"Deep loyalty is hard to give up," he said about his former team. "Although my sons are more for the 49ers and Raiders." After Sunday's game in L.A. his sons should be much happier than their dad.

One of the gridiron moments he remembers most came in his last year, when he was playing for the Bears.

"It was on Nov. 27, 1954," Brink said. "My son, Kevin, was born at 2 a.m. and at 10 a.m. I had to be at the field for the game against the Rams, my old team. It was after 3 o'clock before I left the hospital.

LATERAL

"Well, the Rams got off to a 7-0 lead and were on our 13-yard line trying to score again. I intercepted a lateral and ran 87 yards for a touchdown and we went on to win the game. The team voted me the game ball and I took it with me when I returned to the hospital after the game." So his son had his first football before he was even a day old.

Brink, who enjoys watching a good baseball game now and then, feels football is now the No. 1 sport in America. "There is definitely a swing toward football now, and frankly, I think baseball people are worried about it," he said.

Meanwhile, he's going to keep watching football — and cheering for the defense, of course.

Cal's Penhall, Stanford's Plunkett Both Win Honors

OAKLAND (UPI)—Too bad for Cal's Dave Penhall he had to have his best day of the season the same day that Stanford beat USC for the first time in more than a decade.

The Cal quarterback hit 15 of 25 passes for 276 yards and a touchdown in a 31-28 squeaker over Washington.

Stanford's Plunkett hit 19 for 275 yards in a comparable day against USC as the Indians upset Troy 24-14 and was named Pacific Eight player of the week for his efforts.

But the Northern California sports scribes named the two tossers as co-players of the week on the offense. Linebacker Jeff Siemon of Stanford won defensive honors.

Stanford calls on Washington State this weekend and it may take an adding machine to figure out the score. The Cougars have averaged 429 yards per game this year or nine more a contest than the nationally ninth-ranked Indians. But Washington State has given up 450 per contest.

California meets UCLA next Saturday and both teams leaked three touchdowns in the closing minutes last weekend. The Bears still beat the Huskies while the Bruins lost 41-40 to Oregon.

As Vic Kelley, UCLA publicist put it, "We may not know what we're going to do but we're entertaining."

UOP publicist George Thomas said that "they take their football seriously down there." Down there was in Louisiana where the Tigers from UOP battled the Bengals from LSU and lost 34-0. Thomas said it was only 13-0 at halftime and the defense played well all game.

San Jose State has the opposite problem. The Spartans rolled for 357 yards at New Mexico while the defense ad a rough night in the 48-25 loss. The Spartans call on unbeaten San Diego State this weekend in an even tougher test.

FISH AND GAME

Not Duck Weather, But We Found Birds

By AL GIDDINGS

Hot, cloudless,windless weather greeted duck hunters at Honey Lake in Lassen County for the opening of the season over the weekend. Ducks? They were mighty scarce on both the Fleming and Daken areas of the Fish and Game Department public shooting areas adjacent to Honey Lake.

Our little crew consisting of my wife, Mary, my daughter and Ken Walker and me arrived at Honeylake on Thursday about noon expecting to shoot the Fleming area. Ha! This was not to be. As we drove on to the area the big sign, "Full Quota" was already up. The area holds about 100 people and, imagine, they were already there by Thursday morning.

WE HURRIEDLY drove down to the Daken area and luckily made the line before it was too full.

We put up a tent, made preparations for the night, and readied the hunting gear for the next morning.

Dusty? You can't imagine how really dusty it was. If you could see me now — dust from head to foot. I'm waiting in line for a shower.

We got a fair night's sleep, getting up at 4 a.m. to check in. The shooting fee is $3.50 per person. We were out on the parking lot ready to go at 5 a.m., though shooting time was approximately 6:36 a.m.

WE EXPECTED to meet my old friend, Howard Leach, the hunting biologist from Sacramento who knows the area to some extent. He was going to guide us to a hot spot. Well, in the dark we couldn't find him, so we just took off in a hopeful direction. We walked about a mile, never seeing another hunter. Boy, we were out of it, but we came to a pond and decided to stay there. We put out decoys, and believe it or not, we had a good shoot; most of it in the first three hours of the morning. We didn't limit out, but we managed to get 13 birds for the four of us.

The average take per person was about two birds. I think all the other ponds were crowded, so we were just blind lucky to get where we did.

HOWARD and his son Ray got three birds between them, so you can see that things were slow. There was hardly a shot fired in the p.m., so if you're planning the long trip, wait for some rough weather. It'll help on the birds and also on the dusty conditions. Generally there is no waiting line after the first weekend except for the pheasant opener. It's a great place, but you have to rough it.

102-Mile Trip On Water Skis

OAKLAND (UPI)—Just to "try something different," an Alameda tugboat worker went for a 102-mile water ski trip Monday—from Oakland's Pier 29 to and around the Farallon Islands and back.

Gordon V. Price, 27, also said of the three-hour trip on a single 72-inch mahogany ski: "A few people have tried to do it . . . I thought 'why not?' It's my turn."

He wore a wet suit and traveled an average of 23 miles an hour while being towed by a boat driven by Harry Schilling, a restaurant owner.

Utilities Firm Has Rate Hike Problem

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have shares of General Public Utilities. What is the outlook for this firm? What about rate relief? C.K.

A. Nearly all electric utility companies are now faced with financing and rate problems. General Public Utilities is no exception. The company has requested rate increases amounting to over $60 million. To date, only $18 million has been collected on an interim basis. In view of General Public's low rate of invested capital return, its massive construction program with the resultant huge capital requirements, it is expected that favorable rulings will be forthcoming. However, while approval of all pending rate increases would bolster after-tax earnings by about $1.05 per share, mounting expenses, particularly interest charges, would probably halve this amount. For the first half of 1970, revenues increased 12 per cent while net income lost 12 per cent due to a 23 per cent increase in fixed charges and a doubling of corporate expenses. Dividend coverage is slim, for in the first two quarters, per share net, at 40 cents, just covered the quarterly payment. Carrying an above-average yield, 8 per cent, this issue is not without risks; greater income security may be found elsewhere.

Q. I have some stock in American Medical Enterprises, bought at 35. Should I average down in this issue? S.C.

A. Yes. American Medical Enterprises represents an attractive buy for appreciation. Moreover, AMI is a prime example of how a stock's price can be beaten down despite a solid earnings uptrend. The company reported substantial gains for the 9 months ended May, 1970, with per share net rising to 66 cents from 51 cents in the year-earlier interim. Full year results are expected to score at least a 20 per cent increase to 85 cents-90 cents a share. American Medical is well positioned as the only company exclusively engaged in the acute care general hospital field, with acquisitions being a major factor in company's expansion. Now up 130 per cent from its 1970 low of 10½, stock is still selling below its normal P/E of 30/1.

Rails To Invest In Coal Hoppers

CLEVELAND, (UPI) — Chesapeake & Ohio-Baltimore & Ohio railroads has announced plans to invest $24 million in an unspecified number of additional coal hopper cars to help meet the continued heavy demand for coal.

The order is the first under the line's capital improvement program for next year, according to Gregory S. DeVine, President. This year the line is acquiring a total of 3,600 coal cars at a cost of $42 million.

Sells Hi-Fi

HOUSTON (UPI) — Sterling Electronics Corp has sold its subsidiary, Hi-Fi Associates, Inc., and has arranged to sell Henry Products Co. and Mikado Electronics, Inc.

Prices Dip Fourth Day On Exchange

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices declined for the fourth day in a row on the New York Stock Exchange Tuesday in an extension of the profit taking that began last Thursday.

Near the final bell, the Dow Jones industrial average was off about 4 points at 760.13, while declines outscored advances, 744 to 484.

Turnover of around 9,000,000 shares compared with 8,570,000 shares traded in Monday's semi-holiday session.

Closing prices included American Telephone 44 Bethlehem Steel 21 1-2, Chrysler 24 7-8, DuPont 115 1-2, Ford 50 7-8, General Electric 82 5-8, General Motors 72 1-4, IBM 292 and Southern Pacific 31 3-4.

One analyst said the setback reflected general profit taking coming on the heels of big gains early last week, and a prediction Monday by Congressman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of a fiscal 1971 burget deficit of between $12 billion and $20 billion.

Mills also said he saw no signs of an upturn in the economy or an end to inflation.

Another analyst said "basically, third quarter corporate earnings are disappointing to investors." He noted that in some cases year-to-year declines were larger than expected.

Among the companies to report lower quarterly earnings were Westinghouse, Robertshaw Controls, St. Regis Paper, International Paper, A. O. Smith, Kimberly-Clark Corp., Monsanto, and Crowell-Collier. Most of these stocks, however, traded over narrow ranges.

Walter Kidde, delayed in opening as a result of an influx of trading orders, attracted selling pressure. The company received unfavorable comment in a Wall Street Journal article.

Among the stocks on the most active list were Westinghouse, Great Western Financial, Sterling Drug, and Carrier Corp. The last traded an early block of 67,800 shares at 33 1-2, down 3-4.

Prices declined in slow trading on the American Stock Exchange.

A New Aid For Heart Victims

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has announced development of balloon pumping equipment to provide temporary aid to the failing hearts of coronary victims.

A long, slender balloon, similar to a narrow sausage, is inserted in the aorta, the main artery leaving the heart's left ventricle. The balloon automatically inflates and deflates in rhythm with the patient's heartbeat.

The project, a team effort of Westinghouse and Johns Hopkins University researchers, is the first part of a Westinghouse program to develop temporary heart assist systems.
